VISIT OF KING HERE SERIOUSLY PROPOSED

London Saturday Review Declares It Would Be an Incident of Great Value.

OUR SOCIETY DISSECTED

Duke of Connaught's Visit Brings Out Our "Fussy Provincialism" and the Anxieties of Fifth Avenue Dinner Hosts.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—"The American press has received the Duke and Duchess of Connaught with characteristic emotions, and from the accounts in the English newspapers, one might think that America was populated chiefly by photographers. The fact, however, emerges from the inquisitiveness and social recriminations, of which the visitors are said to have been the innocent cause, that the United States of America has received them with deep pleasure and enthusiasm. For this every Englishman is grateful.

"We cannot help entertaining the possibility that the King and Queen might be able to visit America. We can guess the greater enthusiasm and affection with which they would be welcomed.

"We doubt if it would be easy or desirable for the King to leave the United Kingdom often, yet an American visit would be an incident of great value. We know that if such a visit were seriously considered, and the King felt obliged to decide against it, the reason would certainly not be any want of good-will toward the American people."

This extract from to-morrow's Saturday Review admirably summarizes the well-considered British opinion of the Connaught visit. What that section of the English public whose knowledge of America is gathered from the popular journals, thinks of New York's reception of its royal guests may be divined from The Saturday Review's allusion and from a two-column article in another weekly, The Outlook, which begins:

Comments on Our Manners.

"Many pictures are drawn by travelers and novelists of New York and its society, but none of them is half as amazing as the pictures which from time to time, and always unconsciously, New York draws of itself. Never, perhaps, is the American metropolis more innocently revealing than when it is trying to adjust itself to the visit of some distinguished foreign personage.

"Within the past week it has treated the world to an exhibition of manners such as no other city on earth could hope to rival. The visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia seems, if one may judge by the papers, to have turned New York into a city of snobs with the antics of children, squadrons of reporters and photographers following their Royal Highnesses all over the city, describing their every movement and their appearance and dress with naïve familiarity.

"This is a feature of American hospitality which every well-known European must necessarily expect to encounter, and it is one of the reasons why well-known Europeans make a point of avoiding New York like a plague.

"But besides filling the newspapers with five or six columns a day of impertinent inanity, the visit of the Governor General and family seems to have produced something in the nature of a social cataclysm in New York's 'society.' It appears to have been growing mixed, and the advent of the royal Duke has been taken advantage of to effect proscriptions and realignment.

"Nobody henceforth is to count in New York who did not receive an invitation to meet the Duke and Duchess at Mrs. Ogden Mills's, and the struggles to obtain the coveted cards and qualify as members of the new 400 were waged with an acerbity and a publicity only found in a republic dedicated to equality."

Severe on New York Society.

The Outlook cites Ralph Pulitzer's "New York Society on Parade" as a justification for the following remarks:

"The foreigner, especially an Englishman, in New York, becomes conscious of an atmosphere of fussy and grandiose provincialism. That mellow something in the social air which we call cosmopolitanism, that repose and tolerance that come from wide experience, the easy and assured outlook and tempered enjoyment is finding a footing in New York society, where everything is apt to run to extremes and moderation in one is voted commonplace, and there is a fretful straining to outshine and astonish the betalked-of rules of intercourse of the four hundred. It is a society, moreover, enormously on parade, infinitely to be paragraphed, incurably self-conscious of the effect it is trying to produce.

"One feels everywhere the sense of effort. The charm of London hospitality is that there is never the slightest strain put upon either host or guest, but at a Fifth Avenue dinner table one is made aware of the anxiety lest something should go wrong rather

DEAD IN HIS LIGHTHOUSE.

Kneeling in Prayer While Wife Braves Ice Floes to Reach Him.

Special to The New York Times.

SNOW HILL, Md., Jan. 26.—At sunset yesterday no light shone out from the Chincoteague Lighthouse across Sinepuxent Bay. The inhabitants of Chincoteague Island looked and wondered. Never had such a thing occurred before.

Mrs. Taylor, wife of the lighthouse keeper, was on the island and knew something serious was the matter. In her light gasoline launch she had battled with the ice floes alone a few hours before, and had come to Chincoteague for much-needed supplies, for she and her husband had been icebound since the extreme cold weather of the last few weeks.

When she left the lighthouse her husband seemed in the best of health. The ice floes had not torn the lighthouse from its foundations, for it was plainly visible at sunset. If the apparatus had got out of working order the keeper would have rigged a substitute light.

Mrs. Taylor readily found men to assist her in going back, and the battle with the ice began. It was hard work making a way through the heavy floes with no light to guide them.

When they reached the little iron ladder that runs up from the water to the landing platform no one greeted them, and they found Taylor kneeling at his bedside as if in prayer. He was dead.

The light was lighted at once and Mrs. Taylor stayed to watch it. It guided her friends as they bore the body of her husband across the bay for burial ashore.

Taylor and his wife had been keeper and assistant keeper of Chincoteague Light since it was established, twenty-six years ago. Never had the Government received any complaint against them, and, though negroes, they were esteemed by all who knew them. Taylor was trained by Capt. Anderson, keeper of the Assateague Light, who was one of the first to notice the Chincoteague Light was not shining.

MONTREAL 'FLYER' WRECKED

Locomotive Smashed as It Hits Freight Train—No One Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

WINCHENDON, Mass., Jan. 27.—The Montreal "flyer," from New York, bound for Bellows Falls and Canadian points, due here at 9:35 P. M., while coming into the Boston & Maine yards to-night, hit the local freight from Elmwood, completely smashing the locomotive of the local passenger train and that of the freight as well as derailing a dozen freight cars, the baggage car of the express and smashing several telegraph poles, which put the railroad dispatching system out of commission.

Other than receiving a general shaking up, the passengers of the "flyer" were uninjured, and both engineers and firemen of the smashed locomotives escaped serious injury by jumping from their cabs.

Traffic in both directions was completely tied up for more than four hours, until the wreckage could be cleared away and a new engine supplied to take the express and its passengers on toward the Canadian line.

The delayed "flyer" continued on its way at 1:52 o'clock this morning, after a delay of nearly five hours, but only at a slow rate of speed, owing to the telegraph system of the road being still out of commission, as a result of the crash.

TOWN OWNS HIS WOODEN LEG

Pauper's Limb Bears Manchester Selectmen's Official Stamp.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 26.—"This leg is the property of the town of Manchester, loaned to William Armstrong, and is not to be hocked, sold, or exchanged without a majority vote of the Board of Selectmen."

This inscription is stamped on the wooden leg which the town of Manchester, after much dickering, to-day gave to William Armstrong, a pauper who came here from the North of Ireland two years ago and who has been a charge of the town ever since. The Selectmen have been trying, without success, to induce the State to support Armstrong, who is an alien.

Horace B. Cheney, member of the silk manufacturing firm of Cheney Brothers, who is a Selectman, would only consent to the purchase of the leg for Armstrong on condition that it be inscribed as stated.

"I've bought several wooden legs for old soldiers and others during my life," said Mr. Cheney, "and have had to take them out of hock for the owners. A wooden leg is negotiable, as I have found."

Armstrong is practicing with the leg and expects soon to be able to earn his own living.

O'CONNELL FOR DOTY'S PLACE

Friend of Mayor Gaynor Said to be Slated for Health Officer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.—On the authority of a prominent Democratic member of the Legislature, it was said to-day that Gov. Dix had decided to appoint Dr. Joseph J. O'Connell of Brooklyn, Health Officer of the Port of New York, to succeed Dr. A. H. Doty, who refused to resign at the Governor's request several weeks ago. Dr. O'Connell's name has been frequently mentioned in connection with the office, and he is said to have the support of Mayor Ganor, who is a neighbor and friend.

While Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy is said to have indorsed Dr. J. A. Irwin of Manhattan for the office, it is said the Tammany Senators will vote for the confirmation of Dr. O'Connell if he is nominated. It is expected that this nomination and those of Public Service Commissioner to succeed William McCarroll of the First District and John B. Olmsted of the Second District will be sent to the Senate next week.

SOCIAL WORKERS SEE REAL 'TURKEY TROTS'

Shudder at "The Shiver," Gasp at "The Bunny Hug," and Then Discuss Reforms.

NO VERDICT IS RENDERED

Welfare Committee Hesitates to Condemn the Dance When Very Properly Done—Actors Show All Forms.

When Mrs. Charles Henry Israels's Committee on Amusement and Vacation Resources for Working Girls found, in the course of its vigilant watch on the dance halls of New York, that it was necessary to strike out at the politer forms of the "Turkey Trot" and "Grizzly Bear" appearing where society danced, it spoke out in meeting to the end that there should be established some standard of decency in social dancing. What is good and what is bad? How are the supervisors to answer the working girl when she protests that every one is dancing the "Turkey Trot"? Is it all a confusion in terms?

To the end that these questions might find an answer and that the standard should begin to take form, the committee, at its annual meeting yesterday, held a conference in the ballroom at Delmonico's, where, as Mrs. Israels said, those invited might "see, and learn, and perhaps set their own standard," where they might behold the "Turkey Trot" as it ought to be danced, if at all, and then, as it often is danced. And to this conference there was invited a most varied audience of men and women prominent in the social life of New York, of settlement workers, and city officials, of clergymen, magazine writers, artists, and License Bureau Inspectors. A glance at one row of seats showed you Henry Moskowitz, Mrs. Israels, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, Al Jolson, and Florence Cable of the Winter Garden, Melville Ellis, and Prof. and Mrs. Duryea.

This very variety in the audience was the thing sought, in the hope that the ideas born in the conference might radiate from many centres of influence. The whole assemblage of 600 was gathered in the softly-lighted gold and crystal room, and the talk of wretched conditions of poverty and demonstrations of the dances were accompanied by the lisp of silks and fine furs, broken in upon from time to time by the pat-pat of many gloved hands.

At the conference the point brought out seemed to be that while the dance variations might be very prettily and properly performed, they were distinguished only by a series of imperceptible gradations from their origins on the Barbary Coast of San Francisco and that for the dances to develop toward their uglier extremes was so easy as to be inevitable. Closer and closer the partners dance and more and more perceptible becomes the tremor that keeps time with the "ragging" of the orchestra. That was the evolution, according to Prof. Duryea, a teacher of dancing who "thinks about his art," as Mrs. Israels put it, and it can take place not only from season to season with the world of dancers, but with a given pair within a single evening.

"Right here on Fifth Avenue I have seen it change in the course of the evening," he said. "At the start they would be dancing with the hop and the arms held out. Four hours later, with the room more crowded and the dancers more weary and more in the spell of the music, the man and his partner would dance closer and closer as they circle the floor, and the hop becomes more and more of a glide."

Shudder at "The Shiver."

Then he and Mrs. Duryea, after showing that development of one evening, showed the "Turkey Trot" with its objectionable possibilities all carried out in what is especially known as the "Shiver," a dance that sent shudders through some of those who watched. Yet, when Mrs. Israels asked how many had seen that very thing done in the dance halls, a hundred hands went up. It is her theory that the innocent "Turkey Trot" may well be preserved, if re-christened, lest the dancers of the poor be misled into thinking there is high sanction for the "Turkey Trot" as they see it in the ill-supervised halls that are their only refuge from dark and dismal homes.

"We all should know just what these things are," she said, "for the girl who dances at Sherry's has just as much responsibility for the welfare of the girl who dances at the Murray Hill Lyceum as has the recreation supervisor in that district."

But Prof. Duryea seemed to believe that there was no safety in retaining anything that departed from the "correct position," as in the impeccable waltz, where the man has his right arm about the girl's waist, and her right hand rests in his left, which must be extended.

Only last Wednesday, he said, he dropped in for observation in Terrace Garden and saw a policeman there in the middle of the floor busy barring the "Turkey Trot," and he did it by two gestures, one to indicate that the man's left arm must be extended, and one that the languorous half-walk must not be substituted for the good old-fashioned twirl. Those simple rules, born of the bluecoat's own experience in suppression, cannot be improved upon, Prof. Duryea thinks.

Then, as a final contribution to the conference, the Duryeas signaled to the pianist, the "Gaby Glide" strains floated out across the room and away they went, with the dance at its worst. A faintly suppressed ripple of laughter could be heard, and there were frank chuckles when cheek touched cheek, and the languor of the movement was intensified.

And Here's "The Bunny Hug."

The afternoon was one of contrasts, and the Duryeas, he in a frock coat and she in a simple evening dress of white, gave way to Al Jolson and Florence Cable of the Winter Garden, she with her hat on, young and gay, and spirited in her dancing, he in high jollity, explaining in the vernacular and demonstrating with feet a-twinkle in patent leathers with brown cloth uppers. Melville Ellis was at the piano. The dancers were to show the variations, as emphasized by the footlights, and to intimate their origin. Some of their versions of the dance brought gasps from the committee.

Jolson said he picked up the art as he saw it on the Barbary Coast, where he used to sell papers as a San Francisco boy. "It's all the same dance," he said, "call it 'Turkey Trot' or 'Bunny Hug' as you will. Stripped of the variations, despoiled of the precautions, all the new variants drop insensibly into the one thing. There in those fifteen or twenty dance halls, thriving as they did in his day on the patronage of the half-drunken sailors welcomed at that port, the dance was born.

"The unsteady tar could only half skate about the floor to begin with.

"And then," said the graphic Jolson, "the orchestra would hit it up, and they would rag it a bit, and then strike out on the minors that are more seductive, I guess—and get closer and closer, and snap

CUBANS BLOCK OUR NAVAL BASE PLAN

Legislature Proposes to Adjourn Without Passing Budget Appropriating Necessary Funds.

$5,000,000 FOR PENSIONS

This Sum Voted to Embarrass Gomez—Attempt to Loot the Treasury Is Sharply Criticised.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 26.—Piqued by the menace of American intervention on account of the veterans' agitation, and at variance over other Cuban domestic affairs, Senators and Deputies propose a joint resolution to adjourn on Monday until April 1 without approving the general budget, which President Gomez submitted early in November.

The budget contains extra diplomatic credits to enable the Government to expropriate an additional tract which the Americans require to enlarge the Guantanamo naval base. Yet, despite the repeated admonitions of President Gomez and Speaker Ferrara, the Deputies have voted pensions and so-called road bills aggregating $5,000,000, calculated to take precedence of the administrative expenditures.

This attempt to loot the Treasury, cripple the Gomez régime, and prevent the punctuality with which international obligations must be met, 's sharply criticised in diplomatic, financial, and commercial circles.

While the French, German, and British Legations are pressing their subjects' claims, Minister Beaupré, in a second note, admonishes Secretary of State Sanguilly for the further delay in the Guantanamo matter, the solution of which is gravely inconveniencing Washington.

El Dia intimates that Congressmen of prominence are implicated in the syndicate reported to have acquired the Jane property for coaling in the interest of Germans.

Secretary Sanguilly denies that German overtures have been made for the property, and states that the parties purchasing it are covered by an American charter through A. H. Lee of John Street, Washington.

A dispatch in the Ultima Hora represents Secretary Knox as demanding Monteagudo's removal.

The Havana Chamber of Commerce and the Agrarian League urge the removal of customs barriers against the United States.

Ignoring the Nunez-Gomez compact, the veterans are secretly continuing the agitation.

El Triunfo, the inspired Executive organ, in a leading article this morning, defends the Spanish guerrilleros domiciled on the island as sober and industrious employes on the sugar, tobacco, and banana estates. Scattered in Santa Clara Province, they number 30,000; in Havana, 20,000; in Matanzas, 16,000; in Pinar del Rio, 14,000; in Camaguey, 3,500, and in Oriente, 25,000, and are an important factor in Cuban progress. Many are closely allied by intermarriage with the families of native patriots of prominence.

FLIES THROUGH SNOWSTORM.

Beattie Takes Two Passengers for Sail in Air Over Long Island.

Special to The New York Times.

NASSAU BOULEVARD, L. I., Jan. 26.—George Beattie, the aviator, took two passengers on a flight to Hicksville and return this afternoon through a snow storm. The fliers were gone for an hour and fifty-three minutes and when they returned all three were almost stiff with the cold.

Beattie flew high both going and coming, apparently finding the air currents far aloft more easy to negotiate than those nearer ground.

A number of persons watched the start and finish with particular interest as few believed he would attempt a flight while the snow flakes filled the air. Beattie and his passengers, Dr. A. G. Beldon of Boston, and Eugene Raymond of New York, were bundled up warmly, but before they got back to the aviation field here, all three were ready for more clothes.

Dr. Beldon and Mr. Raymond declared they wouldn't have missed the trip, and Beattie said it was a lot of fun to fly through the driving snow.

MORGAN TREASURES COMING TO AMERICA

THIS TAX WOULD BE $750,000

Mr. Morgan Is 75 and Feels That It Is Time to Arrange for the Final Disposition of His Collections.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 27.—The London Times, in reference to the Morgan collection at the Victoria-Albert Museum, prints letters from President Read of the Society of Antiquaries and Fitz Henry, Morgan's representative, which suggest Mr. Morgan's reason for withdrawing the collection from England.

It arises simply out of the financial policy of the British Government. Mr. Morgan, as we are reminded by President Read, who has known him intimately and frequently discussed this matter with him, is 75 years old.

Like a purdent man of business, he has been looking to the future, the inevitable future, and finds that if these costly things were still on deposit at South Kensington at the time of his death, his executors would have to pay estate duty upon them. So says Somerset House, whose verdict on such matters in point is final.

It matters not that these things have been freely lent for the instruction and pleasure of the English public for many years. If the owner dies while they are still in this country, his heirs must pay the duty.

Suppose the collection is worth a million sterling. The duty would be $750,000, and that is a sum which even Mr. Morgan naturally is unwilling to hand over to the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He would prefer to spend it in his own way, probably in increasing his collections, which ultimately are to come to his own countrymen.

WENT ABROAD TO ARRANGE.

Mr. Morgan's Trip Partly to Make Transportation Plans.

The news brought by THE TIMES wireless dispatches from London yesterday that J. Pierpont Morgan, President of the Metropolitan Museum of Art of this city, is to bring here the part of his famous collection that he has had on exhibition in London crystallizes what has for a long time been rumored.

The rumor has now become a certainty, for it has been verified by J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., and by Edward Robinson, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where the collection will be exhibited when they arrive. These are Mr. Morgan's art treasures that have been for some years in the Victoria and Albert, formerly the South Kensington Museum. The time set for their arrival in this country is indefinitely stated to be "in the near future."

It was learned here yesterday that Mr. Morgan called on Collector William Loeb, Jr., at the Custom House three months ago to consult him regarding the transfer of his famous collection. Mr. Morgan told the Collector that part of the collection had been made by his father, Junius Morgan, and most of it was more than 100 years old, and therefore free from duty.

Collector Loeb, in order to expedite the transfer of the collection to this country, will send an Assistant Appraiser from New York to London to supervise the packing of it, and with Lorenzo Chance, confidential agent of the Treasury in London, see that the customs regulations are complied with. By this arrangement the whole collection will be conveyed straight from the pier on arrival here without any opening of packages.

It was also learned yesterday that one of the objects of Mr. Morgan's trip to Europe was to make arrangements for the transportation of the collection.

It can be said, moreover, on authority, that the reason of the removal is not, as intimated in the dispatches, that Mr. Morgan was dissatisfied with the way in which the collection was displayed or the manner in which they were cared for, but because Mr. Morgan felt, as a patriotic American, that the place for the collection was the United States. Its transportation here before this time, however, has been impossible because of the prohibitive duties on art and art-craft treasures. It may be that Mr. Morgan so far appreciates the kindness which the South Kensington Museum authorities have shown in their care of the collections that he may not remove them all at once, but will arrange for their transportation here gradually.

Remarkable Treasures.

Mr. Morgan has no catalogue of these collections in this city at present. They include, in a general way, his collection of bronzes of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and his enamels of the twelfth century. They also number among them his collection of Italian faience of the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries, some of his tapestries, and his collection of stained glass, as well as his collection of old jewels, pendants, and so forth, and a part of his collection of watches.

Their owner had not stated what disposition he will make of the collections when they reach this country or where they will be displayed publicly, if at all.

The talk of Mr. Morgan's famous European collections being brought to this country has been going on for years. Ten years ago, when the duties on works of art coming into the United States were so heavy, it was said that it would cost at least $3,000,000 to get them into this country, and that was thought a conservative estimate. Mr. Morgan at that time was fighting the duties on art works, but members of his family said that it was on principle, not because he had any idea of bringing his own collections to America. Three years ago Mr. Morgan's daughter, Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton, talking to a NEW YORK TIMES representative, said:

"My father has been very active in trying to have the duty taken off works of art, but I do not really think that he will bring any of the wonderful collections that he has in London to this country. You see, he began certain collections on the other side of the water and I think he will feel that he wishes to keep them there."

Last Fall, however, when Mr. Morgan's famous Jewel Collection was shown in the Victoria and Albert Museum, it was rumored in England that the exhibition was really a farewell view of all of Mr. Morgan's treasures in the Victoria and Albert Museum. This is the best known. Mr. Robinson of the Met-

BIG FIRE NEAR CONVENT.

East Side Blaze Sweeps Factories, but the Sisters' Home Is Saved.

Thirty-five Sisters and the Mother Superior of St. Gabriel's Convent at 229-231 East Thirty-sixth Street were roused from sleep shortly after 11 o'clock last night when a fire started in the five-story factory buildings behind them at 222 and 224 East Thirty-seventh Street. They dressed and prepared to leave the convent, but though three alarms were turned in from the fire the firemen kept it from them. Later they served coffee to the firemen.

How the blaze started is not known. It was first seen by a man passing in the street, who turned in an alarm. When the first firemen arrived the blaze had extended from the second floor of 222 and 224, where it started, to both cellar and roof.

The fire ate through the quarters of the Vogel Cabinet Works, the J. Schlessenger carpenter shop and the Excelsior woodworking plant in 222 and 224.

Three alarms were turned in and it was nearly two hours before the fire was got under control. It did about $25,000 damage.

MORE COLD AND SNOW.

Fall of an Inch Comes in on a Chilly Nor'wester.

The average temperature yesterday was 18 degrees above zero, the lowest being 14 at 9 A. M. A cold northwest wind brought another snowfall, which began shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continued in light flurries until 8 o'clock.

Owing to the high wind the snow did not lay thickly on the ground and was not more than an inch deep in the streets of the city.

The prospects for to-day are more snow and warmer weather.

CROSS LAKE ERIE IN AUTO.

Only One Bad Place in the Ice, Where Planks Were Used.

PUT-IN-BAY, Ohio, Jan. 26.—An automobile trip across ice-covered Lake Erie and return was completed here to-day by J. C. West, John Darr, Capt. W. E. Smith, L. B. De Witt, and John P. Cangney of Catawba Island. Cangney was the host of the party. The trip was made in a 3,300-pound machine.

The trip began yesterday. The party went first to Pelee Island, where they had dinner, then proceeding to Leamington, Ont., remaining there over night. This morning the return trip was begun.

According to the members of the party the ice was in fine condition for motoring between the Bass Islands and Pelee Island. Between Leamington and Pelee Island, however, they encountered a dangerous crack which had to be bridged with planks taken along for the purpose.

THEY WHO CRY FOR BREAD

Not Calmed by Gifts of Libraries, Says Rabbi Krauskopf.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 26.—"When a great mass of people clamor for bread, it is idle to hope that they will be calmed by reports of the tens of millions of dollars given for the study of Greek, Latin or Hebrew," said Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf of Philadelphia, in an address at B'nai Judah Temple here to-night. "In well regulated homes cake and candy are not served before the staples of life. May we not expect of the philanthropists the wisdom displayed by the average housekeeper?

"Some day philanthropists will recognize that there are other and nearer duties than endowing universities or founding libraries or other kindred institutions."

Rabbi Krauskopf spoke on "City Congestion and Farm Desolation," and suggested as a remedy for the conditions in the city the colonization of the West.

AT 60 WALKS 50 MILES.

S. E. Cavin's Birthday Tramp Between Philadelphia and Wilmington.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—Samuel E. Cavin, lawyer and member of the Union League Club, celebrated his 60th birthday to-day by walking to Wilmington and return, a distance of approximately fifty miles. He left the Union League at 4 o'clock this morning and reached Wilmington at 11:45 A. M., and arrived at the Union League again at 9:45 to-night.

Mr. Cavin started the trip in a blinding snowstorm, and the snow continued all day, making the going very heavy. Mr. Cavin declared that he attributes his splendid health to the amount of walking he does, and advises all business men to follow his example and they will not be troubled with indigestion, gout, or rheumatism.

OVERSTUDY KILLED HER.

Miss Cora Warner Broke Down Under the Strain of Her School Work.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 26.—Miss Cora May Warner, sixteen-year-old daughter of Daniel D. Warner, a farmer of New Hackensack, died here to-day from a nervous breakdown due to overstudy. She was in the senior class at the Poughkeepsie High School, and, ambitious to graduate with distinctive honors in June, studied at night and during her hours of recreation.

In preparing for the Regents' examinations in addition to the regular school work, Miss Warner worked so hard that her health gave way. Yesterday she was taken to Vassar Hospital for treatment, but the physicians could not save her.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Ruth Robinson, 20 years old, a student in the Law School of the Northwestern University, has been stricken blind as the result of overstudy. She had studied until nearly midnight for weeks. She worked even later Tuesday preparing for examinations. On awakening Wednesday she gave a scream that aroused all in the house where she roomed.

"I'm blind! Everything is dark before me!" she cried.

Physicians were called, made many tests, and decided to hurry the young woman to her home.

Ex-Treasurer of Michigan Pardoned.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 26.—Gov. Osborn has signed the parole of ex-State Treasurer Frank P. Glazier of Chelsea. Glazier was sentenced in February, 1910, to serve ten to fifteen years in Jackson Prison for having converted to his own use State funds deposited in a Chelsea bank which he controlled and which failed. Physicians said he would die unless released. The prisoner's wife in a postal card campaign recently obtained 30,000 signatures of persons who favored the parole.

ASKED T. F. RYAN TO AID WILSON

Watterson Appealed to Him for Money Because Ryan "Has No Axe to Grind."

TELLS TILLMAN ALL ABOUT IT

Says Wilson's Managers Were Delighted at the Prospect—Acquits Col. Harvey.

WILSON INDIGNANTLY DENIES

And Col. Watterson Discourses Further of the Candidate's Unfortunate Peculiarities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—Col. Henry Watterson to-day made public the most important disclosures yet published concerning the break between Gov. Woodrow Wilson and Col. George Harvey. The report persistently circulated by William F. McCombs, the Governor's campaign manager, and others close to Mr. Wilson, that the break resulted from the Governor's refusal to tie himself to Thomas F. Ryan, is branded to-night by Col. Watterson as a "lie made out of whole cloth." The Governor, says Col. Watterson, knows positively that it is a lie, and "owes it to his own honor to repudiate that story and to disavow those who are striving to inject calumny into the public mind."

Mr. Watterson states that at the instance of the Governor he busied himself in raising funds for the campaign of the Governor. His efforts were not fruitless, but in casting about he remembered his friend Mr. Ryan, who is a Democrat and whom he describes as "disinterested." He at once suggested him to the Wilson managers, and the suggestion "delighted" them. Col. Harvey had nothing to do with the matter, says Col. Watterson, and knows nothing of it.

That is how Col. Watterson disposes of the Ryan end of the story. What was the precise cause of the break he does not disclose, but he leaves it to be inferred that Gov. Wilson was merely afraid that Col. Harvey's known relations to Mr. Ryan might lead to the ultimate discovery that Mr. Ryan's aid had been acceptable to the Wilson supporters. Of the truth of his assertions that the effort to get Mr. Ryan to back the Wilson boom had nothing to do with the break Mr. Watterson says he has in his possession indisputable proof which he will show if his statements are questioned."

Col. Watterson's explanation of the Harvey incident is contained in a correspondence with Senator Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina. On Jan. 24 Mr. Tillman issued a statement expressing surprise at Mr. Watterson's "trying to foist upon the country this story with material facts suppressed," and the next day Col. Watterson, through Representative Swager Sherley, communicated a formal demand in writing that the Senator tell upon what authority he charged that facts had been suppressed.

The Senator replied this morning. To that letter Col. Watterson replied to-day with friendly expressions for Mr. Tillman, but with the sharpest denunciation of Gov. Wilson that the incident has yet aroused.

"He is a man of ability," said the Colonel's letter in conclusion concerning Mr. Wilson. "In some ways he might prove a candidate of availability, but I fear that if he became our President we might discover all too late that he possessed personal peculiarities which would prove disastrous."

What the Two Wrote.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25, 1912.

My Dear Sir: Referring to the so-called "Harvey-Watterson incident," I find you quoted by the newspapers of this morning to the following effect: "I had given Henry Watterson credit for more sense than to try to foist off a story like this with the material facts concealed." The man who makes a public statement with "the material facts concealed" is little other than a scoundrel. I have the right, therefore, to demand of you upon what warrant of authority you make this serious accusation against me, and to ask a reply through my friend, the Hon. Swager Sherley of Kentucky.

With great respect,
HENRY WATTERSON.
Hon. B. R. Tillman, &c.

To this letter Senator Tillman replied:

United States Senate,
Washington, Jan. 26, 1912.

My Dear Sir: In your note of Jan. 25, handed me by the Hon. Swager Sherley, you call my attention to an interview which I had given out in reference to the Harvey-Watterson-Wilson incident in which I say "I had given Henry Watterson credit for more sense than to try to foist off a story like this with the material facts concealed."

You demand to know "upon what warrant of authority you make this serious accusation against me."

In your statement to the press you described in detail the rupture between Gov. Wilson and Col. Harvey, but said nothing as to what caused it. All the leading papers of the country seem to know why Gov. Wilson severed relations with Col. Harvey, and you as a leading newspaper man and self-confessed expert groomer of Presidential candidates must have known it at the time your statement was published. I very properly concluded that you knew the reasons for the rupture, and when you made public the manner in which it occurred without giving the causes, you were unquestionably concealing the material facts.

Very respectfully yours,
B. R. TILLMAN.
Col. Henry Watterson, Washington, D. C.

Watterson's Explanation.

Col. Watterson lost no time replying to this letter. The day it was received he wrote as follows:

Washington, Jan. 26, 1912.

My Dear Sir: I have never pretended to be a groomer of Presidential candidates, expert or otherwise, but I desire your good opinion and wrote with that, as well as the truth of this matter, in mind.

I am with you, Senator, in wishing a Democrat and not a pseudo Republican for our Presidential nominee. It was no less from a sense of party duty than of justice as between man and man that I made the statement to which—upon a total misapprehension of the facts—you take exception.

I have been aware for nearly a week that recognized spokesmen for Gov. Wilson were industriously circulating the story that the real reason why Gov. Wilson broke with Col. Harvey was that Col. Harvey had tried to bring Thomas F. Ryan into the Governor's campaign. But until you gave credence to the story it could not be invested with any responsible authority. Its origin was mysterious, its circulation surreptitious. Consequently there has been up to this time nothing either to deny or recognize.

Now, Senator, I know of my own knowledge that that story is a lie made out of whole cloth. If any person ventures to question this assertion I have in my possession proof conclusive which I hold myself ready to place before your honest and truth-seeking mind.

I do not accuse Gov. Wilson of originating or circulating this invention, manufactured to make a hero of him at the expense of the friend who has most effectually served him. I do not assume that he is aware of the dastardly work being done by his alleged agents, but the fact remains that Gov. Wilson knows as well as I do that the story is false. He may, or may not, feel that he owes any obligation to Col. Harvey. That is a matter of which he must be the judge. But I do insist that he owes it to his own honor to repudiate that story and to disavow those who are striving to inject the calumny into the public mind.

At Gov. Wilson's instance I had undertaken to assist his accredited managers in raising the considerable sums of money needful to the prosecution of his campaign and in this my efforts were not wholly unfruitful. As the business proceeded, the name of Thomas F. Ryan not unnaturally came into my mind. He is a Democrat. He is a Virginian. He is my friend. Knowing him to be a disinterested man, having no axe to grind, I hoped that I might induce him to help out what I believed a worthy cause. Gov. Wilson's managers were delighted with the suggestion. Col. Harvey had nothing whatever to do with it, and as far as I am aware knew nothing whatever about it.

Throughout this unhappy affair I have been an unwilling witness—in its consequences somewhat of an innocent bystander—having been up to the hour of the Harvey incident, a sincere believer in Gov. Wilson. He is a man of ability. In some ways he might prove a candidate of availability, but I fear that if he became our President we might discover all too late that he possesses personal peculiarities which would prove disastrous. We want in the White House a man of broad mind, as well as polished intellect, of heart grateful and kind, no less than daring.

I remain, with great respect,
Your obedient servant,
HENRY WATTERSON.
Hon. B. R. Tillman.

Col. Watterson has not yet received from Senator Tillman a reply to the last letter.

UNTRUE, SAYS WILSON.

Never Authorized Any One to Ask Watterson to Solicit Funds.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson was in the city last night and took a midnight train for Boston. At the Grand Central Station he was met by a TIMES reporter and a copy of the correspondence between Col. Henry Watterson and Senator B. R. Tillman was shown to him. Gov. Wilson was greatly interested in the letters, and smiled broadly when he read certain passages.

When he came to that part of Col. Watterson's second letter to Mr. Tillman which stated that Col. Watterson had undertaken to assist in raising money for Gov. Wilson's campaign, the Governor suddenly grew serious. Banging his suit case with his fist, he said:

"Great Scott! What do you think of that? It is absolutely untrue."

He then issued this formal statement:

"So far as I am concerned the statement that Col. Watterson was requested to assist in raising money in my behalf is absolutely without foundation. Neither I nor anyone authorized to represent me ever made any such request of him."

When Gov. Wilson reached that passage in which Mr. Tillman refers to Col. Watterson as a "self-confessed expert groomer of Presidential candidates," the Governor laughed heartily.

"Who is Swager Shirley?" he asked. "Isn't there another 'g' in the name?"

The Governor again laughed when he came to the mention of the name of Thomas F. Ryan.

"Will you comment upon Mr. Ryan's connection with the controversy?" the Governor was asked.

"Not a word," he replied. "I knew nothing about it until I read these letters. I know nothing about it, and, anyway, my statement covers everything."

"Will you take this opportunity to clear up the Harvey-Watterson controversy, Gov. Wilson?"

"Does it need any further clearing up?" was all he would say.

LONGWORTH CHEERS TAFT.

For His Renomination, He Tells the President After Oyster Bay Visit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The friends of the Administration are more encouraged to-day over what is construed as a word from Oyster Bay than they have been over any incident of the preliminary campaign, with the possible exception of the failure of Rough Rider tactics to stampede the convention in the Fourth Oklahoma District. This "message from Oyster Bay" is deduced from a statement made by Col. Roosevelt's son-in-law, Representative Nicholas Longworth, on leaving the White House to-day. Mr. Longworth has just returned from a visit to his father-in-law, and to-day he announced in unmistakable terms that he is still supporting President Taft for the nomination, and only him.

"I have learned nothing," said Mr. Longworth, referring to his visit to Sagamore Hill, "that will cause me to change my attitude toward President Taft. I am for his renomination and election. I cannot discuss the attitude of any one but myself, and for Mr. Roosevelt's attitude you'll have to ask him; he is perfectly competent to state it. But I do know that nothing has occurred to change me one peg from my announced attitude six weeks ago thoroughly indorsing Mr. Taft."

There was a steady stream of visitors at the White House to-day assuring the President of their loyalty and of the loyalty of various parts of the country. Ex-United States Senator John L. Wilson of Washington was one of these. He is owner of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, and has quite a following on the Pacific Coast. He said that if the Republicans repudiate their own President by refusing a renomination they will be beaten at the polls for fifteen years to come.

"I think anything else would mean annihilation," he said warmly. "I believe that he will be renominated and re-elected."

STORE THIEVES ASHAMED.

Two from Salt Lake Identified, One as a Bank Cashier's Wife.

Two well-gowned women came before Justices Steinert, Moss, and Salmon in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday morning, and, with their handkerchiefs before their faces, pleaded guilty to having stolen $24 worth of lace from a Thirty-fourth Street department store. When George Gordon Battle appeared in their defense it became evident that the names they had given of "Mary and Elizabth Brown" were fictitious. It was disclosed by the testimony of Probation Officer Bohn that the younger woman was Miss Agnes Pearl Weller, daughter of the late E. M. Weller of Salt Lake City, a well-known mining man, and that the other was her sister, Mrs. Catherine Smith, the wife of the cashier of the Deseret Savings Bank of the same city. At the time of their arrest they had more than $100 in their purse.

Mr. Battle in pleading for them said: "I do not wish for clemency in this case because the women come from families of position and wealth. I know that that fact only makes their theft more heinous. But I wish to remind your Honors that the defendants have already been in prison since Tuesday."

Justice Steinert imposed on each a fine of 100, and reprimanded the women. They hurried out of court, and went away with Mr. Battle in an automobile.

Special to The New York Times.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Catherin Smith is the wife of Judge Elias A. Smith, Cashier of the Deseret National Bank. Miss Pearl Weller is Mrs. Smith's sister and the daughter of Mormon Bishop J. L. Weller. Both are very prominent in Salt Lake society. Mr. Smith's father was Probate Judge here in earlier days, and Smith himself was also a Judge. Smith said that he had a wire yesterday from the women in New York saying that the whole thing was a mistake.

GOV. GLASSCOCK HERE BOOMING ROOSEVELT

After Meeting the Colonel at The Outlook Office He Arranges to be Interviewed.

SURE ROOSEVELT IS THE MAN

And That He'll Accept, but Be Sure to Understand the Colonel Didn't Tell Him So.

A middle-sized, wiry looking man, who might at first glance be either a farmer or a merchant, shouldered his way through a waiting throng at The Outlook office in Twenty-second Street yesterday afternoon and demanded to be shown into the inner office of Col. Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt at that moment emerged and greeted the stranger effusively. This is what waiting reporters heard:

"How do you do, Colonel."

"By George, I am glad to see you, Governor."

Investigation disclosed that the caller was William E. Glasscock, Governor of West Virginia. During the next few hours it developed that Col. Roosevelt was not particularly anxious that the newspaper reporters should interview Gov. Glasscock in The Outlook office, so it was arranged after diplomatic negotiations that the interview should take place at the Imperial Hotel. Just why Col. Roosevelt desired the interview should take place somewhere else than in The Outlook office, where most of the work of his political boom has been going on for the past few weeks, was not disclosed. At any rate, a phalanx of reporters met Gov. Glasscock at the Imperial and were ushered into his room.

"Have you any chewing tobacco?" asked the Governor, crossing his legs and waiting for questions. No one could accommodate him. He admitted that he had had luncheon with the Colonel and that he had some information of consequence to divulge.

"Is Col. Roosevelt a candidate for the Republican nomination?" was the first question.

"I do not know if he is a candidate," replied the Governor, with a drawl. "My personal opinion is that he will accept the nomination, but that opinion is not based upon anything the Colonel said to me. I don't think the Colonel is a candidate, or ever will be a candidate in the same sense that Mr. Clark, Mr. Harmon, or Mr. Wilson are candidates. From my talk with the Colonel I gathered that he will be a candidate after he has received the nomination. My feelings, of course, may be entirely different from the Colonel's. I feel, personally, that no matter how Col. Roosevelt feels, I have a right to my own preference, and my preference is for him. I think the people from my district want Roosevelt, and will be satisfied with no one else.

His Opinion Unchanged Here.

"A great number of Republicans in West Virginia," went on Gov. Glasscock, after communing with himself awhile, "are in favor of Col. Roosevelt. Personally, I believe Mr. Roosevelt should be nominated. Moreover, I believe he ought to accept the nomination. Of course, you understand, I am authorized to speak for no one. I speak for myself alone."

"Do you intend to go back to your State and spread the news that Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate?" he was asked.

"Well," after another long pause, "I stand squarely upon the interview I gave out before I came North. I said then that if Mr. Roosevelt was nominated, in my opinion, he would be a patriot and serve his country."

"Were you encouraged by your visit here to think that Mr. Roosevelt will be a candidate?"

"My opinion now is the same as when I gave out my interview," the Governor fenced.

"Are you more confident now than you were before you came?"

"Well," replied the Governor, stroking his lean face reflectively, "I am for Roosevelt."

"To put it more frankly, do you think Mr. Roosevelt will be nominated?"

"Yes, I certainly do," was the reply.

"Do you think he will be elected?"

"There is no doubt about it," came the answer.

"Do you think Mr. Roosevelt will accept the nomination?"

"I think he will have to be nominated before he will be a candidate."

"Do you think Mr. Roosevelt should make known his position at this time and announce his candidacy?"

Gov. Glasscock took a long breath, and after studying the ceiling several minutes as if he found a reply in that locality he said:

"I am merely a farmer. Col. Roosevelt has the brains and ability to answer that question better than I can. It is a question which Col. Roosevelt alone can decide.

"No, I want to have my attitude thoroughly understood. I am not authorized to accept or decline the nomination for Mr. Roosevelt. Personally, I am for him. I don't see how he could decline. Of course I don't know how he looks at it."

"How about the third-term argument?" some one asked as a last hope.

The Governor bristled immediately. "A third term," said he, "is not more objectionable than a second term under certain conditions. A candidate who uses his office to obtain a second term is much more to be frowned upon than the man who seeks a third term after he has been out of office. If Col. Roosevelt wants to accept the nomination this year no accusation could be brought against him that he had used patronage or political power to obtain it. Of course, this means no reflection on President Taft. There is no moral or legal objection to Mr. Roosevelt being nominated this Summer.

Sure Enough for Roosevelt.

"Are you going back to West Virginia to help along the Roosevelt boom?" the Governor was next asked.

"I certainly am," he replied. "In West Virginia the rank and file of the people want Roosevelt. Why, even since I have been in New York I have received a telegram to the effect that a Roosevelt club has been organized in my State."

"If Mr. Roosevelt is not nominated at the Chicago Convention do you think any other Republican can win this Fall?"

"Well, I am a good Republican, and no matter who is nominated I will work hard for him," replied the Governor from West Virginia. "Do I think Col. Roosevelt will do the same? I certainly do. From what I know of the Colonel I think he will work just as hard for President Taft as he would for himself."

Gov. Glasscock felt sure that the sixteen delegates from West Virginia would cast their votes for Co.. Roosevelt in the convention.

"The delegates, so far as I know," he said, "will go to the convention uninstructed. But I am sure they will vote for Col. Roosevelt. Roosevelt is the strongest man in sight. Roosevelt is stronger and more popular now than he has ever been and I venture to say that if he is nominated and runs his plurality will be greater than ever before. Here is an indication of the feeling in our locality. We took a poll the other day among the people in a small town. The first poll showed 108 for Roosevelt to 13 for Taft. Another poll showed 46 for Roosevelt to 11 for Taft. Still another showed 30 for Roosevelt to 1 for La Follette and none for Taft. These indications cannot be overlooked. I am going back to West Virginia in a few days to work for an instructed delegation for Roosevelt at Chicago."

Gov. Glasscock was plainly nervous over the interview. He seemed to be specially anxious to avoid being put in the Ananias Club. Col. Roosevelt had arranged that he should give out an interview after leaving The Outlook offices, but after the Governor had talked for half an hour he apparently felt that he had not made himself sufficiently clear and late last night he again summoned the reporters to the home of Stuard Hirschman at 318 West Eighty-sixth Street and went over his interview again. He added nothing, however, to what he had already said.

Col. Roosevelt spent a busy day at The Outlook offices yesterday. His first visitor was Jason Yurran, who had provoked the Colonel a day or two before to say that he had not announced that he was a candidate, and that when he had anything to say he would state it over his own signature.

"I hope you are not displeased with me?" inquired Mr. Yurran anxiously, as he approached Mr. Roosevelt in the corridor. The Colonel by way of reply linked his arm through that of the venerable Kansan from Blue Rapids and told him that he was in the best of humor.

Later Mr. Yurran hastened to explain that what he meant to say when he stated the other day that Col. Roosevelt had said that he was ready to offer his services to his country was that the Colonel was ready to go to war or something like that. Any way Mr. Yurran felt sure that he had squared himself with the Colonel and that everything was now serene.

HE MUST RUN, SAYS FORT.

Roosevelt Only Can Make Republican Victory Sure.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 26.—Commenting editorially on Col. Roosevelt's attitude toward the Presidential nomination ex-Gov. Fort of New Jersey in his Lakewood paper to-day says:

"It matters little whether he gives his consent or not to allow his name to be used for President at the next Republican Convention. The people have the right to use it, and they will. The conflagration is on. The uprising is here. The people want him, and they are going to have him. He is democratic to the core. That he would refuse a popular demand that he accept a nomination for President no one believes. He is still a young man, and there is no reason why he should not run.

"He is concededly the only Republican who can assuredly be elected. He will, of course, lose some Republican votes. Any man as aggressive as he naturally would. But he will receive five Democratic votes for every Republican lost. He more truly represents the militant Republicanism of the hour than any other man. His nomination would mean enthusiasm, and an old-fashioned, vigorous campaign and victory. With him on the ticket New Jersey is Republican by 50,000; with any other man it is in doubt."

TAFT GOING TO OHIO

But Will Spend To-night and To-morrow in New York.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President Taft leaves Washington to-morrow on a five days' trip that will take him to New York, Cleveland, Columbus, and Akron, Ohio, the most important journey, in the eyes of many of his freinds, that he has planned since he got back from the West. The President was still suffering to-night from a cold.

Mr. Taft is scheduled to reach New York about 6 o'clock to-morrow night. He will attend the annual banquet of the Ohio Society, and "look in" on those of the West Virginia Society and the Aero Club of America, and will then visit the annual ball of the Home of Daughters of Jacob.

Leaving New York on Sunday night the President will reach Cleveland about noon Monday. His engagements there include luncheon with the Chamber of Commerce, a conference with ex-Gov. Myron T. Herrick, and a reception to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers late in the afternoon. On his way to the McKinley Day banquet of the Tippecanoe Club, the President will visit the students of the Cleveland Law School, and after the dinner will look in on that of the Hungarian Citizens.

His first engagement in Columbus Tuesday will be a reception at a hotel. His programme there includes luncheon with the Chamber of Commerce; dedication of the new Federal Building, and the McKinley Day banquet of the Columbus Glee Club. He will spend the night in Columbus, and Wednesday morning will meet the Republican editors, and after visiting the constitutional convention will leave about noon for Akron.

In Akron he will attend the banquet of the Chamber of Commerce. He will leave for Washington shortly before midnight.

In New York the President will be the guest over night of his brother, Henry W. Taft, and will attend three dinners.

This will be the President's first visit to Ohio since the Cincinnati elections last November. He will not talk about any of his political opponents, it was said to-night, but may review the achievements of his administration.

WHOM GOVERNORS FAVOR.

Roosevelt Gains One, but Democrats Are Undecided.

Three more Governors have sent telegrams to THE NEW YORK TIMES in response to its request for an expression of their preference for Presidential candidates. Gov. Oswald West of Oregon declares Gov. Woodrow Wilson is the favorite among the Democrats of his State, but is himself in favor of any clean progressive member of the party. Gov. Stubbs of Kansas is an enthusiastic Roosevelt man, and Gov. Joseph M. Brown of Georgia does not want as yet to say which candidate he will support.

The replies so far received may be tabulated thus:

DEMOCRATS.
Champ Clark	1
Judson Harmon	1
Gov. Marshall of Indiana	1
Oscar W. Underwood	1
Woodrow Wilson	1
Undecided	5
Total	10
REPUBLICANS.
Col. Roosevelt	5
President Taft	1
Total	6

These are the telegrams received by THE TIMES yesterday:

Salem, Ore., Jan. 26.

My choice is any good, clean, progressive Democrat. Would say Woodrow Wilson appears to be the favorite in this State.
OSWALD WEST, Governor.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 26.

Gov. Stubbs left for New York last night. He is enthusiastically for Roosevelt and believes that the salvation of the Republican Party will come through his nomination. Kansas is overwhelmingly for "T. R.," and without those letters no Republican seems to be able to spell victory.
DAVID D. LEAHY,
Secretary to the Governor.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 26.

Telegram received. I do not desire at this time to give expression with reference to Presidential candidates.
JOSEPH M. BROWN, Governor.

SOCIAL WORKERS SEE REAL 'TURKEY TROTS'

their fingers, and—and I guess I've said enough."

He was thunderously applauded as he and Miss Cable showed how it was done.

Dr. Grant No Censor.

Then, Dr. Grant was called upon to speak, and he spoke in part as a dissenter. He had declined to preside, he said, for he would not go on record as a censor of dancing.

"I fear me," he said, "that I take the undergraduate point of view of dancing, and still look on it as a complicated athletic exercise. I believe that when the young man has successfully piloted his partner through a crowded hall with the possible injection of a remark or two, his mind and emotions are pretty well taken up. It is dangerous for older people to delve in the psychology of the young, and I am one of those who believe that the workers are simpler in their attitude toward sex than we of sophisticated society.

"I am absolutely no censor of any kind of dancing, but I am champion of Mrs. Israels's committee, and know that up to a year ago, of all the dance halls in the city, there were not three that were fit for a girl to enter. One great trouble can be wiped out when we fully realize that, in the interests of the younger folk of the city drinking and dancing simply must be divorced. I am sure that this big gathering has come together, not to see something sensational or off color, but as public-spirited citizens to help in a great crusade."

The Committee's Work.

Throughout the afternoon, through all the summaries of the work the committee has done in excursion and vacation and dance hall study, Mrs. Israels kept it clearly emphasized that she and her associates are not aiming to destroy the scanty amusement resources of the working girls, but to clear them up, multiply them and expand them. Not merely to kill the bad dance halls by legislation and attack, but to provide good ones till the good day when the city shall have its own; that has been the idea, persistently clung to. Mr. Moskowitz wound up the conference by insisting that the committee was no society for the suppression of vice, but one dedicated to the big task of finding places where the buoyant spirits of those who "work to exist and live in their play" may find expression.

"The mothers of the poor are busy far into the night, ever toiling, and their girls are deprived of the personal, natural watchfulness. The task here is to provide for them a social chaperonage."

One thing that Mrs. Israels's committee has accomplished is the legislation that requires the licensing of dance halls. In using that weapon, the head of the Bureau of Licenses has had his troubles and he told of some of them yesterday, and incidentally said that that very morning, he had been served with a writ of certiorari from one dance hall that intends to test the law in the courts.

"The great trouble," said Mr. Walsh, "is that the bureau started with the duty of supervising hacks and cabs in Manhattan and that it now has to control the activities of 30 different businesses involving 60,000 licenses, and all with twenty-five Inspectors. It cannot help but be hap-hazard. It would be different if the bureau could expend in enlarging its forces all or nearly all of what it takes in in the way of fees, but of $360,000 taken in last year $275,00 had to be turned over to the city. In other words, ladies and gentlemen, the city is making a profit off some businesses on which it ought not to make a profit."

Among those who attended the conference yesterday were Mrs. Selden Bacon, Jeanne Cassard, Dr. and Mrs. H. Durant Cheever, Mrs. Melville Cane, Caroline B. Dows, Mrs. Magee Ellsworth, Mrs. William Einstein, Mrs. Howard Gans, Mrs. William R. Grace, Mrs. Barclay Hazard, Mrs. Edward R. Hewitt, the Rev. W. R. Jelliffe, Mrs. Percy Jackson, Mrs. Gilbert Jones, Mrs. George McAneny, Mrs. William C. De Mille, Mrs. V. Everit Macy, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Carlotta Nicoll, Mrs. Benjamin Nicoll, Mrs. William Church Osborn, Herbert B. Odell, Jr., Mrs. Herbert Parsons, Mrs. James Tolman Pyle, Mrs. William Rand, Jr., the Rev. and Mrs. John P. Peters, Mrs. Sprague-Smith, Edward O. Stitt, Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mrs. Joel Spingarn, William Jay Schieffelin, Percy Straus, and Mrs. Arthur C. Train.

In the limited list of those to whom invitations were sent but who could not be detected in the crowd were Mrs. Archibald Alexander, Robert K. Adler, Prof. and Mrs. Felix Adler, Sadie American, Mrs. Francis McNeil Bacon, Jr., Mrs. Lindon W. Bates, Mrs. Henry B. Binsse, Charles S. Bernheimer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Browne, Mrs. Clarence Burns, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Fred A. Bishop, Rachel Crothers, Mrs. John Corbin, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Prof. and Mrs. Morris Loeb, Mrs. Philip Lydig, Henry Morgenthau, Mrs. Gilbert H. Montague, Park Commissioner Stover, Mrs. Robert Albert Sands, Benjamin Traitel, Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Lyndsay Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Warburg, Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., Mrs. Gordon Wendell, and Mrs. Everett P. Wheeler.

DUKE GOES AWAY, HOPING TO RETURN

Appreciates New York Hospitality, and Is Sure King George Would Enjoy a Visit to Us.

PRINCESS WAVES FAREWELL

Her Face the Last Seen as the Train Pulls Out for Ottawa—Duke Makes Gift to Detective Funston.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia left New York last evening for Ottawa, in the official car of the Canadian Government, the York, which was attached to the Montreal Express, leaving the Grand Central Station at 7:25. Just before leaving the Duke expressed himself, through his secretary and aid, Lieut. Col. Lowther, as having had a jolly good time.

The ducal party were accompanied to the station by their host and hostess, Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, and their son, Ogden Mills Reid. They reached the platform by way of the freight elevator from the Forty-fifth Street concourse, ten minutes before the train was scheduled to leave, the gates being kept closed until the distinguished visitors had entered their car.

Farewells were said on the platform, Mrs. Reid kissing the Duchess and the Princess on the left cheek, afterward courtesying. As the train pulled out of the station the last of the royal party seen was Princess Patricia, whose smiling face looked out from the car window like a picture in a frame, while she waved her hand in a charming adieu.

Duke Hopes to Come Again.

The Duke, in the first place, was tremendously pleased with the widespread hospitality apparent wherever he went, and he very much regretted the fact that he was unable to accept one-fifth of the invitations which he had received since his arrival in New York. It was with regret that their Royal Highnesses' visit could not be prolonged, and they very much hope to make another visit later on.

What particularly pleased the Duke was the opportunity afforded his Royal Highness of appearing informally both at social functions and on his sightseeing tours. In the latter respect the Duke enjoyed to the highest degree the study of the people of New York, and the occasions when he could mingle informally with the early and late crowds on Fifth Avenue and Broadway, thus observing at close range the customs and characteristics not only of the working people but of those who rode in motor cars.

Furthermore, the royal visitor was never embarrassed by the constant passing through crowds or being jostled, as he was upon several occasions, when he visited certain congested sections of the city. Nor was the amiability of the Duke ruffled by the incessant activity on the part of the photographers. At all times, when touring the city, his Royal Highness felt that the people were interested, but never intrusive. In fact, the Duke felt rather amused at the constant skirmishing of the camera men, realizing that this also was a spirit of good will made manifest in a rather singular way.

The Duke was also greatly impressed with the magnificence of the private homes where he had been entertained, and he was particularly struck with the vast and notable collections of art which he had seen in the public museums and private art galleries, as well as in the private homes he had visited. He was also very much gratified with the opportunity of meeting and talking with so many representative American men, and he found the interchange of ideas with them most delightful.

As regards New York City his royal Highness looked upon the metropolis of the Western world as having an individuality entirely its own, quite unlike that of any other city he had ever visited. He was especially pleased with his visit to the Metropolitan Tower, which gave him a striking impression of the might of the city. He remarked especially on the height, and symmetry of the buildings as a fitting expression of the progressive spirit of New York.

Sure King George Would Like Us.

As to a visit here of his nephew, King George V., and Queen Mary, he was not aware of any such plan at present on the part of their Majesties, but he hoped that they would come, and he believed from his own experience that they would be most pleased with their visit.

Just before leaving the Ambassador's residence for the train the Duke summoned Lieut. William Funston, who was detailed by Police Commissioner Waldo to keep a watchful eye upon the royal visitors while in town, and presented him with a pair of gold link cuff buttons, inscribed with the Duke's royal crest, and reposing in a small leather case which also bore the royal crest and the name of the jewelers to the royal family in London.

The Duke asked the Lieutenant in a very cordial manner if he would accept this little token in remembrance of his visit to New York. The Lieutenant accepted the memento with a smile and a slight bend of the knee, whereupon the Duke added that he was very thankful for the gracious courtesy extended to him by the city in detailing some one to look after his welfare. He then paid a compliment to the police, and expressed his appreciation of the courteous treatment he had received from the men on the force during his trips around town, concluding with the remark that he thought the traffic regulations were very fine.

His Impression of Washington.

Shortly after the return of the Duke early yesterday morning from Washington, Lieut. Col. Lowther handed out to the reporters an interview in which his Royal Highness paid a gracious tribute to President Taft and the people of the United States. The interview was the result of notes which the Duke's secretary had made during his visit to the National Capital, and was as follows:

H. R. H. much pleased with visit to Washington and his reception by Mr. Taft. Speaking at the embassy after dinner in response to Mr. Knox's toast of "The King," he replied as per attached notes:

Observed that at his last visit he attended the inspection of a battery of artillery on the ground where the embassy now stands.

Was impressed with the workmanlike appearance of the cavalry escort.

Thanks to Taft for his words of welcome.

Regrets that his second visit has taken place so long after his first, which was forty years ago.

Full of admiration for the energy and progress on all sides.

His brother, the late King Edward, often spoke with pleasure of his visit to the States in 1860.

As Governor General of Canada he wishes to say that whatever political changes might take place in the Dominion the sentiment of the Canadian people was now and always would be one of friendliness toward the United States.

He has been delighted to have this opportunity of meeting the President, by whom, as by the American public, he has been received in so cordial a fashion.

In conclusion he proposed the health of Mr. Taft.

The Duke's Last Day Here.

The Duke arrived at the Pennsylvania Station from Washington in the private car Cygnet with his secretary at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. His Royal Highness was still sleeping, so the car was shunted on a siding. At 7 o'clock the Duke arose and had breakfast in the car.

After arriving at the home of his host plans were completed for the carrying out of the social programme of the last day of their Royal Highnesses in New York. During the forenoon the Duke, with Ambassador Reid and Capt. Rivers-Bulkeley, visited the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, the magnificent marble building at Madison Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street.

Presiding Justice George L. Ingraham received the distinguished visitors and showed them through the law library, pointing out the paintings and other works of art. The Duke declared that it was the most remarkable court building he had ever seen. The party remained here about an hour. There was no court yesterday, and Justice Ingraham was the only Justice in the building.

Meantime the Duchess and the Princess Patricia, with their hostess, Mrs. Reid, and Miss Annie Pelley, the lady-in-waiting, had motored down to the Bryant Park Studio building, where they paid a call at the studio of Howard G. Cushing. Afterward they were driven to the Knoedler galleries at 556 Fifth Avenue, where they were joined by the Duke and Ambassador Reid.

The royal party remained here for some time, viewing the loan exhibition of old masters, for the benefit of the Artists' Fund and Artists' Aid Societies, Roland Knoedler pointing out the most treasured paintings of the collection which is insured for $4,000,000.

The visitors recognized several of the pictures as having hung in the great houses of England, and commented upon the remarkable quality of the examples of British portrait painting.

From here the royal party motored to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas Sloane, 2 West Fifty-second Street, where Mrs. Sloane entertained at luncheon in their honor. From here the Duchess and the Princess, with Mrs. Reid, called upon Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt at their residence, 660 Fifth Avenue. Later Mrs. Reid with Princess Patrica visited the Kinemacolor Theatre on Fortieth Street, where the Princess saw herself in the film depicting the investiture of the youthful Prince of Wales at Carnarvon Castle in Wales, when she walked with the royal party to the reception arranged for them by the Welsh people. She also saw her royal parents taking part in the ceremony. Their visit here was brief.

At the Altman Gallery.

The Duke, with his host, in the meanwhile, were paying a call at the private art gallery of Benjamin Altman at 626 Fifth Avenue. The Duchess and the Princess had visited this gallery on Thursday, during the Duke's absence in Washington.

The small number of persons acquainted with the remarkable works of art assembled by Mr. Altman will not be surprised that the ladies of the ducal party were so much impressed by them on their first visit that the Duke also paid the gallery a visit. Even so crowded a schedule as that laid down for these distinguished guests might very well be readjusted to permit the inspection of such treasures.

The pictures alone form a group of masterpieces unmarred by the inclusion of commonplace or even secondary examples. The twelve Rembrandts are not only undisputed works by that master, but represent his freshest and most original inspiration, showing him in his most vigorous and rewarding mood. The chief prizes of the Rudolf and Maurice Kann collections are here. The "Old Woman Cutting Her Nails" is a brilliant example of Rembrandt's power of representing old age without sentimentality, yet with all the graces of his flexible art concentrated upon its pictorial quality. The portraits of Titus and of Magdalena Van Loo that were shown at the Hudson Fulton Celebration are not less brilliant in quality. In addition to the Rembrandts are two genre pictures by Frans Hals which have been characterized by Dr. Bode as quite the most distinguished painted by that master; one of these is "The Merry Company," an early work and very rich in color, a small copy of which is in the Louvre, and a painting by Albert Duerer, whose works are rarely found in this country, is another of the notable features of the collection. It is the "Anna Selfdritt," sold from Schleissheim some fifty years ago. There is also a fine Vermeer of Delft, of whose paintings only thirty-eight in all are known to exist, and there is the most distinguished of the landscapes painted by Jacob Ruysdael, the beautiful "Cornfield," instinct with the peace of broad horizons and fertile land.

The pictures are, however, only a portion of the general collection, which includes also distinguished sculptures in marble and terra cotta, a marble bust by Mino, a relief in marble by Rossellino, from the Hainauer collection, and a painted terra cotta bust by Donatello from the Rudolf Kann collection, as well as beautiful bronzes and Limoges enamels. The magnificent group of Ming porcelains, according to Dr. Bode, surpasses in distinction even the great collection of these wares owned by J. P. Morgan, while the statuettes by the French sculptors, Houdon, Falconer, and Clodion, are placed by the same authority above any others found by him in this country on his recent visit of inspection. The Altman collection of rugs, of course, is famous, but the rare and very fine examples of crystals are not so well known.

Taking it by and large, the collection is one of those in which quality has been preferred to quantity throughout, and in which a great name has not in any instance been permitted to do service in place of a great work. It belongs to the happily increasing class which reflect credit not only upon the judgment and enterprise of the American collector, but bear witness to his discriminating taste and fastidious demand for the best art.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught in their recognition of the quality of the collection, are at one with other visitors from England and the Continent who, although hearing daily through the transatlantic press of the ravages American collectors are making in the garnered treasures of the older countries, are unable to believe until their eyes have seen in the extraordinary richness of the private collections on this side of the water.

The Duchess and the Princess appeared remarkably fresh and active after their five days of rather strenuous sight-seeing when they returned to the home of their host and hostess late in the afternoon. Through Lieut. Col. Lowther it was learned that they were thoroughly charmed with their visit, having made many new and pleasing acquaintances.

Many Pleas for Autographs.

An incident of the visit of their Royal Highnesses here has been the flood of letters which have poured in at the home of the Ambassador, with requests for the royal autographs. About the last official act that the secretary performed was to go through many of these letters, answering and refusing as many as he could within a limited time.

The snow was falling when the royal party left for the Grand Central Station, the first inclement weather since their arrival, the past five days being unusually bright and bracing. A notice was posted up at the station that many trains were delayed on account of the heavy snowstorm up State. There was a large crowd assembled at the gate to watch the entrance of the royal party, one aged man declaring that he had shaken hands with the late King Edward VII., when he was here as the Prince of Wales, but he was not allowed to approach the Duke. The platform held about a hundred colored porters, all of whom crowded about the royal car when the Ducal party arrived.

The Value of Fire-Safe Design

BY its concentration on fireproof design for buildings as well as upon the improvement of non-combustible building materials, the National Fire Proofing Company has greatly influenced the development of fireproof architecture in America.

The ease by which interior conflagrations are isolated and controlled in modern structures is chiefly due to the influence this Company has had upon American building methods and—the use of its materials.

than taking it for granted that everything will go right.

"New York society, moreover, is wholly without a coping-stone. It is elemental, electrifying us, free and frank with its emotions as with its introductions or its compliments, spending infinite thought and money, with strikingly ingenious and ingenuous results, on the externals of hospitality, unequaled for its ability to turn the simplest sort of a diversion into a function and every function into a ceremony, immensely elaborate, artificial, naive, and demonstrative, and at the same time, for all its glitter and perseverance, irredeemably incomplete and vapid, monotonous even in its excitements—a thin, restricted, second-hand imitation of the real thing.

Our Society Based on Vacuum.

"New York society, in short, is like New York City, and New York City seems almost, at times, to be less a city than a system, an amazing and triumphant essay in the art of saving time and space. Things never seen good in the American metropolis, but always begin again in a new and more extravagant form, and the biggest and most expensive structures in the city fail to give one a guarantee that they will outlive their builders.

"New York society has precisely the same quality of transitoriness or change, with no settled foundations or background, with nothing under, behind, and around it but vacuum."

DUKE'S MESSAGE OF FRIENDSHIP

His Speech at Embassy Dinner in Reply to Secretary Knox's Greeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—There were speeches at the dinner in honor of the Duke of Connaught at the British Embassy last night, although, like the dinner list, they were withheld from the press. This was one of the confused points of etiquette connected with the Duke's visit, over which good democratic judgment stumbled. The speeches were given out to-day and apparently contained nothing that needed to be suppressed. Why they could not have been given to a public willing to read them this morning rather than to-morrow is a question eligible for the collection of diplomatic precedents at the State Department. The official report of Mr. Knox's speech is as follows:

Mr. Knox said that he welcomed his Royal Highness to the United States. He hoped that the Duke's traveling in America had been profitable, and that he would take away with him the impression that it was desired to convey of the cordial sympathies felt by millions throughout the land and expressed by thousands here to-day toward his country and of the hearty greeting which it was wished to extend to him. Mr. Knox continued that he took this opportunity, as being on British soil and surrounded by Federal territory, of asking the guests to do that which is dear to the heart of every Briton, and at the same time of honoring his Royal Highness and his great nation, by proposing the health of his Majesty King George.

The summary given out of the Duke's reply is as follows:

That it was with very great pleasure that he took this opportunity of thanking the Secretary of State for his cordial proposal of the health of the King and of his kind remark in regard to himself. The heartiness and kindliness of the welcome extended to him on this second visit of his to the United States had caused him to regret that it had been so long since his first visit. It had been with the greatest interest that he had observed the developments and improvements that had taken place since his last visit. His Royal Highness continued that his lamented brother, King Edward, had always spoken in terms of the deepest appreciation of the recollections of his visit to this country in 1860.

He fully agreed with the cordial references of the Secretary of State to the nature of the relations which now exist and ever will exist between the United States and the British Empire. As Governor General of Canada he felt that he might give assurances that whatever political or party changes might take place in Canada, there had not been and would not be any intention of indicating any feeling other than that of closest friendship with the American people.

The Duke concluded by saying that he had much enjoyed the opportunity given him by his visit of making the acquaintance of the head of the American State, of its President, Mr. Taft.

The welcome which the President had given him had still further increased his satisfaction at obtaining the opportunity of meeting him. It was therefore his very great pleasure to have the honor of proposing the health of the President of the United States.

CABARET SHOWS ON TRIAL.

Witnesses Say Performance at Louis Martin's Was Decorous.

The charge against Louis Martin that he had no license to run a cabaret show, and hence acted unlawfully in permitting Maurice to dance the tongo waltz, the bunny hug, and the turkey trot at his Broadway café, has not yet been passed on by the Court of Special Sessions; but the preliminaries were heard yesterday before Justices Deuel, McInerney, and Hoyt.

Three witnesses, Inspector Hayes, Capt. McIlroy, and Sergt. O'Connor, testified that they had seen the show, and that the performance was in every way decorous and disappointing. As the dances are no longer a feature at Louis Martin's, his counsel, Stephen Baldwin, was not discouraging business when he assured the court that no one was allowed to witness the exotic dances of Maurice and others without rigorous moral examination on the part of the management.

The Justices reserved decision until next Monday.

SAYS WAR WOULD RUIN WORLD FINANCE

Anglo-German Outbreak Would Mean Its Collapse, Sir Edward Holden Declares.

HE SUPPORTS GERMAN AIMS

World's Finance Would Greatly Benefit if More Consideration Were Shown Germany's Ambitions.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Sir Edward A. Holden, M. P., Chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, who is regarded as one of England's foremost financiers, made pointed references to the British attitude toward Germany in a speech to-day.

"Germany's financiers and business men," he said, "are equal to any in the world. They are assisting in the development of other countries in a most wonderful way. Outside her own country Germany has little territory which she can call her own. Other countries are acquiring additional interests abroad, but if Germany makes any move in the same direction she is immediately surrounded by difficulties.

"Such a condition must ultimately lead to the breaking of her bonds.

"Speaking for myself, I think nothing could happen that would be more for the benefit of finance throughout the whole world than that more consideration were shown her. We do not desire war. We do not desire to see Germany's financial institutions crippled, neither do we desire to have our own financial institutions crippled. But as sure as war takes place it will mean disaster to and the collapse of the financial system of the whole world."

Sir Edward Holden directed attention to the increased demands for gold on India's account. India is now taking about a fifth of the world's production. For the year ended Dec. 31 last the total gross imports of gold to India amounted to £21,526,000, compared with £15,913,000 in 1910 and £8,715,000 in 1909.

Sir Edward rejected all artificial schemes for raising the price of consols. He expected a continuance in the demand for loanable capital in the near future.

Sir Edward Holden also called attention to the fact that America has reached the stage of being the lender of Europe instead of borrower, and also to the fact that the attempt is being made to establish a great central bank, which would lead to great financial changes. The currency of the United States, he said, would consist practically of notes of that bank.

The domestic trade of America, he added, had been of a depressing character, but its foreign trade at last was going in the right direction.

ANGLO-GERMAN AFRICAN DEAL.

Partition of Portuguese Colonies Expected—Portugal Willing to Sell.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Liberal weekly The Nation says that it is hopeful of a successful result being reached in the Anglo-German negotiations now in progress regarding the partition of the Portuguese African colonies, which it is said that Portugal is ready to sell.

Dr. Solf, the German Colonial Secretary, is now in London discussing the question with the British authorities.

SAVED FROM CRUCIFIXION.

Religious Leader Was at the Mercy of Women Fanatics.

LODZ, Russian Poland, Jan. 26.—The timely arrival of the police to-day just prevented a band of fanatical women from crucifying a man whom they had adopted as their "Savior."

A new sect was recently formed by women of the Moravian community. They selected a man named Kowalski whom they worshipped as their "Savior." They urged him to allow himself to be crucified so as to enable them to prove the truth of their tenets by his resurrection.

Kowalski's faith, however, wavered and he strenuously opposed the carrying out of the suggestion. Ultimately thirty determined women took his house by storm and were proceeding with his immolation when the police appeared and put a stop to the sacrifice.

FIND BLACK VIRGIN JEWELS.

Monk in St. Paul Monastery Suspected of Theft and Murder.

CZENSTOCHOWA, Russian Poland, Jan. 26.—Precious stones to the value of over $50,000, which were stolen two years ago from the statue of the Virgin, known as the miraculous Black Virgin, in the famous monastery of St. Paul, in this city, were recently discovered in the store of a jeweler named Adler in the city of Lublin, Poland.

Clues were also found which led to the recovery of another $25,000 worth of jewels taken from the same statue in a house near Lemberg, in Austrian Galicia.

Father Macoch, one of the monks of the Monastery of St. Paul, has now been accused of murdering his brother because he threatened to inform the authorities that he was the author of the robbery. Father Macoch will be tried on the capital charge next month.

The Pope, since the date of the robbery, has presented two diamond crowns of the value of $40,000 to the shrine of the Virgin in the monastery, which is visited every year by over a quarter of a million pilgrims.

FARMHANDS IN RIOT, 7 DEAD.

Portuguese Strikers Attack Police and Battle Follows.

LISBON, via Frontier, Jan. 26.—Seven were killed and a large number wounded as a result of agricultural riots, which started yesterday in the Evora district. Strikers armed with fowling pieces entered the town and fired on the soldiers, wounding many.

Squadrons of cavalry charged repeatedly and fired several volleys during the night. There was a procession of stretchers, carrying wounded to the hospital.

The town has been put in a state of siege and a regiment of cavalry has arrived to reinforce the garrison.

According to an official note, a solution is likely to be reached soon, and the farmhands who went on strike are beginning to return to work.

LABOR DAILY FOR LONDON.

New Publication Will Be Heavily Financed, with Shares at £1.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Labor Party has definitely decided to attempt the establishment of a daily newspaper, which has been entitled The Daily Citizen.

It will be a general newspaper, dealing not only with labor propaganda, but news of all kinds.

The new venture will be owned by a company with ten Directors and Ramsay MacDonald as Chairman. The capital will be £150,000, issued in £1 shares.

FIERCE BATTLES IN MEXICO.

Government Forces Hard Pressed at One Point by the Zapatistas.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 26.—Two important engagements were fought today in the State of Morelos between the Government forces, consisting of troops of the regular army and rural guards on the one side, and numerous forces of Zapatistas on the other.

The encounters took place at the hacienda, Buena Vista, twelve miles from Cuernavaca, the capital, and the village of Huitzilac, situated on a ridge of mountain range separating the Valley of Morelos from the Valley of Mexico.

Fighting was particularly fierce at the latter point. It seems that the Government forces are outnumbered, but reinforcements have been sent from Cuernavaca with mountain artillery.

At the hacienda Buena Vista Col. Manuel Garcia Lugo, the same man who was operating against Reyes in the north, defeated and dispersed the Zapatistas and captured a considerable quantity of provisions. He also captured prisoners, who have been brought into Cuernavaca, and are likely to be summarily shot under the law for the suspension of guarantees recently passed.

REFUSE USE OF ULSTER HALL

Londonderry Sees No Objection to Churchill Speaking Elsewhere.

BELFAST, Ireland, Jan. 26.—The City Corporation to-day refused the request of the Liberal Association for the use of Ulster Hall on the morning of Feb. 8, the day of the home rule demonstration at which Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, is to speak, together with John E. Redmond, the leader of the Nationalists.

The corporation also forestalled any further possible manoeuvres by passing a resolution not to let Ulster Hall for any further meetings of any kind in February.

Lord Londonberry's letter to Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, concerning Mr. Churchill's address before a proposed Liberal meeting here Feb. 8 in favor of home rule for Ireland, denotes a cessation of active efforts by the Unionist leaders to prevent Mr. Churchill speaking. Both sides to the controversy are now engaged in an endeavor to create a "corner" in the available halls of Belfast suitable for political meetings, while the business community of the city is alarmed over the possibility of rioting if the Liberal gathering is held.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Winston Spencer Churchill's action in giving up his intention to speak in Ulster Hall, Belfast, on Feb. 8, is commented on favorably in today's newspapers. Only the bitterest opponents of the First Lord of the Admiralty chide him with retreating from a position which he should never have taken up.

Lord Londonderry, ex-Viceroy of Ireland and one of the Unionists who are opposing the proposed home rule meeting in Belfast, to-day sent a letter to Mr. Churchill in reply to the communication addressed to him Thursday by the First Lord of the Admiralty. In his letter Mr. Churchill informed Lord Londonderry that he would advise the Ulster Liberal Association that he would not insist on holding the meeting in Ulster Hall, but that he intended to deliver a speech somewhere in Belfast, Feb. 8.

"So far as Ulster Unionist Council is concerned," says Londonderry's reply, "its main objection, which is in the interest of law and order, is removed if you determine to hold your meeting outside the districts which passionately resent your action. * * * At the same time, having regard for the intense state of feeling created by your proposed action the Ulster Unionist Council cannot accept any responsibility with reference to your visit to Belfast, and they do not desire to give any assurance they might be unable to fulfill."

GERMAN SOCIALISTS NEVER SO STRONG

But Dr. Liebknecht, Their Leader, Says They Will Be Prudent in Influencing Reichstag.

DEFENSE BILLS TO PASS

All Parties Except Socialists for Them—Elections Fulfill Every Prediction of Von Buelow.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Interviewed after his election at Potsdam, the seat of the Kaiser's suburban palace, Herr Liebknect, leader of the Socialists, said:

"You ask me what will now be the attitude and influence of the Socialist Party in the Reichstag. No party has ever been so powerful in the German Parliament since the foundation of the empire. Our influence, therefore, will be enormous, and we will have to be reckoned with; but we must act with prudence and so avoid giving patriots any pretext for dissolution.

"The peace of the world is now assured, and you can tell the public so with every confidence."

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—No two accounts of the composition of the new Reichstag agree exactly, owing to one or two doubtful results and the difficulty of classifying definitely a few members of nondescript, petty groups. The only certainty is that the alliance of the Conservatives with the Clerical Centre Party, which controlled 208 of the 397 mandates in the last Reichstag, has been overthrown. That coalition is now able to muster, if it enrolls every possible man from among the Poles, Alsatians, Guelphs, and others with Conservative and Clerical tendencies, only 193 or 194 votes, against the 203 or 204 which can be counted by the National, Liberal, Radical, and Socialist groups.

The uncertain and unreliable construction of the new Parliament has naturally resulted in a crop of predictions that its life will be short and that a speedy dissolution may be looked for. The majorities in any case depend upon heterogeneous groups, and are easily changeable by the defection, death, or retirement of three or four members. The most threatening menace to the life of the new Reichstag is the solid block of 110 Socialists, who are out-and-out enemies of the Government.

Experienced politicians like the Radical leader, Dr. Hermann Pachnicke, and the prominent Conservatives like Dr. Otto Arendt, point out, however, that threatened Parliaments, like threatened men, live long. Each of these leaders foresees the formation of an adequate working majority. This seems also certain when subjects are dealt with which the Government, through its statements made in the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, has indicated as imperative tasks for the new Reichstag.

These tasks include the strengthening of the army and navy and the financial provision for this increase of strength. They comprise also new social legislation and the continuance of the present tariff policy through the ratification of a series of new commercial treaties.

All parties except the Socialists will be found behind the new army and navy bills when they are brought up for discussion. The critical question will be that of the new taxes, but this will be undoubtedly solved, even if the Government has to impose the inheritance tax, the introduction of which occasioned Prince von Buelow's fall, and this will have to be done against the opposition of the badly riddled Conservative ranks.

Prince von Buelow emerges from the elections clothed in the garb of a true prophet. In the result of the polling he sees the fulfillment of every prediction he made in his farewell interview in July, 1909, when he warned the Conservatives of the coming retribution for their share in his fall and held out the vision, like Caesar's ghost to Brutus, of the coming day of Philippi. Their depleted ranks now number only 69, instead of 105, which they had in the last Reichstag. The red tide of Socialism is again in full flood, as he foretold, and the Guelph enemies of Prussia, whom he hunted out of the Reichstag, have returned, while the attempts to Germanize the Polish provinces are at a standstill.

The only serious disorder in the elections is reported from Schwetz, where a fight occurred last night between the Poles and the Germans. This resulted in a general riot, and eventually the military were called out. Two students were seriously injured and many people were beaten.

QUEENSBERRY IS BANKRUPT.

Financier Gets Order Against Marquis, Who Came Here to Settle.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A receiving order is made to-day against Percy Sholto Douglas, Marquis of Queensberry, upon the petition of Louis Nathan Levene, a financier, trading as R. Leslie.

The Marquis of Queensberry, after coming to this country last year to settle, returned to New York after a short visit in England on Jan. 5, declaring at that time that he was going back to Chicago to continue his newspaper work. He had previously expressed his intention of becoming an American citizen and of bringing his family to America some time this year.

The Marquis has made many efforts to recoup the fortunes of the Queensberry's by lending his name to new companies in England and other countries, but the ventures almost without exception have been unsuccessful. For a short time he was in the British Navy, and later for a brief period was a Lieutenant in the King's Own Scottish Borderers. He was married in 1893 to a daughter of the Rev. Thomas Walters, Vicar of Boynton, Launceston, and has two sons and a daughter.

LEISHMAN VISITS PRINCE.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

The Ambassador wore his uniform for the occasion.

SARGENT BREAKS VOW.

Had Stopped Painting Portraits, but is to Paint One of Nijinsky.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—It is stated that Mr. Sargent has broken his vow not to paint any more portraits, as he is to paint Nijinsky, the Russian dancer.

Possibly his decision only applied to accepting commissions to paint portraits of people of fashion.

CONSECRATED TO GORDON.

Cathedral in Memory of Mahdists' Victim Dedicated at Khartum.

KHARTUM, Jan. 26.—The new cathedral here, erected as a memorial to Gen. Charles Gordon, who was killed when the city was captured by the Mahdists, was consecrated to-day, the anniversary of Gordon's death. The ceremony took place on the spot where he was killed.

The Bishop of London, assisted by other dignitaries of the Church of England, directed the function, which, being conducted with the full rites of the church, was most imposing, almost equalling the spectacle which accompanied the reading by Lord Kitchener some years ago of the burial service to the memory of Gordon.

Many people who are wintering in Egypt, came up for to-day's services at Khartum.

Among those who assisted the Bishop of London, were the Bishop of Chichester, the Dean of Salisbury, and Bishop Gwynne of Khartum, who has spent his life in the Sudan, and whose work is crowned by the completion of the cathedral.

The edifice is not large, but the only communicants are the British residents, as proselyting among the Moslem inhabitants is prohibited by the Government. There were many Moslems present, however, the ceremony having been awaited by them with interest.

The foundation stone of the cathedral was laid four years ago by Princess Henry of Battenberg. The structure is in the shape of a Latin cross, the arms of which form the transepts. The north transept forms the Gordon Memorial Chapel, in which will be placed panels to the memory of British officers and officials, who have died in battle or fallen victims to fever in the Sudan campaigns. The south transept is to be devoted to daily services.

Theodore Roosevelt, when returning down the Nile from his hunting expedition in Africa, placed the keystone of the cathedral arch in position on March 17, 1910.

THIRD FRENCH SHIP SEIZED BY ITALIANS

Torpedo Boats Stop a Tunis Mail Boat, the Tavignano, and Take Her to Tripoli.

AGREE ON MANOUBA DISPUTE

Turks Taken from Ship to be Turned Over to France—Question Referred to Hague.

TUNIS, Jan. 26.—The small French passenger steamer Tavignano, belonging to the Mixie Navigation Company of Marseilles, which takes the mails from Tunis to Sfax, Susa, Zarzis, and Biban, all on the east coast of Tunis, was arrested last night ten miles off Biban by Italian torpedo boats. The Tavignano was then taken to Tripoli, where she is being held.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The Franco-Italian incident arising from the seizure of the French steamers Manouba and Carthage by Italian war vessels was settled to-day satisfactorily to both nations. This announcement was made to-night at the close of a meeting of the Cabinet, which, after examination, approved the terms of the note agreed upon by Camille Barrere, the French Ambassador at Rome, and the Marquis di Sa Giuliano, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, which will be published in Rome by the Italian Government.

The twenty-nine Turks, said to be members of the Turkish Red Crescent Society, who were taken off the Manouba by the Italians and sent to Cagliari, are to be immediately turned over to the French Consul at Cagliari, who will send them to France, where their identity will be verified by the French Government. All questions of law arising from the seizure of both the Manouba and the Carthage will be referred to the International Court at The Hague.

Immediately the Cabinet adjourned Premier Poincare sent a wireless dispatch to the Captain of the steamer Ville Alger, which is now on its way from Tunis to Marseilles, instructing him to call at Cagliari and take the Turks on board.

The note is couched in terms of moderation and shows a spirit of conciliation. The preamble insists that it has been the desire to arrange the incident in a manner which would safeguard the dignity of both countries. The first paragraph is devoted to the case of the Carthage and the second to that of the Manouba. The second paragraph says the French Government will be responsible for the necessary measures to be taken to prevent the Turks captured on board the Manouba, who do not belong to the Red Crescent, but to combatant branches of the Turkish Army, from proceeding from a French port to Tunis, or to the seat of the war. France has obtained all she stood out for, for the incident is now restored to the status quo ante.

The settlement of the controversy comes in good season, for the long deliberation of the diplomats on the incident was beginning to provoke a spirit of exasperation on the part of both the public and the politicians. An instance of this was the intention announced to-day to Premier Poincaré by two members of the Chamber of Deputies that they purposed to interpellate the Government on the subject of Italy's dilatoriness. Their temper was only partially allayed by the assurance of M. Poincaré that he had sent further instructions to M. Darrere, insisting that the matter be pushed to a conclusion.

The news received to-night of the capture off Tunis by the Italians of the French steamer Tavignano, coming on top of the announcement of the settlement of the Carthage and Manouba incident, created an unpleasant sensation here, but public opinion is disposed to await further details of this seizure before discussing its probable outcome.

PEACE SEEMS FAR OFF.

Powers Fail to Find Basis for Negotiations to End Tripoli War.

ROME, Jan. 26.—Although the efforts of the European diplomatic Chancelleries toward effecting peace between Italy and Turkey has been carried on most actively both in Constantinople and Rome the past few days, no basis has yet been found for negotiations likely to be successful.

In reply to suggestions from various Embassies, Turkey states that the powers, if they desire peace, should induce Italy to make concessions, as Turkey cannot accept the spoliation she has suffered without redress.

Rome, on the other hand, responds to the hints of the foreign Chancelleries that the only remedy is pressure by the powers on the Porte. The representatives of the powers declare that if this is done, and the Porte should resist, as it is expected, either the powers would have to withdraw and suffer humiliation, or have recourse to coercion. This would mean making a collective naval demonstration in Turkish waters, which would ultimately end in a landing in Constantinople, and would raise the general European conflagration which all are anxious to avoid.

Giovanni Giolitti, the Italian Premier, still hopes that Italy will be able to force Turkey to ask for peace. For this reason the convocation of Parliament, instead of taking place at the end of January, has been postponed until February, and it is even believed that it may be delayed until March.

In the meantime the Commander in Chief of the expeditionary force in Tripoli has arranged to make a general advance into the mountains of the interior, and hopes during February to take the first decisive step in this direction by occupying the country as far inland as sixty miles from the coast.

MORGAN TREASURES COMING TO AMERICA

ropolitan Museum, when asked yesterday what the collections were which Mr. Morgan had at the London Museum and would bring to this country, replied:

"I do not know what Mr. Morgan has in the Museum. It would be difficult to tell. Mr. Morgan changes his collections at different times."

In the catalogues of the Victoria and Albert Museum the names of those making loans are not given if their collections are included. In the magnificent catalogues of Mr. Morgan's collection which are in the Metropolitan Museum Library, with the exception of that of the jewel collection, it is not stated where they are placed. There is probably no one who could state offhand what has been loaned to the London Museum.

With the jewel collection will be brought into this country more wonderful histories than is to be found in any other collection extant. Included in it are rock crystals and wood carving, of which Mr. Morgan has the most famous private collection in the world. The rock crystals were the special pride of Kings and only the most wealthy could possess them. Many pieces in the collection were stolen and hidden away for hundreds of years. One piece was buried with its owner for a century, lost for another century, came to light in an auction, where it was bought by a dealer, and so reached Mr. Morgan.

This was the famous golden chain of Christian II. of Saxony, who was a great connoisseur. It is to be seen in one of his portraits in Dresden. From him it went to Henry of Gretherod, with whom it was buried in 1614. After 100 years it was taken from the tomb and put in the green vaults for safety. The Saxons removed their treasures from the vaults for fear of the French soldiers, but the chain was never returned until it appeared at the auction.

Ghiberti, who made the famous doors of the baptistry at Florence, made a famous pendant of wrought gold and enamel, which belonged to Cosimoe Medici.

A wonderful rock crystal bowl in the collection belonged to Queen Christina of Sweden, 1626-1689, who was a better connoisseur of art than Queen. Becoming a Roman Catholic, she was disowned by her own people, and spent the last twenty years of her life in Rome.

Among the wood carving is a marvelous rosary bead, 2¼ by 2¼ inches. This opens on a hinge like a book and shows marvelous carvings inside. In one half is carved the way of the cross and in the other the scene of the crucifixion, with the cross and a surrounding crowd. Inscriptions are carved on the rims of the two halves. An amber cup which belonged to an Italian Cardinal and was in the Farnese collection, has a gold enameled stem. There are many wonderful reliquaries, containing bones of the saints and pieces of the true cross.

Among Mr. Morgan's pictures abroad is the famous once stolen Gainsborough, the "Duchess of Devonshire," which he has loaned to the National Gallery, and Raphael's "Madonna of St. Anthony of Padua." He has the Fragonard panels, which cost $1,000,000, Rubens's "Grand Duke," one of the finest Hobemas, and rare Dutch, Italian, Flemish, French, and English masters. He has old English silver, old furniture, single pieces of which cost $350,000, and the Mazarin tapestries, which cost $500,000.

Regarding the statement that Mr. Morgan felt that his collections in the Victoria and Albert Museum had not been fairly treated, J. P. Morgan, Jr., said yesterday:

"The report that Mr. Morgan is bringing over a large part of his collections to this side is quite true, but the statement in The London Times that it was being done because of dissatisfaction with the manner in which the collections have been treated, or with any resentment against the authorities in England, was entirely incorrect. Mr. Morgan is perfectly satisfied with the care and attention which the English museums have given his collections, but very naturally has for a long time desired to have his collections in America."

Edward Robinson, Secetary of the Metropolitan Museum, said:

"It is quite true that Mr. Morgan intends to send some part of his London collections to New York in the near future. I am surprised at reading the reasons for this action which are given in the account, quoted from The London Times. I have never heard him express discontentment with the manner in which his things are exhibited in the Victoria and Albert Museum, and I think that for some years it has been his intention that America should ultimately reap the benefit of his great collection.

"Most of the objects, which he has lent to the Victoria and Albert Museum, have been there a considerable number of years, and probably he thinks it is time for America to have its turn. I understand that what he now sends to this country will come to the Metropolitan Museum, probably as a loan, like so many other valuable works of art which he has already deposited here, though on this subject he has given me no direct intimation. Whatever comes from his London collections will be exhibited in the new extension of the Museum at the northern end of the Fifth Avenue front, which will not be ready for occupancy for another year, as the contract for the completion of the interior has only just been awarded. In the meantime these things will be stored in the Museum in accordance with his wishes."

BRONZES COMING IN SPRING.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—At the request of J. Pierpont Morgan, Secretary MacVeagh has directed that a special customs inspector go from New York to London, at Mr. Morgan's expense, to examine portions of Mr. Morgan's collection of rare art treasures there, with a view to shipping them to this country in the Spring. He will pay the duties in advance on the various articles, which are mainly bronzes, so that when they arrive in New York they can be taken at once to his house without opening them at the Custom House.

Men's Scarfs—at Saks'
55c & $1 values
today at 28c

¶ To you who are scanning this paper for news—here it is! Scarfs that ordinarily cost you 55c and $1 are obtainable today at Saks' for 28c. This is our idea of a news item. Details follow.

¶ We have acquired a maker's entire stock of 55c and $1 scarfs at an advantage in price which is remarkable, to say the least of it. That advantage we now extend to you.

¶ Never mind speculating, the scarfs you like are here. Poplins, satins, repps, armures, surahs, Persians and knitted scarfs are tumbling over each other in a profusion of pattern and color, as well as in quieter effects for unassuming personalities.

Men's $4.50 Fur Gauntlets,
today at 1.95

¶ The thermometer is making sheep's eyes at zero, so we need not dwell on the desirability of fur gauntlets. It is too obvious to discuss. But the value—that is a horse of another color!

¶ These fur gauntlets come into our possession as the sequel to a visit we paid the maker. He had a limited quantity of them which he wished to dispose of quickly, and, speaking for you, we said we could sell them readily at 1.95 per pair.

¶ They are black coney fur gloves, with tan or black kid palm, and a liberal gauntlet to deflect the wind from your wrists. Fleece-lined and warm as a cheerful greeting. Sizes 7 1-2 to 10.

Men's Mocha Gloves at 1.15
values 1.50 and 2.00

¶ The world can never have too much of a good thing. We are still enthusiastic about Mocha gloves—either tan Mochas, or the cold-blue-gray-morning-after Mochas, such as those in this sale.

¶ Made with English cut thumb, in gray or tan heavy weight Mocha stock, and prix seam sewn. The offering also includes silk-lined Mochas, which cost 2.00 anywhere but at Saks'.

¶ For daily wear, for evening wear, when love, light and laughter hold sway, you cannot improve on a Mocha—and, for value, you cannot improve on these at 1.15 per pair.

What have you done about these Handkerchiefs?

¶ You certainly should do something, for they are no ordinary values. Better look into the matter while the day is yet young.

CHINESE REBELS ARE MARCHING ON PEKING

But Advance May Be Halted by Extension of Armistice, Which Expires on Monday.

PLOTS AND PANIC RAMPANT

Unpaid Manchurian Troops Revolt—Fighting on Tien-Tsin Railroad—Chinese Turkestan Forces Join Rebels.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Chinese revolutionists' expeditionary force at Wu-Chang commenced its forward movement toward Peking to-day, according to a Tien-Tsin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

PEKING, Jan. 26.—The armistice between the Government and the republicans, which is to expire at 8 o'clock next Monday morning, will probably be extended, despite the imperial edict of yesterday creating Yuan Shi-Kai a Marquis, a step which evidently covers some Court design. Yuan undoubtedly favors abdication, and the Chinese are confident that abdication will come without further fighting. The throne reiterated by edict yesterday that it intended to abide by the decision of the National Assembly concerning the future government of the empire.

Yuan Shi-Kai, however, to-day telegraphed Wu Ting-Fang, the Minister of Justice in the Republican Cabinet, requesting a compromise as to the method of choosing delegates to the National Assembly, and this compromise, if adopted, may lead to an assembly more or less packed to vote for a republic. The Court and Yuan evidently are mutually suspicious, and it is reported that the guards of both have been increased.

Premier Yuan is to pay another visit to the imperial palace on Saturday and important developments are expected to follow quickly. Palace and Government intrigues are rampant, and the panic among the Chinese inhabitants continues.

Prince Ching, the former Premier, whose moderate views have been considered a hopeful factor in the situation, has been granted an additional ten days' leave.

The troops in garrison at Shan Chengtze in Southern Manchuria, to the northeast of Mukden, as well as the police force of that city have revolted and demolished the headquarters of the Governor, because they had not received their pay. The Governor has fled to Mukden.

Three battalions of infantry belonging to the imperial army, accompanied by two batteries of mountain artillery and six machine guns, left Tsinan in the Province of Shan-tung to-day. Their destination was not announced, and it is not known whether they are proceeding to attack the revolutionary troops who landed in Chi-fu and Wu-sung some days ago or to protect the railroad.

The Viceroy of the Provinces of Hu-Nan and Hu-Peh reports that he does not think the troops of the imperial army now stationed there are trustworthy.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 26.—Sharp fighting has occurred on the railroad from Tien-Tsin to Pukow. The imperial troops under the command of Chang-Hsun, who was formerly commander at Nanking, came into contact with the rebels seventy-six miles south of Su-chow, in the Province of Kiang-su, where Chang-Hsun has his headquarters. The result of the battle is not yet known.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 26.—A consignment of 20,000 rifles and 5,000,000 rounds of ammunition, ordered from German firms, passed through this city today on the way to Peking.

KULJA, Chinese Turkestan, Jan. 26.—The imperial Government troops who came into contact with the Chinese revolutionaries at Talki Pass on Jan. 20 went over to the revolutionary side without striking a blow. The combined force, consisting of the rebels from this city and the imperial troops who have joined their ranks, is now advancing on the City of Urumptsi, north of the Tian-Shan Mountains.

TAFT ASKS FOR FAMINE FUNDS.

Millions of Chinese Facing Starvation, He Says as Red Cross Head.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The appeal issued through ordinary channels having failed to elicit a response in any way commensurate with the situation, President Taft to-day personally and as President of the American Red Cross sent out an appeal for funds to relieve the famine-stricken people of China. Mr. Taft's plea follows:

"As President of the American National Red Cross, it becomes my imperative duty to call to the attention of the people of the United States the conditions of awful destitution which now exist in certain provinces of China. Recurrent inundations by the Yang-tse and other rivers have destroyed crops and prevented the cultivation of the lands. Millions of human beings are now facing starvation. An agent of the American Red Cross who has recently traveled throughout the famine district, reports conditions of starvation of the most terrible and appalling character.

"Until peace is restored in China and the functions of efficient government are established, these conditions must continue, save as relieved by the charitable efforts of other countries.

"The Central China Famine Relief Committee has created a strong and efficient organization with agencies established throughout the affected districts. This body, which comprises in its membership Right Rev. Bishop F. R. Graves, Chairman; Rev. E. C. Lobenstine, Secretary, and twenty or more of the leading American, European, and Chinese merchants and missionaries in Shanghai, will render assistance as means may be available. Able-bodied natives will be employed in reparing dykes, canals, and roads, and thus be enabled to support themselves until new crops can be harvested.

"In the name of humanity the Red Cross calls once more upon the American people to come to the relief of a sister nation with that prompt generosity which has never failed in time of great emergency.

"Contributions should be sent to State Red Cross Board Treasurers, or to the Treasurer of the American National Red Cross, Room 341, War Department, Washington, D. C.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

BRITISH MINISTER MENACED.

Sir John Jordan Receives Many Chinese Letters Threatening His Life.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 27.—Sir John Newell Jordan, British Minister to China, has received many letters written in Chinese, threatening him with death, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Peking.

The correspondent adds that the threats have been made on account of the supposedly anti-Chinese policy of the Minister.

VILLAGES ARE SHAKEN DOWN.

In Cephalonia several villages were destroyed and eight persons were killed. Several more shocks have been felt today.

LOCKED IN VAULT BY THIEVES

Vancouver Manager and Teller of Royal Bank of Canada Helpless.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 26.—Two masked men entered the Hill Crest Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, at Main Street and Seventeenth Avenue, in broad daylight to-day, drove Mr. Steaves, the manager, and one of his clerks into the vault, knocked the other clerk unconscious with a blow from a revolver, and escaped with $1,999, all the money in the till.

According to one of the bank officials, the first man to enter the bank pointed his revolver at Manager Steaves, while the other man covered Harrison, the ledger keeper, and Richmond, the teller, ordering them to hold up their hands.

Harrison and Richmond were some distance from the thief, and the latter, instead of complying at once with the command, backed out of his cage quickly and threw the keys into a box inside, at the same time slamming the cage door. As he stepped out the door locked itself with the keys inside, a manoeuvre which compelled the robbers to hunt for a poker, which they used to reach through for the keys. The bandits ordered their prisoners to enter the vault. Harrison demurred, upon which one of the men said to his companions:

"Let's shoot him."

"No, I'll shoot him," said the other, and felled Harrison.

The police have a good description of the men, but have no idea of the direction they took in escaping.

This is the fourth time in two years that a branch of the Royal Bank in Vancouver has been held up.

PARDON FOR TWO SPIES.

The Kaiser and the Czar Agree to an Exchange.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Czar Nicholas and Emperor William made an exchange of spies to-day.

The Russian Emperor, at the intercession of the German Emperor, granted a pardon to Capt. Werner von Steunzer, who was condemned at Warsaw yesterday to three years' hard labor, and the Emperor William in return released Baron Vinegradeff, a Lieutenant in the Russian Navy, who was condemned on Jan. 18 at Leipsic to three years' imprisonment for a similar offense.

MONTERC BEHEADED BY MOB.

Revolutionary Leader Had Just Been Sentenced to Imprisonment.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 26.—Gen. Pedro Montero, who was recently the popular hero of Guayaquil, was yesterday shot by the angry populace, dragged into the streets, beheaded, and burned.

Gen. Montero was proclaimed President by the troops stationed in Guayaquil in November last, but handed over the leadership in the Provisional Government to Gen. Flavio Alfaro. A revolutionary army went from Guayaquil to meet the Government troops from Quito, who, under the command of Gen. Leonidas Plaza, defeated them and eventually forced Guayaquil to capitulate.

Gen. Montero with other leaders was captured on Jan. 22, and Gen. Motero was brought before a court-martial last evening, and sentenced to sixteen years imprisonment in a penitentiary.

When Gen. Plaza, who presided over the court-martial, announced the sentence the crowds of angry people who had surrounded the Government palace awaiting the result, shouted violent protests. The excitement increased rapidly, and some of them rushed into the courtroom, riddled Gen. Montero with bullets, seized his body, and dragged it into the open air. There they hacked the head off the shoulders, gathered fuel with which they started a fire, and then cast head and trunk into the flames.

The excitement lasted throughout the night, and revolver shooting occurred in many parts of the city.

Gens. Eloy Alfaro and Paez, who were captured at the same time as Gen. Montero, were, it is reported, sent to Quito at midnight. They will be tried by court-martial in the capital.

JEWS IN NEW YORK NUMBER 906,400

Dr. Jacobs Prepares Estimate from Vital Statistics and Immigration Reports.

TOTAL SURPRISINGLY SMALL

Tendency Has Been, He Finds, to Overrate the Jewish Population—How He Reaches His Conclusions.

The Jewish population of New York City was 906,400 on Jan. 1, 1912, according to figures prepared by Dr. Joseph Jacobs, editor of The American Hebrew, in the issue of that paper which appears to-day. The figures are the result of computations based on the number of deaths and marriages among Jews, and on the reports of the number of Jewish immigrants reaching and remaining in this port, which have been kept for many years by the United Hebrew Charities.

Dr. Jacobs in 1902 computed the number of Jews in the city by the same method, for the first time, as 600,000, a figure which was generally accepted at the time, though at first considered surprisingly large. The figure for the present year, he says, is surprising in that it is, comparatively speaking, small, in view of the fact that of late years the tendency has been to overestimate the Jewish population in New York.

As on the preceding occasion, says Dr. Jacobs, the basis of his investigation is the number of Jewish burials. These, according to the Board of Health figures, range from 7,875 in 1901, to 10,918 in 1910. The increase of 38.4 per cent., he says, probably indicates an even greater increase in the population, since the general death rate of the city has gone down in that time from 20 to 16 a thousand, while the general social condition of the Jewish population has undoubtedly risen on the whole during the decade.

"At the death rate of 14 a thousand, which I fixed upon for various good reasons," says Dr. Jacobs, "the Jews in New York in 1901 would have numbered 565,000. The number of burials in 1910 was 10,918, but there had to be added between 75 and 100 buried in the undenominational Cypress Hills Cemetery, and 26 buried in Mount Hope Cemetery in Westchester County. Adding these, we get a total of, roughly speaking, 11,000 for 1911.

"If we may assume that the death rate has decreased to 13.5 per thousand, this would give an average Jewish population throughout the year of 820,000, an increase of, roughly speaking, 42 per cent. over 1901.

Figures Checked by Marriages.

"We may get a rough check on the figures by comparing the movement of Jewish marriages during the same period, which rose from 5,062 in 1901 to 8,332 in 1910, an increase of no less than 65 per cent., indicating probably greater accuracy in the enumeration of the marriages as well as improved social condition of the Jews in New York. The general marriage rate for the city in 1910 was 9.66 per thousand. Applying this figure to the number of Jewish marriages, this would indicate a Jewish population in that year of 860,000."

There is a larger proportion of marriageable Jewesses, according to Dr. Jacobs, than of young women in the general population, but this is counterbalanced by a much larger proportion of males to females in the Jewish population who are perforce bachelors. Therefore, he estimates the Jewish marriage rate at 10 per 1,000, which would give a Jewish population of 838,000 in 1910.

Dr. Jacobs estimates the population on July 1, 1910, at 825,000; he finds that 47,500 more came to New York and remained from July 1, 1910, to June 30, 1911, and that in the same period the excess of births over deaths was 9,900. This gives a total of 882,400. Adding the 35,896 Jewish immigrants who landed at the Port of New York since July 1, 1911, less 10,140, who left the city immediately, and the excess of birth over death in that period of 5,000, he arrives at a total of 906,400 as the Jewish population of New York City on Jan. 1, 1912.

Immigration Figures.

Dr. Jacobs checks up his figures from the number of arrivals year by year.

"It was estimated in 1877 that the Jews of New York numbered 60,000," he says. "Between 1881 and 1884 a number of 74,310 Jews reached the United States, of whom at least 60,000 came to New York. From 1885 to 1889 417,010 reached New York, making a total of 1,372,189 who were added by immigration to the original 60,000 Jews of 1877. But of the 826,558 Jews who landed at New York, not less than 227,523 left immediately, a proportion of 26.4.

"Applying this proportion throughout the whole period, this would allow for about 350,000 leaving New York at once. But, beside this, a certain number are deported, mainly from New York; thus during the eleven years between 1900 and 1910, 10,140 were thus deported—about 1 per cent. of the total Jewish immigration to the United States during that period. Besides this, a certain number of those arriving here had already been in the United States before and should of course not be counted as additions to the population. Thus, between the years 1900 and 1908, 19,863 of the total immigration were of this category out of 893,216, or about 2 per cent. Further, a certain number of Jewish immigrants returned to their own countries in the three years, 1908 to 1910, some 19,494 out of 245,198, or about 8 per cent.

"Thus about 11 per cent. of the total immigration may be described as 'deported and departed or here before.' This percentage would remove another 150,000 from the Jewish additions to New York, reducing them to 882,189. But further, the Industrial Removal Office has removed from New York in the years 1900 to 1910 no less than 49,574, leaving a grand total of Jews added to New York since 1877 at 832,615, or, with the 60,000 that was already there, the total number of Jews in New York would be 892,615—nearly the same number we reached from the deaths and marriages."

Through the same methods Dr. Jacobs arrives at the conclusion that 10 per cent. of the Jews now in New York are native born of native parents, as against 19.8 per cent. of the population in general, while another 20 per cent. are native born of foreign parentage, making a total of 30 per cent. born in America, or nearly 300,000 out of the 900,000.

Through the records of the United Hebrew Charities he reaches the conclusion that, roughly speaking, two-thirds of the Jews arriving here from 1884 to 1905 were Russians, one-quarter Austrians, and one-twentieth Roumanians, or that of the whole Jewish population Russians are five-ninths and Austrians two-ninths.

CAIN TO DIE ON MARCH 4.

His Crime Like That of a Ferocious Malay, Says the Court.

Judge Warren W. Foster, in General Sessions yesterday, condemned to death John Cain, the negro who murdered three men and stabbed six others on Columbus Avenue, between 102d and 104th Streets, on the evening of May 17, 1911.

Cain stood at the bar, supported by his lawyer Terence McManus and the guards, while the Judge described his crime as "rather that of a ferocious Malay than of a man who had enjoyed the benefits of civilization." When the Judge fixed the date, March 4, for his death, Cain leaned heavily on the railing, but he was able to walk unassisted to his solitary confinement.

UNTERMYER AUTO SMASHED.

No One Injured When Motors Mix Up in Fifth Avenue.

An automobile owned by Samuel Untermyer of 675 Fifth Avenue was so badly damaged by a collision with two other vehicles yesterday afternoon on Fifth Avenue that it had to be towed back to the garage. In the car were Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, her daughter, and Mrs. Demarest.

They were going south when a motor truck, belonging to the Green Express Company of Morris Park Avenue, the Bronx, turned into the avenue at Fiftieth Street while at the same time one of the New York Transport Company's motor trucks came in from the opposite direction. In attempting to stop the Transport Company's wagon skidded over the icy street into the Untermyer car and forced it against the oncoming express wagon.

A lamp was broken on the Express truck, and the machinery of the Transport vehicle was slightly deranged, but both were able to continue on their way.

No one was injured and no arrests were made.

"Two Straight Lines Cannot Enclose a Space"

"Two straight lines cannot enclose a space." The signification of this axiom, as used in our trade mark, is this: Economy, Quality and Speed are the three essentials to profitable building construction, and as these elements are severally compounded of each other, it follows that the absence of one will neutralize the other two. In other words, Economy, Quality and Speed are interdependent and no two of these elements can be fully realized without the third, any more than a triangle can exist if you remove one of its sides.

FINGER PRINTS CONVICT.

Negro Elevator Boy Is Found Guilty of First Degree Murder.

Joseph Roberts, the negro elevater boy who was on trial for having killed Isaac Vogel, an old jewelry peddler, was found guilty of murder in the first degree yesterday afternoon after the jury had deliberated an hour and a half.

The trial of Roberts, which was carried on for the State by Assistant District Attorney Frank A. Moss and Oscar Zinn, and for the defendant by Dennis O. Cohalan and L. E. Ginn, was remarkable because of the importance which finger prints played in the testimony.

Neither the gruelling cross-examination nor the summing up of Mr. Moss was able to dispel the stolid defiance of the negro, who at the beginning of the trial tried to put the blame on Vogel's son-in-law and later on upon Asher Schapps, the Superintendent of the building. When the foreman pronounced the word "Guilty" Roberts put his fingers in his vest and, staring calmly before him, walked back to the Tombs.

The case of Roberts makes the third conviction for murder in the first degree in this county since Jan. 1. Joseph Ferroni, who murdered his wife on Oct. 24, was prosecuted by Assistant District Attorney Manley before Judge W. W. Foster and sentenced to death Jan. 19. John Cain, the negro who murdered three persons last May on Columbus Avenue, was prosecuted by Frank A. Moss and sentenced yesterday morning to be executed on March 4. This constitutes a record number for the District Attorney's office of New York County. All three cases were tried before Judge Foster.

WIFE'S REBUFF ENDS CRUIKSHANK'S HOPES

Disappearing Captain Goes to Potsdam, but Wronged Woman Refuses to See Him.

CONFERS LONG WITH LAWYER

Said to Have Signed Legal Papers, but Departs in Distress Over Failure of His Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

POTSDAM, N. Y., Jan. 26.—In an effort to effect a reconciliation with his wife, whom he left mysteriously a year ago and allowed to think him dead, Capt. Barton Cruikshank returned to his native town to-day, which is singularly enough the first birthday of his son whom he has never seen.

To-night he left for Syracuse, evidently much distressed by the failure of his mission. He failed to get a glimpse of either his wife or children, and in fact made no effort to do so when told her decision not to see him was final.

Practically all his time in the village was spent behind locked doors in the office of Judge George B. Fuller, Mrs. Cruikshank's attorney, consulting Judge Fuller and Herbert N. Stickney, who married Mrs. Cruikshank's sister. At this conference the Captain signed papers waving all interest in life insurance policies, soon to mature, and also in a piece of farm land near the village. It is said he also signed a document in which he declares his wife had no connection with the "fake" drowning.

Nervous as He Neared Home.

Capt. Cruikshank arrived here at 12:45 P. M. He was visibly nervous when his train neared the village from which he dropped out of sight more than a year ago.

"I sincerely long for a chance to return home, and if possible start all over again," he said. "But that part of it is up to Mrs. Cruikshank and her family. At any rate, I shall continue to contribute, as far as I possibly can, to their support. It is up to Mrs. Cruikshank to say whether that support shall come in the form of alimony or natural channels."

"My wife is a wonderful woman," he said, meditatively. "I will admit that I made a mistake, a grave error, but that is past now. I never worry about anything, so the past will have to be buried as best it may."

When the train arrived, the sleeper in which Capt. Cruikshank was riding, the last in the train, was near the middle of the railroad bridge. There was some delay in Cruikshank's getting off, as he did not want to go through the train and face people, but he was compelled to do so.

Many reporters and photographers were on the train, and a crowd of curious townspeople were waiting at the station. As he stepped from the train he was met by Mr. Stickney, who shook hands with him. Then, arm in arm, they walked to the station. Glancing up, Capt. Cruikshank saw Station Agent O'Sullivan, who called out: "Hello, Bart!" and they shook hands. While Stickney and Cruikshank walked toward a hack, the cameras were clicking. One photographer got too close, and Cruikshank made a lunge at him. Just as he entered the hack he put his hat before his face to baffle another photographer.

Cruikshank and Stickney were driven at once to Judge Fuller's office, and later the three went to the Albion Hotel for dinner. They eluded reporters and photographers by leaving the hotel by a rear door and alleyway, and returned to Judge Fuller's office, where they went into conference. All communication with the office, telephone and otherwise, was cut off.

Wife Refused to See Him.

The consultation lasted all afternoon. The only fact that came out was that all the overtures, made by Cruikshank to his wife after arrival, were repelled by her. She absolutely refused to see him or have anything to do with him. Her brother-in-law says she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

Soon after 6 o'clock Cruikshank came out of Judge Fuller's office, and with his brother-in-law walked to the station, where he took a train for Syracuse. He would say nothing as to his destination, but it is said he checked his baggage to that city.

His disappointment at the rebuff of his wife was evident. Although the family had announced that there would be no reconciliation, Cruikshank was hopeful that his wife would receive him and that he could see his children again.

Neither Mrs. Cruikshank, her brother-in-law, nor her attorney will discuss the case.

Various opinions are held by townspeople in regard to Cruikshank. Some old acquaintances feel very bitter toward him, and do not hesitate to speak their minds. General sympathy is with the wife.

FRIENDS BAND TO GIVE AID.

Nine Brooklyn Teachers to Help Cruikshank Regain His Feet.

Nine teachers at the Manual Training High School in Brooklyn, who knew Capt. Barton S. Cruikshank when he taught mechanical drawing there some years ago, have banded together to give financial aid to the man who was "drowned" in the St. Lawrence, but has "come back to life." The nine have perfect confidence in the engineer and believe in his ability to "make good," now that he has been discovered to be still alive.

The members of this Cruikshank relief corps feel that with a little aid and encouragement the Captain will soon be on his feet again. It is not their intention to establish him in business, but to see to it that he is as comfortable as possible while he is working for himself. They have urged him to settle in Brooklyn and engage in business as an engineer. The treasurer of the band, who is interested in a concern which has offices near where the Captain was in business as Donald Douglas, said last night that none of the nine took any stock in most of the stories about the Captain.

"There is no telling what any of us might have done, had we been in the same fix Bart was in," said this man. "Of course, we all know he did not do right, that he made a great mistake, but any of us might have done the same thing, or worse. I talked to Bart by telephone yesterday and assured him that all his old friends were for him and would do everything possible to help him. I urged him to stay here in New York under his own name and stick to business. If he does so he will succeed, for he has ability as an engineer. I fully believe had he been left undiscovered for two years he would have made lots of money and have settled everything.

"He was always wanting to do something 'big,' instead of looking after the little things. This, I think, was the cause of his failure and his money troubles. When he wanted to start a military school, instead of starting in a small way, he went into it big, borrowed all the money he could, and failed. But those of us who know him are certain now that he has determined to 'face the music' and that he will come out of this all right."

USE MOST CIGARETTES.

Despite Legislation and Anti-Smoke Leagues, Ten Billion of Them Were Made Here in 1911.

The National reputation of the American people as the cigarette smokers of the world stands vindicated for 1911, according to statistics compiled and published to-day by The United States Tobacco Journal from monthly returns of the internal revenue receipts. According to these figures, despite "hoosier legislation" designed to ban and extinguish the little cigarette, nearly 10,000,000,000 of them were manufactured in this country in the year just ended, without counting several billions more that were tax exempt because rolled by the smokers themselves—any one of whom, even an average healthy office boy, could stow away the smoke of several thousands in much less than a year.

The heavier smoke of the more manly big cigar has also risen in thicker and denser fragrance than ever through the land, in 1911, according to the same figures, the incense of no less than 7,270,144,822 of them having been wafted upward to the Goddess Nicotine, as against 200,000,000 less in the preceding year.

And yet the tobacco paper laments the comparative decline of cigar smoking as "a disparaging showing."

Here are the figures that will irritate the eyes of the Anti-Smoke Leagues throughout the land:

Output of large cigars in 1911, 7,270,144,822; increase, 206,336,076.

Little cigars in 1911, 1,207,748,118; increase, 160,010,239.

Manufactured tobacco, pounds, 389,865,917; decrease, 54,275,433.

Taking the length of the average large cigar as four inches, the total consumed in the United States in the year 1911, if laid in a straight line, would girdle the earth eighteen times, while the cigarettes turned out, if measuring only three inches on the average, would girdle the globe nineteen times, to the nineteenfold endangerment of the health and morals of every small boy en route, from Holland to Hindustan and from the Yildiz Palace to the Hotel Martha Washington.

That the masses have already deserted the big brown for the little white coffin nail, is shown by a comparison of the tobacco figures with the figures of the country's population. Taking that population as 90,000,000, every man, woman, and child—for the purpose of argument only, dear Mr. Anti-Smoke—would have rolled forth the gray-blue aroma of eighty large cigars in the year just past; thirteen small cigars, and the unspeakable injury of 109 wicked cigarettes, not to mention four pounds of smoking tobacco in pipes or hand-rolled cigarettes—a pretty heavy per capita for a growing Nation.

Acknowledging Courtesies.

Streets Must Be Improved Before It Is Too Late, He Tells Architects.

FOR NEW DIAGONAL AVENUE

Would Limit Height of Buildings in Fifth Avenue—Wider Streets Don't Please Edwards.

More than 150 architects, many of them from out of town, were present last night at the annual dinner preceding the opening of the twenty-seventh exhibition of the Architectural League of New York in the Fine Arts Building, in West Fifty-seventh Street. Plans for a new and improved Fifth Avenue and for a more beautiful city in general were discussed by Borough President McAneny, Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, R. Clipston Sturgis, ex-Commissioner of Schools and Buildings of Boston, and others.

William A. Boring, President of the league, presided. He said the society had grown from seventy members to 500. In presenting Mr. McAneny he said, "Our Borough President has accomplished wonders in making Fifth Avenue a wider thoroughfare. Further improvement to the street can be made by doing something to give it character."

Mr. McAneny said he was glad for the opportunity to tell the assembled architects what could be done in the way of making a start for future civic improvements and some of the things that have already been done. The city, he said, was badly planned in the first place, and that everybody had come to realize it.

It is not too late to correct early mistakes, he declared, if work be started before rising values make such plans out of the question. He told of the widening of Fifth Avenue and other streets, and stated that Fifth Avenue from Forty-seventh Street to Washington Square has not been repaved for something like fourteen years. He said he proposed to have that part of the thoroughfare repaved in the Spring.

Mr. McAneny urged the architects to consider the things already accomplished in street improvements, and asserted his belief that it would be a good idea to have the height of buildings in Fifth Avenue restricted, and possibly have them harmonize with one another architecturally. He was of the opinion that the thoroughfare should be made one of the most beautiful in the world.

Mr. McAneny then told of plans for the new civic centre. He said he would like to see City Hall Park restored to its original simple beauty, and the Federal Building and the old Tweed Court House removed. He advocated an avenue running diagonally from the new civic centre, cutting through Chinatown, to the Manhattan Bridge, and open places with trees from old St. Paul's Church to the new gate to Brooklyn. If he should not succeed in the carrying out of some of his plans, he declared that he proposes to have borough commissions appointed for civic improvement if it be possible.

The Criminal Court Building, he said, should come down, and in a few weeks, he announced, he is going to ask for an appropriation for that purpose.

"The old building," he said laughingly, "is all right, but it cracks once in a while."

Mr. McAneny was followed by Commissioner Edwards. "It is snowing to-night," began Mr. Edwards, "so you can imagine my state of mind at sitting down to a dinner when I shall have to work later on."

"Mr. McAneny," he continued, "can go to plenty of neighborhood improvement committees when he wants anything done, but there is no one I can go to in a similar case. By widening Fifth Avenue seven feet on each side of the street he has made more work for my men, but they do not get paid any better, and they are deserving of better pay, though sometimes the whip hand must be held over them. I think it would be better if some of the associations for improving and beautifying the streets would interest themselves in having the streets cleaned."

The league's exhibition opens to-morrow, and medals and prizes have been awarded as follows: Medal of honor for architecture, Charles A. Pratt; medal of honor for sculpture, Daniel Chester French, and medal of honor for mural painting, Charles Y. Turner.

The prize offered by the league for collaborative design of painting, sculpture, and architecture went to the following men: For architecure, William J. Semuley; for painting, Edward Simmons, and for sculpture, Paul Jennewin. The latter also was awarded the Avery prize of $50 for sculpture.

The exhibition, including paintings, mural decorations, sculpture, and architectural designs, will continue until Feb. 17. It will be open to the public.

MRS. BLAIR SUED FOR $100,000

Art Dealer's Son Declares She Has Not Paid for Many Pieces of Bric-a-Brac.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 26.—An expensive hobby has made Mrs. Mary A. I. Blair, wife of Chauncey J. Blair, Vice President of the Corn Exchange National Bank, defendant in a suit for $100,000 brought against her by Earl H. Deakin, son of the late James Henry Deakin, dealer in Oriental art works and jewelry, in the Circuit Court.

Mr. Deakin, as executor of his father's estate, claims that Mrs. Blair obtained a number of valuable pieces of Oriental bric-a-brac from his father and has not paid for them. Mrs. Blair contends that the bill is unjust. She admits she owes the Deakin estate money, but says it is not nearly as much as the sum asked, $100,000.

Mr. Blair, who is handling the matter for his wife, said to-night the suit is a mistake. He maintains Deakin kept his accounts loosely and failed to credit Mrs. Blair with a number of articles which she took "on approval" and returned. Mrs. Blair's home at 4,300 Drexel Boulevard contains one of the most valuable collection of Oriental curios and art works in the world.

One of Mrs. Blair's daughters, Italia, created a sensation in Chicago society circles in 1907 by her romantic marriage to a Spanish grandée, Ricardo Soriano D'Ivanrey.

RUNAWAY CHILDREN CAUGHT.

Romance of a Pair of Eloping Schoolmates Interrupted by Police.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 26.—Chief of Police Michael O'Connell, accompanied by the officers of the local Police Department, arrested Albert E. Tams, Jr., of 744 Cass Street, Trenton, and May Leckman of 358 Morris Avenue, Trenton, schoolmates, at a boarding house on Paterson Street, to-night.

When charged with being the missing couple whose disappearance from Trenton was reported yesterday morning, they at first hung their heads in an embarrassed way, but finally acknowledged that the officers were right. The parents of both have been notified, and will come here from Trenton to get the children.

Men's $28, $30, $32 & $35
SUITS and OVERCOATS
At $17.50

Rather a greatly diminished profit than a lot of troublesome entries under the heading "On Hand, February 1st."

Hence, a quick dismissal of these fine Gimbel Overcoats and Suits that have won favor at their full prices among well-dressed New Yorkers.

Several hundred in the collection, affording a fine range of sizes and a variety of styles, fabrics and colors that will satisfy the taste of almost every man.

The OVERCOATS At $17.50

Double-breasted Ulsters, Storm Coats, Convertible Collar Coats, Raglans, and three-quarter length styles, in cheviots, tweeds, double-faced materials, and plain Oxford grays, black and blues.

The SUITS At $17.50

In extreme and conservative models, many with the narrow shoulders, in no-padding style. Plenty of plain blues and blacks, as well as some of the handsomest mixtures we have shown this season.

Remember that men who buy their Winter Clothing now, have the great tactical advantage of having practically a brand new Suit or Overcoat to carry over until next Winter, besides several months of comfort this season.

Men's $2.50, $3 and $3.50 Fancy Vests at $1.35

Flannels, serges, worsteds, mercerized and wash fabrics in many good patterns and colorings, in all sizes from 33 to 46 chest measure. Fourth Floor

Clearance of Men's Scarfs at 65c

Most of them were marked $1, the remainder were $1.50, with a few even higher. While there are some plain blues and other solid colors in the lot, most of the Neckties are in fancy patterns, which is, frankly, why they are 65c. But for the man who likes a few fancy neckties in his collection for the sake of contrast, the picking is very fine indeed. Some club and regimental stripes, many figured and scroll effects, in all sorts of color-combinations on silks and satins.

Several hundred in the offering today, all at 65c each. Main Floor

THE MANCHUS—AND AFTER

THE remarkable feature of the present crisis in China is not the imminent collapse of the Manchu dynasty, but the fact of that dynasty's existence. There is no parallel in history for a situation in which an alien race numbering but one per cent. of the total population (4,000,000 among 400,000,000), inferior to the governed race in intellectual and business ability, lacking even a literature of its own, maintained despotic sway for 270 years.

There has already appeared in these columns a synopsis of the great composite article CHINA (running to 113,000 words and written by 11 leading authorities) in the 11th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The student of affairs who turns to it and to the companion articles Manchuria, Mongols, Ural-Altaic, Turks, etc. (to all of which he is referred in the Index volume under Manchu) for the reason of so anomalous a state of affairs will not only find that it is explainable, but that the concurrence of events which originally laid China open to Manchu aggression is almost exactly duplicated in the situation in that country at the present moment.

The Manchu Conquest of China.

In 1642 the Chinese Empire was, as now, "torn by internal dissensions." The Ming dynasty was threatened.

"Rebel bands, enriched by plunder and grown bold by success, began to assume "the proportion or armies. Two rebels, Li Tsze-ch'eng and Shang K'o-hi, de-"cided to divide the empire between them. Li besieged K'ai-feng Fu, the capital "of Ho-nan, and so long and closely did he beleaguer it that in the consequent "famine human flesh was regularly sold in the markets. At length an imperial "force came to raise the siege, but fearful of meeting Li's army they cut through "the dykes of the Yellow River, 'China's Sorrow,' and flooded the whole country, "including the city. The rebels escaped to the mountains, but upwards of 200,-"000 inhabitants perished in the flood, and the city became a heap of ruins (1642). "From K'ai-feng Fu Li marched against the other strongholds of Ho-nan and "Shen-si, and was so completely successful that he determined to attack Peking. "A treacherous eunuch opened the gates to him, on being informed of which the "emperor committed suicide. When the news of this disaster reached the general "commanding on the frontier of Manchu Tatary, he, in an unguarded moment, "concluded a peace with the Manchus, invited them to dispossess Li Tsze-ch'eng. "The Manchus entered China and after defeating a rebel army sent against "them they marched towards Peking. On hearing the approach of the invaders, "Li Tsze-ch'eng, after having set fire to the imperial palace, evacuated the city, "but was overtaken, and his force was completely routed.

"The Chinese now wished the Manchus to retire, but having taken possession "of Peking, they proclaimed the ninth son of T'ien-ming emperor of China under "the title of Shun-chi, and adopted the name of Ta-ts'ing, or 'Great Pure,' for "the dynasty (1644)."

No one can read this passage without the idea occurring that a similar termination of the present crisis is far from improbable. Will there be intervention, as there was 270 years ago, and will the intervening power, having restored order, refuse to retire? And will the deus ex machina be the Japanese, the Russians, or the Powers acting jointly? Or is it possible that the Mongols of the north will side with their kinsmen the Manchus and eventually establish a new Mongolian dynasty at Peking?

The New Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition)

28 Volumes and Index

The new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is offered by the Press of the University of Cambridge as a fresh survey of the practical and useful, no less than of the learned and recondite things of life. Nothing is alien to it that interests or concerns the members of a civilized community, and it contains the largest body of information to be found in one work. At once exhaustive and comprehensive in the fullest sense of these terms, this great repository of human knowledge comprises 40,000 articles, 44,000,000 words, 7,000 text illustrations, 450 full-page plates and 569 maps. It is of even date, 1910, throughout, the entire text having remained under editorial control until the whole was finally released to the printer. Among the 1,500 scholars, specialist authorities, and practical experts of 21 countries who wrote its articles, were included the Chancellors, Presidents, Professors and Lecturers of 81 Universities or Foundations of Learning. 202 of the contributors were Americans. The overhead editorial cost of production was $1,500,000, which was disbursed before a single volume was printed for sale.

A BOOK FOR EVERYBODY, the new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is offered at a price and on terms which bring it WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERYBODY. For Prospectus, particulars of the present special offer, etc., write (or if convenient call on)

SEES INJUSTICE IN IMMIGRATION BILLS

M. J. Kohler Says the Dillingham Plan of Restriction Would Violate Our Treaties.

LIKE A TICKET-OF-LEAVE LAW

Section Requiring Certificates of Identification Would Prove Costly—Report Didn't Disclose Evils.

Strong disapproval of the Dillingham bill reported by the Senate Committee, further restricting immigration, was expressed yesterday by Max J. Kohler of 80 Broad Street, who is a member of the Committee on Immigration of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, of which President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard is Chairman. Since the bill was reported by Senator Lodge a similar bill, only more restrictive in that it restores the illiteracy test for immigrants which was dropped by the Senate Committee, has been introduced in the House by Representative Focht of Pennsylvania. Mr. Kohler took exception to both bills, as wel las to the Lodge report on the Senate measure.

"That report," he said yesterday, "was calculated, very likely unintentionally, to keep the public in ignorance of radical changes of a revolutionary character in the proposed law. The vague language of the report and its failure to call attention to the important provisions of the bill are probably responsible for the failure of the press to refer to these radical changes which would not otherwise have escaped strong comment.

"One very important provision of this sort is veiled in the report by language referring simply to a proposed 'consolidation of the Chinese immigration service with the general immigration service in the interest of economy.' As a matter of fact, Section 8 of the bill, to which the report here alludes, excludes all persons not eligible to become citizens by naturalization, with specified exceptions such as to certificates of admission and identity for all admitted aliens against which certificates of readmission upon the departure of such aliens from the United States are to be issued.

Would Violate Treaties.

"This provision is in substance a re-enactment of the Chinese exclusion laws, except that it extends them to other Asiatics such as Japanese, Koreans, Malays, and the like. The statute would violate our treaties with China, with Japan, (with whom we have now a 'gentleman's agreement' excluding only laborers,) and with other countries, and would cause much friction. While it might ameliorate the Chinese exclusion laws somewhat, in some respects, and make them more oppressive in others, it would have a very bad effect in consolidating these laws with our general immigration laws, and accustom the immigration authorities—who would then enforce all these provisions in common—with the practice in vogue under the Chinese exclusion laws, of rejecting uncontradicted evidence in favor of aliens.

"More revolutionary still is the provision in Section 18, requiring all alien immigrants whatsoever to procure in duplicate 'certificates of admission and identification,' and return certificates, thus establishing a sort of 'ticket of leave' system for all aliens. What the use of the certificate would be is not apparent. as, unlike the Chinese exclusion laws, it is not made the exclusive method of establishing right of residence here—in which event it would be very oppressive, because of loss of certificates, changes in appearance, and impossibility of segregating aliens from American citizens and aliens who are now here, who are not required to have any certificates—and is not authority for readmission of such aliens, after trips abroad. Its enforcement would cost millions of dollars in the way of additional Government employes to make out such certificates, and it would seriously retard ingress of all aliens into the country while the certificates are being prepared, and retard their egress on visits abroad while arranging to secure return certificates, and ignorance of these silly requirements would lead to many thousands of exclusions and deportations. A general discriminatory anti-alien feeling would be engendered by these provisions, and even in the present form they probably are violative of treaty obligations toward foreign countries.

Objects to Deportation Measures.

"Another objectionable provision of the bill is that authorizing the deportation of persons who become public charges through causes arising prior to landing here, and makes the time allowed for such deportation unlimited instead of three years as at present. Still worse, it allows the deportation of persons becoming public charges through causes arising subsequent to landing within three years, while at present there is no deportation at all in such cases. This provision would make it possible to deport an alien injured here and found in a hospital, and would be particularly hard on widows and orphans of such injured aliens.

"Again, the bill makes it a crime for any person or association or society—not merely a steamship company or its employes, as at present—to 'solicit, invite, or encourage any alien to come to the United States.' This would make it a crime even for one brother to invite another to come here from a land of persecution for religious or other views, under assurance of finding the refugee work and supporting him till then, and would deport the alien so coming.

"The law further adds to existing restrictions by increasing the penalty to steamship companies for bringing over undesirable aliens, in that it imposes not only a heavier fine for undesirable aliens so brought over—which were well enough—but also penalizes them for bringing over aliens 'afflicted with any mental or physical defect of a nature which may affect his ability to earn a living.' Of course, innumerable defects may exist, really negligible in character, which nevertheless 'may' affect ability to earn a living, especially when viewed from a medical standpoint merely, without reference to the testimony as to occupation or dependency on others. Medical examination alone is not sufficient; a broken finger may affect the ability of a pianist to earn a living, but not in any way the ability of a lawyer to do so.

"The language of the bill should be altered to read 'mental or physical defects likely to affect his ability to earn a living.'

"Serious consequences may follow from the novel expedient of vesting the Commissioner General of Immigration with power to establish rules and regulations to enforce the act, which power is so important and far-reaching that it has heretofore been vested in the heads of departments alone. It should be limited in terms by inserting the words 'with the written approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.'

"We do not want to have paupers come here, nor persons likely to become paupers; nor anarchists, criminals, contract laborers, or persons mentally or physically defective. On the other hand, we do not want our laws to be so phrased as to keep out others who are desirable and whom this country needs."

W. T. BULL ESTATE SUED.

Miss Nevins Asserts That an Agreement Has Been Broken.

Florence M. Nevins began suit yesterday against the estate of Dr. William T. Bull, to compel the estate to pay her $100 a month. Miss Nevins said that the monthly $100 was due her under an agreement made in 1898, when Dr. Bull purchased her interests in an estate.

The payments were continued during Dr. Bull's life, she said, by him, and after his death they were made steadily by his widow, Mrs. Marie Nevins Bull, who died last year. When Mrs. Bull died, she said, she failed to get her money.

It was not revealed yesterday what estate Miss Nevins had an interest in.

SHIP'S MEN LET HER FALL.

Mrs. Davis Sprained Her Ankle and Had to be Carried—Sues for $20,000.

Mrs. Ada Davis's $20,000 suit against the Hamburg-American Line for personal injuries went to trial yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Amend and a jury. Mrs. Davis is a prominent charity worker and is the wife of Joseph H. Davis, a wealthy realty operator. They live at Riverside Drive and 109th Street.

Mrs. Davis testified that in March, 1910, she engaged passage for a Spring cruise in the Caribbean Sea on the liner Moltke. At the Port of Spain, Trinidad, she said the liner anchored three miles off shore, and passengers who wanted to visit the island had to be taken ashore in lifeboats.

She went ashore in this way, with her friend, Mrs. Marshall Freeman, who was in court to testify for her. At midnight, they had to get the last boat back to the ship. She stepped into an uncovered opening in the floor of the boat and sprained her ankle.

On the trip home, Mrs. Davis said she had to be carried to and from her cabin, the dining room and the deck, by stewards. She was the last passenger off the ship at Hoboken, she testified. Then four stewards started to take her down a gangplank in a chair. They found that the passage between the rails was too narrow to allow them to pass the chair. Then there was a delay and a consultation. Mrs. Davis admitted that this was due to her weight, which was 181 pounds. At last, she said, the stewards lifted the chair to their shoulders. Mrs. Davis described how the 200 other passengers on the dock watched the scene to her great embarrassment.

Then came an accident. The stewards stumbled under their load, and the chair was thrown down and broken, while she rolled down the gangplank. She was severely injured at this time, she said, and had to be taken to her home in an ambulance.

Mrs. Davis told the jury that her injuries were permanent. She said she had been accustomed to take a four-mile walk each day to reduce her weight, and now that she is able to hobble only a few blocks, her weight is increasing enormously to her great pain and humiliation.

The steamship line will offer its side of the case on Monday.

BRIGHT BOYS FOR THE FARM.

Dullards a Failure in Agriculture, Says Child Welfare Committee.

A conference on agricultural education for dependent and delinquent boys began yesterday, under the auspices of the New York Child Welfare Committee, and developed the interesting fact that the only boys who do not succeed in farm work are the stupid ones. The bright boys thrive at it and become prosperous. Any dullard, it was said by several students of the subject, can become mechanics or clerks, after a course of training, and do well enough to keep their jobs, but the labor of the farm requires brains, energy, and ambition.

Among those who took part in the discussion were R. R. Reeder, Superintendent of the New York Orphan Asylum; Prof. E. K. Eyerly of the Massachusetts State Agricultural College; William R. George, founder of the George Junior Republic; Brother Barnabas, Superintendent of the Lincoln Agricultural School; Prof. George F. Warren of the New York State College of Agriculture; Prof. Davis of Rutgers College, Prof. C. S. Morgan of Columbia University, William B. Osgood Field, Dr. George A. Hubbell, President of the Lincoln Memorial University; George T. Powell, President of the Agricultural Association, and Henry William Geller, Superintendent of the Baron de Hirsch Agricultural School.

The general sentiment of the speakers was in favor of some sort of uplifting employment for boys. They agreed that set tasks, made for both physical and moral betterment. Mr. Reeder said that in 1902 161 inmates of the orphan asylum were measured and weighed, and eighty-seven of them were below the standard and thirty-nine above. Two years later, out of 174, only forty-nine were below the standard and eighty were above. This increase has become permanent and was due to the habit of fixed hours of labor.

Brother Barnabas said:

"Only the brightest boys like the farm. My Board of Managers often declare it's the dullard for the farm and the bright boy for the city trade, and my greatest task has been to teach them otherwise. We find that you can take the dull fellow and put him at almost any trade and in a little while he can hold a job in the city. But in the country, with a new problem every hour, the boy must be a bright fellow to get along and not become the joke of the section."

Mr. Powell said that wages for farm hands have increased 55 per cent. in the past ten years and factory wages only 31 per cent.

The conference will be continued to-day.

SELL ADAMS CHURCH.

Dr. Parkhurst's Congregation Adds $60,000 to Endowment Fund.

Under a plea that it must get a larger endowment to maintain its work, the Madison Square Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst is pastor, has sold the Adams Memorial Church in Thirtieth Street, near Third Avenue, for $60,000, and will add this sum to its invested funds. Its endowment will amount to $370,000. It had held the Adams Church property for many years.

The purchaser was the Church Extension Committee of the New York Presbytery. The latter will now hold the property and permit the congregation to go on as before. The new pastor, the Rev. F. D. Niedermeyer, was until recently at Mizpah Chapel.

In every detail the Leading Retail Establishment of Brooklyn.

The Subway to Hoyt Street Brings the Loeser Store Within 17 Minutes of Forty-second Street.

Here Is the Greatest Sale of Scientific Books Ever Held in New York City.

THE LOESER STORE is now privileged to distribute at phenomenally low prices a stock of high grade and standard Books which will stir interest not only locally, but among students and men who think—among public librarians and people of culture all over the country wherever the Sale and its opportunities become known.

Our purchase is of the stock of the Twentieth Century Publishing Company, of No. 2 West 16th Street, Manhattan, in business for 25 years, and now failed. They were best known as publishers of the

the most famous collection of standard scientific authors ever published in the United States, many titles of which have never appeared in any other edition. The subjects represented in this famous Library include

Astronomy
Biology
Botany
Philosophy
Education Economics
Electricity
Psychology
Ethics
Evolution
Geography
Geology
History
Hypnotism

The various works are by standard authors, such as Bain, Flammarion, Geikie, Lubbock, Karl Marx, J. S. Mill, Darwin, Huxley, Spencer, Tyndall, etc.

In addition to this splendid Library, the publishers dealt in a large variety of other standard works which are also here for quick dispersal at a fraction of their published prices. The stock of the Twentieth Century Company was purchased entire at the New York Public Marshal's sale, December 13, 1911. We place on sale here today everything except some Books in paper covers. All the Books in this Sale are substantially bound library editions.

MANHATTAN BOYS TRIUMPH IN GAMES

Stuyvesant and Townsend Harris Schools Tied for First Honors in Athletics.

The athletes of Stuyvesant and Townsend Harris Hall High Schools were tied for the honors in the ninth annual high school championships of the Public Schools Athletic League at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory last night. It was the first time since the championships were inaugurated, ten years ago, that Manhattan high school boys have figured in the honors. Manual Training High School, which has captured the big schoolboy meet five times in succession, took a severe tumble in prestige last night and finished last in the list, with only 3 points scored.

Three high school records were broken in the keen competition of the evening. The most notable of these was the new mark made by Arthur Lent of Stuyvesant in the half-mile run. Lent was away with a jump and was always in front, increasing his lead steadily as the race progressed. Way out in the van, he ran such a strong race that he finished fifty yards in front of his teammate, C. Bryant, in the fast time of 2:05, which was 1 1-5 seconds better than the old record, made in 1908. A new mark was also made in the one-mile run for evening high schools, J. R. Manning of the Harlem Evening High School traveling the distance in 4:55 4-5, a fifth of a second better than the old record.

The most surprising record occurred in the one mile relay race for evening high schools. The New York Evening High School team was timed at 3:51 1-5, while the old record was 4:05 1-5. It was a shock to the record book to have fourteen seconds clipped off the old mark, but the New York Evening High School athletes insist that their team is one of the fastest ever developed in the evening schools.

The competition was close in the high jump, and for a time it looked as if the old record of 5 feet 8¾ inches was in danger. Downey of Erasmus Hall and Trefry of Commercial tied for first place at 5 feet 8 inches, while Wallace of Commerce and R. Fisher were tied for second place.

Stuyvesant and Townsend Harris scored 18 points each, while the High School of Commerce was next with 16 points. Erasmus came next with 13, and Curtis and De Witt Clinton were tied with 12 points each. The meet was attended by a large crowd, and the enthusiasm and rivalry between the different schools furnished enough noise to drown the busiest moments in a boiler factory.

Charley Ten Eyck of Jamaica, the P. S. A. L. cross-country champion, won the mile race in impressive fashion, letting the other runners set the pace most of the way. While his schoolmate, M. Thompson, was fighting it out with the field, Ten Eyck sneaked into the lead in the last lap and won out by three feet. Schiffman of Stuyvesant took the lead for the first three laps, with Weg of De Witt Clinton and Ten Eyck behind him. Ten Eyck went ahead for a time, and then let Schiffman make pace again for a lap. The cross-country champion stuck at his heels until rounding into the stretch, when he showed the way home in 4:56, which was much slower than the record.

Stuyvesant's quartet of 100-pound runners won the 440-yard relay race by a scant foot from Townsend Harris. For three parts of the journey Townsend showed the way, and on the third touch-off Stuyvesant and Eastern District came up and the last stage of the journey began with three runners abreast. On the last turn Tedaldi of Stuyvesant and B. Kohn of Townsend fought hard for the lead. Tedaldi had the pole, and in the final sprint beat out Kohn by a foot. Eastern District was third. Tedaldi's time was two seconds behind the record.

The New York Evening High School relay team established a new record in the mile relay race, hanging up figures of 3:51, which beats the old record made last year by the New Lots Evening High School team by 14 seconds. The victorious team was made up of Schultze, Hertzel, Weinberg, and Gandy. Opposed to this quartet were runners from Brooklyn, Stuyvesant, and Harlem High Schools. The New York runners took the lead at the start and were in front at every touch-off. Brooklyn pushed them to their best effort, and it was a hard-fought race all the way. The pace set by the winners was killing, and the fact that a slice of 14 seconds was clipped off the record showed that the New York Evening High School sprinters were forced to travel faster than they ever did before.

BAXTER DEFEATS BROWN.

Knickerbocker Amateur 18.2 Handicap Billiards Will End To-night.

C. G. Baxter (180) defeated M. D. Brown (300) in the twentieth game of the Knickerbocker amateur 18.2 handicap billiard tournament at Keeney's Academy in Brooklyn last night. Baxter ran out his string in fifty innings, with high runs of 17, 15, and 14, and an average of 3 30-50. Brown had 230 to his credit when Baxter ran out. He made high runs of 31, 26, and 20, and made an average of 4 34-49. The victory put Baxter in a position to dispute second place, possibly first, according to the outcome of to-night's game between Brown and C. Scheidig, which will bring the tournament to a close.

The tournament will be brought to a close to-night with a match between M. D. Brown (300) and C. Scheidig, (200.) Some ties are sure to result, regardless of the outcome of to-night's match, but it is not likely that these will be played off until after the coming Class A tournament, which opens at the Hanover Club in Brooklyn Monday night. Brown and Joseph Mayer, who have taken part in this tournament, are also entered in the Hanover Club tourney. Scheidig is the favorite for first place, in view of the form he has displayed during the tournament. He has a clear lead for first place now, but a victory by Brown to-night would make a triple tie for first honors between Brown, Scheidig, and Baxter. If Scheidig wins to-night, Baxter gets second place and Brown, Boyd, and Millette will have to play off a triple tie for third and fourth places, as diamond prizes are offered for the four leading positions.

The score by innings:

C. G. Baxter—3, 0, 0, 0, 0, 15, 0, 2, 0, 0, 2, 10, 0, 2, 0, 4, 5, 0, 1, 3, 4, 2, 4, 2, 2, 14, 17, 0, 2, 3, 14, 9, 0, 5, 3, 1, 0, 4, 5, 2, 9, 6, 4, 3, 2, 2, 2, 7, 5—180. Average, 3 30-50.

M. D. Brown—3, 0, 6, 2, 9, 1, 3, 3, 1, 2, 1, 1, 0, 31, 7, 0, 7, 1, 0, 10, 3, 10, 0, 1, 5, 0, 15, 15, 0, 4, 1, 5, 26, 0, 20, 0, 3, 0, 0, 12, 1, 10, 0, 0, 2, 3, 0—230. Average, 4 34-49.

LEVY VICTOR AT 18.2.

Spear Defeated in First Game of Final Round in Class C Billiards.

The first game of the final round of the National 18.2 amateur Class C championship was played last night at the Morningside Billiard Academy between S. L. Levy and G. W. Spear, the former winning in fifty-eight innings by the score of 200 to 177. The winner made high runs of 21, 20, and 16 and gained an average of 3 26-58, while Spear made high runs of 22, 19, and 14, and got an average of 3 6-57.

In the early part of the game both men played exceptionally good billiards, Spear getting an average better than six for the first fifteen innings, while Levy averaged five for the same period. Levy featured last night's game with some brilliant massé shots, one going almost the entire length of the table.

The game was closely contested all the way, and the leadership changed several times. Spear led from the first inning until the twenty-ninth, when Levy jumped ahead, 124 to 117. At the end of the thirtieth inning Levy led, 125 to 124. At this stage Levy began to forge slightly ahead, and he held the front position to the finish. The score by innings:

S. L. Levy—1 0 5 0 3 21 0 20 1 0 0 3 4 12 1 9 1 0 1 4 1 0 1 2 0 0 2 6 2 8 7 1 4 1 3 16 0 7 0 0 0 4 0 0 7 0 1 0 6 0 0 0 0 9 0 0 12 2 1 2—200. Average, 3 26-58.

Hoppe Beats Cutler Easily at 18.2.

In the continuation of the practice games in preparation for his championship match with George Sutton, Willie Hoppe, the holder of the world's championship titles at 18.2 and 18.1 balk-line billiards, defeated Albert Cutler of Boston, at 18.2, at McGraw's Billiard Academy last night by the score of 400 to 146 in seventeen innings. The champion made a high run of 130 points, and had an average of 23 9-17. Cutler's best effort netted him 29 points, with an average of 8 10-17.

FRENCHMAN IN A DRAW.

De Ponthieu in Clever Bout with Young Dyson at New Polo A. A.

Commissioner Frank S. O'Neil of the State Athletic Commission was a spectator last night at the reopening of the New Polo Athletic Association of Harlem, and was fully repaid for his braving the storm by witnessing an interesting and fast ten-round draw between Louis De Ponthieu, the French featherweight, and Young Dyson of Providence, R. I.

The contest was a hummer from start to finish, with both boys mixing and exchanging blows in all directions to the full enjoyment of the large crowd. The Frenchman, who has improved a great deal since his last contest at the Harlem Club, is very clever, and started off in great style in the first five rounds to pile up a big advantage over his opponent.

He landed on Dyson in rapid-fire style and exhibited wonderful judgment of distance, but his blows lacked the necessary strength, and in the sixth round he lost his speed and the Providence boy came on strong and managed to even the honors.

Dyson at the start took matters easy and allowed De Ponthieu to do the work. The latter set a fast pace, and when not jabbing with his clever hand, exhibited some great footwork by dodging in and out of the wicked swings of Dyson.

"Cyclone" Johnny Thompson Whipped

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 26.—"Cyclone" Johnny Thompson, the American middleweight pugilist, was easily outpointed to-day by Dave Smith, the Australian middleweight pugilist and former champion, in a twenty-round contest at the Stadium here.

TO DRIVE FIAT IN FRANCE.

David Bruce-Brown Will Pilot Car in Foreign Classic.

Although only one American car will start in the French Grand Prix automobile race, at least two American racing pilots will be seen behind the steering wheels of machines in that race. David Bruce-Brown, the New York amateur driver, who has twice won the Grand Prize of the Automobile Club of America at Savannah, has decided to try his skill against the foreign cracks on their own ground this year. The American driver has signed with the Fiat Company of Turin, Italy, to drive one of its cars in the French Grand Prix, in June.

About two months before the last Savannah race meeting David Bruce-Brown went abroad with Ralph de Palma with the express intention of getting an engagement for the Grand Prix. Followers of automobile racing in this country will take a much greater interest in the French race with an American car and two American drivers taking part.

In a letter telling of his engagement by the Fiat Company, Bruce-Brown says the Lorraine-Dietrich people are building some fine cars, 125 by 200 millimeters bore and stroke, for the race.

Stars in Loughlin Lyceum Games.

Four hundred track and field athletes will compete to-night in the games at the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, in Brooklyn, under the auspices of Loughlin Lyceum. Every race should be hotly contested, and the back markers will be National or Metropolitan champions. The 100-meter dash, scratch, will show Alvah Meyer, Charley Clarke, Jim Rosenberger, Hal Heiland, and Jack Eller in action. Harry Gissing of the I.-A. A. C. will run from scratch in the 800-meter handicap, and Billy Kramer of the Long Island A. C. will have the post of honor in the 5,000-meter team race, in which teams from eight clubs will start. The novelty feature will be the family relay race, in which seven "clans" are entered. The Rileys of Greenpoint and the Dolans of the Pastime A. C. are favorites.

Would Referee Wrestling Bout.

The announcement a few days ago that Raicevich, the Italian wrestler, would insist that the referee in his proposed match with Stanislaus Zbyszko must be able to speak the Italian language, has brought forward several applicants. All are of the opinion that they are qualified for the position. Following is a sample application which was received yesterday:

"Dear Sir: Through reading your paper over I saw a statement concerning the wrestling bout between Giovanni Raicevich and Zbyszko. Now I being a young Italian man and speaking English and Italian language and understanding about boxing and wrestling, bout I would like to have the honor of being the Referee of this wrestle. Have no more to say hoping to hear from you

"I remain, Respectfully,

MENINGITIS MENACES GIANTS' MARLIN CAMP

Epidemic of Disease May Cause Baseball Clubs to Change Training Plans.

Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants received a letter yesterday from Ground Keeper John Murphy, who is at Marlin Springs, Texas, getting the baseball park in readiness for the training trip of the New York Club. Murphy's letter gave the facts about the meningitis epidemic which is just now causing much consternation in several cities and towns in Texas.

In Marlin Springs, where the Giants' camp is located, Mr. Murphy says there have been cases of the disease, but the health authorities have watched them very closely and the patients have been treated in an isolation hospital. The landscape gardener of the Polo Grounds states that the people in Marlin who have the disease are recovering and the health authorities do not believe that the disease will spread.

Secretary O'Brien and Manager McGraw are hopeful that at the end of February, when the Giants expect to start for Texas, the meningitis scare will have passed. If it should continue to be as bad in the vicinity of Marlin as it is in places not very far from there, it is likely that another training camp will have to be procured. No arrangements have yet been made toward a change in plans, and it is expected that the Giants will train at Marlin, as usual.

Secretary O'Brien yesterday sent out word to all the Giant regulars that they were expected to report to Manager McGraw at the Arlington Hotel in Marlin Springs on March 1. The recruits, of course, will report a week earlier than the regulars, and will be put through a week of preliminary work before the regulars arrive. The meningitis situation is being handled well by the health authorities, and the Texas papers, which devoted columns to the scare, have numerous reports from hospitals showing that many patients are being discharged daily. The Dallas City Hospital on Thursday discharged twenty patients as cured.

Many of the cities where the Giants have preliminary games scheduled in March are battling with the disease. The health authorities in Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Waco, Austin, and other towns have warned the residents to use extraordinary precautions against the spreading of the disease.

The New York Club will be kept informed as to the conditions at Marlin and will act on the advice of the medical authorities there. The Giants will not be subjected to any dangerous disease of this sort if in the opinion of the health authorities such a proceeding would not be safe.

The Athletics were scheduled to go to Texas in the middle of next month, but Manager Connie Mack is now investigating the situation and will not allow his team to go there if the conditions are as bad at the time of the training season as they are now reported to be.

The White Sox were also to train in Texas, but Manager Jimmy Callahan is also investigating the conditions, and may change his plans if the conditions warrant it.

The situation is so bad in Texas that a rigid quarantine is being enforced by the Louisiana health authorities, and all travel between the States is being closely watched. The towns in Oklahoma near the Texas line also report several cases of meningitis.

Secretary Heydler of the National League yesterday forwarded a check for $100 to Secretary O'Brien, which is the amount allowed by the League to the pennant winners for the purchase of a championship flag. Just what the design will be for the new pennant at the Polo Grounds Stadium is not known, but it will be of silk and as good as the $100 can buy. It will wave to the breezes from the flagmast where the world's championship pennant won by the Giants in 1905 has flown. On the other flagpole in centre field the Stars and Stripes will float.

The Yankee team next season will include more tall players than any other team in the major leagues. As Manager Wolverton figured it out yesterday, there are eleven men in the Yankee squad who stand over 6 feet in height. The giants of the squad and their heights are: Sweeney, 6.2; Caldwell, 6.1; Knight, 6.2; Vaughn, 6.1¼; Williams, 6; Appleby, 6.1; Clarke, 6; McConnell, 6.3; Shears, 6.3½; Stump, 6.0½, and Upham, 6.

The first regular member of the Yankees to sign a contract for this year was Harry Wolter, the right fielder, who is now coaching baseball at Santa Clara College, in California. Wolter said in the letter which accompanied his contract that he would probably finish his coaching duties in time to report for Spring training. Another regular signed yesterday was Bert Daniels, the outfielder, who is employed as a civil engineer during the Winter.

The schedule meeting of the International League, which was to have been held at Providence on Feb. 14, has been postponed until Feb. 21, when the new Detroit owners of the Grays will entertain the International League club owners at a dinner in that city.

Manager Roger Bresnahan of the Cardinals has signed a Pacific Coast player named Million. Just watch and see what they call that fellow before the season ends.

Davis Takes Hold at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 26.—Harry Davis, formerly of the world's champion Athletics, arrived here to-day to establish a permanent residence and assume his duties as manager of the Cleveland Club. It was announced that the local catchers and pitchers will depart for Mobile, Ala., for Spring training on Feb. 29, the rest of the team to follow on March 9.

Lush Named as Montreal Manager.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Billy Lush, who has at various times played with the Royals, the Maple Leafs, and several big league teams in the United States, this morning was appointed manager of the Montreal Baseball Club, vice Ed McCafferty, resigned. McCafferty is reported to have become a shareholder in the Syracuse State League team, which he will probably manage.

ARMY RIDERS FOR STOCKHOLM

Capt. Guy V. Henry to Lead Team of Officers to Compete in Olympiad.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Preparations are already being made by the United States Army for participation in the Olympic games at Stockholm, Sweden, next July, competing in the military riding and jumping events. Five officers have been assigned to prepare for the trip, though the army team probably will be composed of only four.

Those selected are Capt. Guy V. Henry, Fifteenth Cavalry; First Lieuts. Benjamin Lear, Jr., Fifteenth Cavalry; John C. Montgomery, Seventh Cavalry; Ephraim F. Graham, Fifteenth Cavalry, and Second Lieut. Queckemeyer, Fifth Cavalry. Capt. Henry and Lieut. Graham were on the team which represented the army at the horse show in London.

Four of these officers are at present at the army mounted service school at Fort Riley, and Lieut. Queckemeyer has been ordered to that post from Honolulu.

Lyon Wins Belleair Golf Title.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEAIR, Fla., Jan. 26.—William H. Lyon, who, a few years ago, was a prominent member of the Yale golf team, won the Belleair golf tournament to-day, defeating F. K. Moore of Cleveland by 4 up and 3 to play in the thirty-six-hole final match. In the morning Lyon played the round in 81 strokes. He had a lead of seven holes over Moore at that point. The afternoon play was marked by a rally by Moore, who at one time was only three down, but Lyon won out on the fifteenth green. In the second division, J. C. Head of Pittsburgh defeated C. B. Cochran of Montreal by 4 up and 2 to play.

Hyde and Farrington in Final.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 26.—J. R. Hyde of the South Shore Field Club, the Florida golf champion, will play H. P. Farrington of the Woodland Country Club to-morrow in the finale of the New Year tourney. To-day Farrington beat V. B. Hubbell, Englewood, 3 and 1, and Hyde beat H. J. Topping, Greenwich C. C., 4 and 2. The defeat of V. C. Longley, Wannamoisett, by J. W. Falls, Memphis C. C., 2 and 1 in the beaten eight contest was a surprise. Dr. Daniel Karsner, Philadelphia C. C., won the second division, beating W. L. Hodgkins, Midlothian, 1 up.

RED BANK ICE CARNIVAL.

5,000 Persons See Yachting, Horse Racing, Skating, and Boxing.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, Jan. 26.—Never since the day Johnny Johnson defeated Joe Donoghue in a skating race for the world's championship, which was held on the North Shrewsbury River at Red Bank, has there been such a large crowd of people on the ice as there was to-day to see the first annual ice carnival. Five thousand persons were present.

One of the features was an exhibition of fancy skating by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Williams at Fair Haven.

Although a slight snow squall occurred this afternoon, the snow did not bother the merry makers, but hindered the yacht racing. To-night, starting at 8 o'clock, a masquerade fête took place on the ice. Hundreds of masked skaters gathered around huge bonfires on the ice.

The first race for ice yachts started at 2:04, and the Streak, winner of the race, sailed past the finish stake at 2:29. This event was between the Fair Haven Ice Yacht Club and the Independent Ice Yacht Club of Red Bank. The Streak belongs to the Independent Club, and still sails the pennant won in last season's races. The Pender of the Independent Club finished second, the P. D. Q., Independent Club, third, and the Vim, Independent Club, fourth. A puffy east wind was blowing. It was snowing hard and prevented the boats making good time.

The second race between the Independent Club and the Fair Haven Club started at 2:50, and was captured by the Jennie of the Fair Haven Club, her time being 17:45, Russell B., Fair Haven, was second, 18:26; Reindeer, Independent Club, third, 25:02; Vim, Independent Club, 25:24, fourth, and P. D. Q., Independent Club, 35:08, fifth. Both races were sailed over a ten-mile triangular club course by a stake opposite the Monmouth clubhouse.

At 3:30, the Daisy, Tyro, Edna M., and Kittie started in a race which promised to be very close, but one by one each of the yachts withdrew on account of the wind and snow and the race was called off.

Following the yachting, trotting team races were held on the ice in front of the steam boat dock. Two half-mile heats were raced, and both captured by Lago and Itan, both owned by William T. Van Brunt.

A skating race between six colored men for the colored championship of Monmouth County was captured by Forman Bontile.

In the mile open race for white men for the championship of the county, John Wood of Long Branch won from Dell Fisher. Mr. Fisher held the championship of the county for the past six years. A severe fall lost him the race to-day. Other skating races were held for boys.

A boxing match was also held on the ice between Frederick Walthan of Oak Shades and Charles Smock of Red Bank. The bout was for the championship of the county, and was captured by Smock after a hard five-round bout.

Swarthmore Basket Ball Victor.

The Swarthmore College basket ball team defeated the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn quintet last night on the Pratt Institute court, by the score of 46 to 16. The visitors displayed better form, and after about fifteen minutes of play outclassed their opponents at every stage of the game, scoring goals from every angle of the field.

Gilchrist, at centre, was the best point-getter for the winners. He tallied eleven goals from fouls and six goals from the field—twenty-three points in all. Weaver, at guard, reached the Pratt basket for six goals from the field. The line-up:

Pratt Institute.	Position.	Swarthmore.
Whitehead, Hayden	Right forward	Mitchell
Gayton, Woods	Centre	Gilchrist

Goals from the field—Baker, (2,) Mitchell, Gilchrist, (6,) Weaver, (6,) Smith, (2,) Whitehead, Hayden, Turner, Gayton, (2,) Griswold, Randall. Goals from foul—Gilchrist, (11,) Gordon, Whitehead, (4.) Substitutions—For Swarthmore: McKiskich for Baker, Gordon for Weaver. For Pratt Institute: Turner for Hesson, Hayden for Whitehead, Woods for Gayton. Referee—Mr. O'Shea of St. John's College. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Syms Wins at Basket Ball.

Syms School basket ball players defeated the Hamilton Institute team yesterday in the Syms court by a score of 20 to 6 in two periods of ten minutes each. Appleby and Cleveland were the star goal getters, each tallying four from field, while the first named added to his team's total by shooting two points from the foul line. The winners never left the outcome in doubt, and began scoring early in the contest, running up fourteen points in the first half to two gained by the visitors. The line-up and summary:

Syms.	Position.	Hamilton.
Appleby	Right forward	Taylor
B. Underhill, Davison, Morgan	Left forward	Minroth, Thompson
Cleveland	Centre	Hammerstein
W. Underhill, Riker	Left guard	Boch, Rodman
Lummis, B. Underhill	Right guard	Rubein

Field goals—Appleby, (4,) Cleveland, (4,) B. Underhill, Taylor, Thompson, Hammerstein. Foul goals—Appleby, (2.) Referees—Messrs. Woodward and Pulvermacher. Time—Ten-minute halves.

Sachs School's Close Victory.

The Sachs School basket ball team defeated the Berkeley School five in a close and exciting game yesterday afternoon in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory by the score of 5 to 2. The winners displayed splendid defensive work, and although their opponents made many attempts to score, the Berkeley School players were repulsed by the Sachs School guards every time and did not tally a goal from the floor. Capt. Burghard, who has been out of the game for some time owing to illness, was back in the line-up yesterday, and showed up well at centre. The line-up:

Sachs.	Position.	Berkeley.
De Muth, Wolff	Right forward	Brandt
Oppenheimer, Goldman	Left forward	Miller
Burghard, (Capt.)	Centre	McCarthy
Kahn	Right guard	Mahr

Goals from the field—De Muth, Kahn. Goals from foul—Burghard, McCarthy, Mahr. Referee—Mr. Melitzer. Umpire—Mr. Gray. Timer—Mr. Marcus. Time of halves—Twelve minutes.

Collegiate Defeats Irving Again.

The Collegiate School basket ball team defeated the team of the Irving School of New York yesterday in the latter's gymnasium by the score of 23 to 8. This is the second time that Collegiate has triumphed over the Irving team this season, having beaten them 44 to 10 on Jan. 5. The Collegiate team has won six of the seven games it has played, and scored 200 points against its opponents' 99. Capt. Jackson of Collegiate has alone scored 102 of his team's points. The score:

Collegiate.	Position.	Irving.
Platten, Vietor	Right forward	Mayer
Pope	Left forward	Lowengard
Jackson	Centre	Philips
Brewer	Right guard	Kalt

Field goals—Jackson, (5,) Pope, (5,) Lowengard, (3.) Goals from foul—Jackson, (1,) Pope, (2,) Mayer, (2.) Referee—Mr. Johnson, Columbia. Scorer—Mr. Averbeck. Time of halves—Ten and fifteen minutes.

Colgate, 24; Cornell, 12.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Colgate's basket ball team to-night defeated Cornell by the score of 24 to 12.

ROUGH HOCKEY IN AMATEUR LEAGUE

Crescents Defeat Wanderers, Several Players Being Penalized for Foul Playing.

By their victory over the Wanderers last night in the St. Nicholas Rink, the Crescent A. C. hockey team made a four-cornered tie of the race for the Amateur Hockey League championship title, with each of the teams having won two games and lost one, the teams other than the above-named being the New York A. C. and the St. Nicholas S. C.

The score of last night's game was Crescents 5, Wanderers 4, and if ever there was a rougher game played no one, unless he has seen the sport in Canada, has ever witnessed anything equal in cross-checking, stick slashing, tripping, and similar foul tactics.

The referee, William Russell, however, was a keen observer of the playing, and penalized the offenders. So keen was Russell in his rulings, and so rough was the play that just before the end of the second period the Wanderers had only three men on the ice, while the Crescents looked ready to mow them down with the five men they had in the game. Very seldom was each team represented by its full playing strength, as the inflicted penalties most of the time made the teams look as if an ice cutter had made its way through the competitors.

Dufresne of the Crescents was the first player injured, although it happened to be the recurrence of an old injury, when he collided with Kinsella and had to be carried off the ice. Late in the second period Campbell was the victim of some reckless stick slashing and tripping which caused him to hit the ice with his head and knock him out, after which he was picked up by his mates and turned over to the physician of the rink. Bulger was sent off the ice for his share in this fracas.

Bob Wall of the Crescent's, after being penalized for two minutes for using his stick too freely, undertook to argue with the referee, for which he was penalized an additional three minutes, or five in all.

It required the tallying of only the first goal by McGrath for the Wanderers after 4:38 of play to stir the undercurrent of ill-feeling and bring it into hostile action.

Very few chances were offered the forwards of either team to make dribbles or carries, as the opposition was usually ready with the excessively hard body check or a slash with the stick which landed well up around the hand and rather effectively put an end to any long-continued run.

The Crescents carried the rubber to the face of the Wanderers' cage from the first drop in, and within 25 seconds had shot a goal which was disallowed through offside playing. McGrath for Crescent made a capital carry, which proved ineffective, and it was thus early in the game that the rough work asserted itself, as Dufresne was the victim of a scrimmage, in which his knee was injured.

The rubber coursed up and down and all over the rink for over four minutes, with both teams taking a shot for the cage of the opposition without result, the skillful goal defense of Mills and Ellison making futile any attempts at scoring. Bulger for Wanderers soon after this period made a clever carry, and took two shots at Mills's cage, which the Crescent goalkeeper turned away. On the second rebound, however, McGrath picked it out of the bunch of players and scored the first tally of the game.

The men had barely placed themselves after the next throw-in when McGrath obtained the disk, and with a fine angle shot from the side centre tallied the second goal for his team. Immediately after this Dufresne came back into the game, and Harmon was sent crashing into the side boards by Wall.

Joe Brown came into the game when Dufresne was taken off the second time and took Wall's place at point, the latter going up to cover. Both teams made frantic tries to score, with rough house reigning for the greater part of the time. After 13:38 of play Liffiton gave the Crescent adherents something to gloat over, when he lobbed in a goal, with five of the players of both teams going down in their offensive and defensive work.

The pace was so fast that for fully a minute between the 15th and 16th minutes there was next to nothing doing with the rubber, which was dribbled around in Crescent ice to no purpose. There was no further scoring in the first half, which ended with the tally 2 to 1 in favor of Wanderers.

After Ellison had been kept busy warding off attacks in the early part of the second period and with the Crescents with only five men on the ice, Liffiton, by a fine backhand shot on a pass from Sherriff, scored in 3:45, making the goal score a tie at two-all.

Then ensued another four minutes of the rough tactics, with men going to the side lines at frequent intervals. Harmon tallied for Wanderers after eight minutes, and Campbell evened up matters by making a point at nine minutes. Four minutes elapsed before there was anything more doing in the scoring line, with Sherriff counting for Crescent on a double pass from Martin and Campbell.

McGrath at 15:55 made the game a tie again at four-all on an individual carry and count, and the game went on to the end of the second half with no more scoring. The teams were immediately lined up for the extra period of play, but the finish came early, as with only four men on the ice the Wanderers could not stop the rush of Martin, Sherriff, and Liffiton, with the result that after thirty seconds of play the latter caged the needed goal which carried with it the victory. The line-up and summary:

Crescent.	Position.	Wanderers.
Mills	Goal	Ellison
Wall, Brown	Point	Kinsella
Dufresne, Wall	Cover point	Garin
Sherriff	Rover	Bulger
Liffiton	Centre	Lacken
Martin	Right wing	McGrath

Goals—McGrath, 4:38, and McGrath, 5:02, for Wanderers; Liffiton, Crescents, 13:38; Liffiton, 3:45; Harmon, Wanderers, 8:00; Campbell, Crescents, 9:00; Martin, Crescents, 13:00; McGrath, Wanderers, 15:55; Liffiton, Crescents, 0:30, in extra period.

Penalties—Harmon, Dufresne, McGrath, Lacken, Campbell, Martin, Wall, Kinsella. Referee—W. Russell; assistant referee—M. Stanley. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

TO FORM NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE

New York and Boston to Have Teams in International Body.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—La Presse announces to-day that an International Hockey League will be formed next year, with the Wanderers, Canadians, Boston, and New York teams in it. The games will be played at the Forum here, which will be enlarged to hold 10,000 persons, and an artificial ice plant will be installed, so that the season may begin at the end of November.

It is said that the Boston and New York teams have already expressed a desire to enter such a league, as friendly games across the line have demonstrated that there is a field for an international union.

ICE YACHT DRUB WINS SHALLOW POINT RACE

Edwin Fielder's Speedy Craft Sails Over Fifteen-Mile South Shrewsbury Course in 44:07.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 26.—Ten speedy ice boats, representing the two clubs on the South Shrewsbury River, raced over a 15-mile snow covered course at Shallow Point to-day for the silver cup offered by the Long Branch Board of Trade. It was won by Capt. Edwin Fielder's Drub, defeating ex-Commodore J. C. Gibbons's Ingenue by three minutes and six seconds. Five racers from each club contested. The Long Branch Club was represented by the Drub, Jack Frost, Isabel, Blanche, and Eagle. The South Shrewsbury boats were the Princeton, Hazel L, Mildred, and Ingenue.

In a light northwest wind the Drub led from start to finish. The Hazel L. and Drub passed the first stake together, with the Jack Frost third. At the end of the first five miles the Drub led the Jack Frost forty-four seconds, with the Ingenue third. When the ten-mile stake was turned the Drub had increased its lead to nearly two minutes over the Ingenue, the Isabel, Mildred, Eagle, Blanche, and Princeton having withdrawn. The Drub continued to increase its lead, passing the home stake three minutes and six seconds ahead of the Ingenue, and five minutes and seven seconds ahead of the Hazel L. The summary:

Board of Trade Ice Yacht Club, fifteen miles, time limit 50 minutes; must be won three times by any club before it can be claimed; three races in five constitutes a leg on the trophy in any one season.

Jack Frost, Capt. James O'Brien, Long Branch Club.—First lap, 7:28; second, 7:21; third, 8:00; fourth, 8:59; fifth, 8:43; sixth, 9:22. Elapsed time, 49:55.

Isabel, Walter Content, Long Branch Club.—First lap, 8:04; second, 7:27; third, 7:51; fourth, 9:34. Withdrew.

Blanche, Walter Content, Long Branch Club.—First lap, 8:15; second, 8:20. Withdrew.

Mildred, B. P. Morris, South Shrewsbury Club.—First lap, 9:49. Withdrew.

Eagle, Capt. J. E. Green, Long Branch Club.—First lap, 9:49. Withdrew.

Princeton, H. H. Munro, South Shrewsbury Club.—First lap, 8:14. Withdrew.

Clarel, Walter Content.—Withdrew on first round.

Princeton-Yale Hockey To-night.

Princeton and Yale, in an important battle for the intercollegiate championship, will be the hockey event to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink, and a spirited contest is anticipated. The Tigers, with their famous retinue of stars, headed by "Hobey" Baker, are eager to add the hockey title to their other athletic achievements, and Yale, equally keen to check the aspirations of their rivals, will put forward the strongest line of expert players they can muster to win. The outcome of to-night's game may settle the championship, for the Tigers already have three victories to their credit, and another win will clinch their claim to the title.

Britons Want to See Hogan Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—England has heard of "One Round" Hogan and wants to see him in action. Gil Boag, manager of the San Francisco boy, who is matched with "Harlem" Tommy Murphy to fight next Wednesday night, received a letter to-day from Dave Levy, backer of the British lightweight, Matt Wells. Levy would like to have Hogan and Wells fight on Derby Day, next May. The National Sporting Club of London is eager for the match, he writes.

RANNEY'S SHOOTING HONORS.

New York Yachtsman Wins Miss-and-Out Contest at Pinehurst Traps.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 26.—In a miss-and-out shooting contest A. E. Ranney of the New York Yacht Club, shooting at the eighteen-yard mark, captured the preliminary trophy of the fifth annual midwinter handicap to-day with a score of 93. A triple tie resulted between R. L. Spotts, the Larchmont Yacht Club champion, (19 yards,) B. D. Ward of Aberdeen, S. D., and R. H. Bruns of Brookville, Ind., both eighteen yards, all making scores of 92.

George J. Corbett was again in form, scoring 90 with a 20 on his last string, and tying with H. M. Brigham, also of New York, who began with 17, and finished with a straight. C. W. Billings of Glen Ridge made 89, and Dr. D. L. Culver of Jersey City, 82. Huff and Skelly led the professionals with scores of 92 and 91, respectively.

G. S. McCarty of Philadelphia won the morning sweepstakes with a score of 98, tying with professional Lyons.

TO RAISE $4,000,000 FOR CHRISTIAN WORK

Joint Campaign to Aid Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. to Begin Immediately.

NEW EQUIPMENT IS NEEDED

The Idea Is to Widen the Scope of the Work of Both Associations Throughout the City.

A joint campaign to raise $4,000,000 has been decided upon by the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association of New York City. The campaign will begin immediately, and the money, when raised, is to be divided between the two associations, the women's association getting $3,000,000 and the men's $1,000,000. George W. Perkins is Chairman of the Executive Committee that will wage the campaign, Miss Grace H. Dodge is the Vice Chairman, and Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co. is the Treasurer.

It is stated that the money is to be used for new buildings and for the furtherance of wide plans of work. Consultations have been going on for several months among the administrative officers of the two associations, and the Young Men's Christian Association, recognizing the more urgent requirements of the young women's work, offered to co-operate in the campaign, so as to put the women upon something like a corresponding financial foundation. At the present time the men's association owns more than $3,000,000 worth of property in New York, whereas the value of the property held by the women's association is only $250,000.

The plan adopted for the development and extension of the Young Women's Christian Association is as follows:

First—To extend the work by the erection of a building on the east side, north of Twenty-third Street, the building to be for social, educational, physical, and religious purposes; the building to contain class, reading, recreation rooms, &c., and to which will be transferred the work now carried on in the Fifteenth Street building. This will be known as the Central Branch, and will cost $600,000.

Second—To erect a similar building in Harlem, which is to cost $500,000.

Third—To erect a building on the east side, above Twenty-third Street, where young women can secure room and board, to cost $350,000.

Fourth—A building to be known as the Central Club for Nurses, where trained nurses may secure room and board, in addition to physical, social, spiritual, and intellectual advantages, this building to cost $400,000.

Fifth—For the enlargement of the association building on the west side, at a cost of $50,000.

Sixth—To rent suitable quarters for the extension of the Colored Women's Branch, at a cost of $10,000.

Seventh—Headquarters building for the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association, to include a training school for secretaries, to cost $800,000.

Eighth—To meet the expenses of the local association while the undertakings are under way and becoming more or less self-supporting, $150,000.

Ninth—To provide funds for equipment of the buildings and to adjust increases over estimates in other items of the budget, $140,000.

The $1,000,000 fund for the Young Men's Christian Association will be used first for the erection of a building on the Bowery, in the same neighborhood as the present building, to meet the increased needs and the constantly widening scope of the work of the Bowery Branch, the new building to cost $300,000. Also for the erection of a suitable building for the Union Branch at 540 East 140th Street and the proper equipment of that building, $300,000.

For the Colored Men's Branch at 252 West Fifty-third Street it is proposed to erect a suitable building and equip it, and for this purpose there is needed, in addition to the value of the present property, which is $85,000, the sum of $150,000. For the altering of the building of the Williamsbridge Branch at 216th Street and Willett Avenue, and its proper equipment, there is to be spent $40,000, and an indebtedness of $20,000 on the clubhouse for the students of the College of Physicians and Surgeons on West Fifty-seventh Street. A contingent and adjustment fund of $40,000 is also planned.

Besides Mr. Perkins, Miss Dodge, and Mr. Davison, the members of the Executive Committee of the campaign are Mrs. James S. Cushman, President of the Women's Association; William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Men's Association; Mrs. Elijah W. Bliss, Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan, Mrs. Seabury C. Mastick, Miss Martha McCook, Miss E. V. P. Moore, Miss Helen A. Davis, Thomas A. Buckner, John C. Clark, Cleveland A. Dunn, William M. Kingsley, Robert Scoville, and Henry M. Orne.

MRS. KELLEY ASSAILS MAYER.

Says Former Attorney General Prevented Enactment of Newsboy Law.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Florence Kelley of New York, General Secretary of the National Consumers' League, addressed the conference of the National Child Labor Committee to-day on the enforcement of the street trades regulations. She said:

"It is one of the ironies of our American politics that the man who deprived that bill (New York law regulating street trades) of all value for our newsboys and who has made it impossible since for us to get a valuable newsboy law in the State of New York, is now proposed for a very important Federal judgeship in the State of New York.

"It will be a scandal and an outrage if a man who has done the things to the working women of the State of New York that have been done by former Attorney General Julius Mayer is honored by our President with an appointment to a Federal judgeship."

After speaking of Mr. Mayer's recommendations to the Legislative committee while the bill was pending, Mrs. Kelley continued:

"The reason we never have been able to get a valuable law in New York is that the prestige of this advocate of anarchy, so far as the newsboys are concerned, has grown increasingly. He has been presiding officer of our juvenile court. He has set a precedent in that court for dealing leniently with offenses against that law, and he has most unhappily been President of the protectory for Jewish children, so that whenever we appear before a committee of the Legislature asking if we may have a favorable law we are always told that this great authority advocates leaving things as they are."

NOAH LODER CONVICTED.

Clergyman Accused Lawyer of Stealing $40,000 Entrusted to Him.

Noah Loder, a lawyer, of 135 Broadway, who lives in Greenwich, Conn., was convicted yesterday of grand larceny before Justice Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. The complainant was the Rev. John F. Scott of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who was a client of Loder, and who accused him of stealing over $40,000 which he had handed over to the lawyer for real estate investments.

THROUGH THE DESERT

A Romance of the Time of the Mahdi
With Ten Full Page Illustrations by F. Schwormstadt
Cloth, net, $1.35. (Postage, 15 cents extra.)

The author of "Quo Vadis" has here shown himself in a new vein, but although his latest book is a decided departure from his earlier method, the same strength and power, and the same inimitable and graphic style recall the splendor of his Roman masterpiece and the brilliant and fascinating pages of "Pan Michael" and "With Fire and Sword."

Throughout the book, whether we follow the principal characters through storm or calm, at peace or at handgrips with death, the compelling motive of Sienkiewicz's narrative is never lost sight of, while, as a fitting background for the action of this vivid and picturesque drama, the keynote of the wild and desolate African country is woven into the central theme in the author's description of the desert, its moods, its strange and terrible surprises, its mystery, and its daily and hourly sleeping menace of danger and death.

THE LIFE STORY OF
J. PIERPONT MORGAN
By Carl Hovey.

This accurate biography, containing "inside" information never before in print, brings the record of Mr. Morgan's life into the year 1911, chronicling his early beginnings and immense achievements in the world of business. It is neither a eulogy nor an attack on the money power, but a presentation of facts and a study of the commanding personality of a great man of affairs and patron of the arts. As engrossing to the general reader as it is informing to the financier.

SERGE FOR POLICE UNIFORMS.

Lighter Weight and Less Expensive Goods Approved for Summer Wear.

The committee appointed by Police Commissioner Waldo to select a new Summer uniform for the patrolmen recommended yesterday that a uniform of serge, to take the place of the flannel worn in the past, be used, and their recommendation was adopted.

The committee consisted of First Deputy McKay, Chief Inspector Schmittberger, two Inspectors, three Sergeants, and a patrolman, and have had the matter under consideration for several weeks.

The uniform will be similar to the present one in general appearance, and will weigh less than half of the present flannel. The weight of the present trousers and blouse of the uniform is 4 pounds and 8 ounces, while the new one will weigh 2 pounds 3 ounces.

In addition to the uniform a new cap, like the one worn in the Winter now, will take the place of the helmet of past years. This too will be made of serge.

The uniform will cost $2 less than the one now in use, and will, it is said, wear fully as well. It is expected that there will be some dissatisfaction among the patrolmen who purchased new uniforms last year, but to overcome this the men will be allowed to wear the old one when doing night tours, but each patrolman must have the newer and lighter uniform for day wear.

The Shape of the World
By Evelyn St. Leger
Cr. 8vo. $1.25 net. (By mail $1.40.)

A story into which the author has infused much vitality. Her strong convictions and imagination and her developed sense of humor are all manifested in its pages. The scenes are vividly presented and are drawn with no hesitating hand.

Modern Fishers of Men
Among the Various Sets, Sects, and Sexes of Chartville Church and Community
By Geo. Lansing Raymond
Third Edition. $1.00 net. (By mail, $1.10.)

Written with charming insight and a rare gift of character delineation. The author's shrewd comments about life and character add spice to the pages of this successful novel.

Human Efficiency
A Psychological Study of Modern Problems
By Horatio W. Dresser, Ph.D.
Cr. 8vo. $1.50 net. (By mail $1.65.)

Starting with the present day scientific psychology, and its emphasis in both mind and body, the author endeavors to apply psychological principles to the question of efficiency at large. He insists on the need of investigating the entire subject of the nature, scope and wise use of energy and emphasizes the power of will, conscious control, and intellectual co-ordination.

Outdoor Philosophy
The Meditations of a Naturalist
By Stanton Davis Kirkham
Cr. 8vo. $1.50 net. (By mail $1.65.)

A protest against life as it is lived by the majority to-day, a slavish pursuit of worthless ideals that impoverish the soul. The author dwells in the contrast, which Nature evokes, between her own sublime harmony and the discord and strife and ugliness of life in the teeming centres of population.

HARPERS BOOKS

Harper's Magazine for February is just ready—the serial novel by the author of "The Inner Shrine"; H. G. Wells's Socialism; Mark Twain's Adventures; seven notable short stories, etc., etc.

Riders of the Purple Sage
By Zane Grey

Here is an American romance of a time and place and life which seem as strange, picturesque, and dramatic as the days of Lorna Doone. The scene is the vast plains of purple sage-brush and the canon fastnesses of Southern Utah, when "rustlers," "gun-men," and avenging Mormons made their own laws. It is the story of men who dared greatly and women who could both ride and love.

A Personal Record
By Joseph Conrad

As author and seaman, Conrad tells in this book the beginnings and interweavings of his two passions. There are picturesque recollections of his childhood in exile with his patriot Polish father, his romantic feeling at his first physical touch of an English ship, his voyages into out-of-the-way parts of the world—the Congo and other romantic places.

Music and Morals
By H. R. Haweis

Just published in a new and enlarged edition, with forty pages of illustration. The term is comprehensive and here covers the author's elaborate analysis of the connection of music with emotion. The biographies of great musicians and the chapters describing the development of the piano and violin from humble beginnings are particularly valuable.

15 Great Departments

The Book of Knowledge

The Children's Encyclopedia

Superbly Illustrated with 9,000 Pictures; 350 Magnificent Colored Plates

Fifteen Great Departments of Knowledge

The 15 Great Departments supply the needs and exercise all the faculties of the growing mind. Natural science which lights up nature; delightful history, mechanics and arts; beautiful places to be seen or dreamed about; adventure which arrives and brings back a treasure; real people more interesting than giants and cleverer than fairies; things to make and do which delightfully occupy busy hands,—all satisfy and stimulate eager young minds. The reason for including every department will be easily apparent after examining the work.

President John H. Finley of the College of the City of New York, in his introduction, says: "Suppose a boy of ten were to spend fifteen minutes a day in reading these pages,.. he would at thirteen know more about the earth and the life on it than the wisest men knew a few generations ago."

A Well-Rounded Education

A well-rounded education cannot be obtained in the school-room alone. The boy or girl whose progress is the most rapid will almost always be the one whose reading has been carefully selected at home. The editors of the BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE have rendered this great service to childhood. No wise parent will neglect the opportunity offered by this work to study the disposition and capabilities of his child. In many cases a child's life work may be determined by the possession of these books.

The Threefold Information

The important facts in all the leading articles are indelibly impressed upon the mind in three different ways. First the summary at the head of each article, then the wonderfully interesting article itself, then the pictures illustrating it, with the several lines of terse and vivid description.

The New York Times Says of The Book of Knowledge: The old saying has it that a bright child is a big interrogation mark; but everybody knows that the child gets comparatively few good and sufficient answers to the questions he asks. Think what it will mean to the children who are thirsting for information about a thousand and one matters when their parents put into their hands a work that will tell them what they wish to know! We should say, too, that there would be a certain measurable gain to the parents themselves through the installation of this fountain of knowledge in their households.

Let the Children Decide

They will be delighted with the beautiful illustrated booklet mailed free giving the contents of each of the Departments of Knowledge.

The Wisdom of the World in Simple Language

The lost art of simplicity—the art of presenting profound truths in the simple language which a child can understand has been discovered by the Editors of the BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. The simple, clear and convincing style which appeals equally to the adult mind is the secret of the great drawing power of this remarkable work. It quickens and stimulates thought and in a marked degree wakens interest in the world of ideas. Not only facts but ideals are absorbed, and learning made a real delight.

DOROTHY DAY

A Tale of the Outgoing Generation

By WILLIAM DUDLEY FOULKE

The Story of the Life of a Quaker.

It takes you back to the early Forties and the years just preceding the Civil War—to old New York when it was yet young and through the stirring events of the Civil War.

A realistic and awe-inspiring description of the Battle of Gettysburg gives the reader a clear idea of that famous conflict.

There are many interesting and intimate glimpses of home life among the Quakers, and pictures of childhood that altogether convey a vivid idea of the way in which American citizens of the better class are evolved.

"A love story runs through the narrative and adds a charm to the personal detail."—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE COLONEL AND THE COUNTRY.

The movement, or the intrigue, to bring about the renomination of Mr. ROOSEVELT has now been in progress long enough to justify some attempt to measure its scope, its force, and its effect. The work has been done in the sight of men, or, at least, if there has been an effort at concealment it has been futile. While the Colonel's friends have been working like beavers here, there, and everywhere, to stir up a demand for his renomination, he has said little, but that little was eloquent, significant, and always to the same effect. I do not want to be a candidate, but—and so on. When the party calls, what man can refuse? It is as if Mr. ROOSEVELT stood beside the party, and from time to time brought down the big stick with a resounding thwack upon its ribs. "Why don't "you holler, you old fool you? Holler "for me! Can't you understand?" Of course, if one so reluctant is to heed the party's call, the call must appear to be spontaneous, and must show a reasonable approach to unanimity. If the party would only "holler," the Colonel would be free to consent; that is the programme. Although the party has been much stirred up and poked and whacked, it somehow refuses to holler.

We are told here in the East that the remoter West is all Progressive, that the Democrats out there insist on WILSON or BRYAN or something of that sort, and that the Republicans, turning from TAFT, clamor for ROOSEVELT or LA FOLLETTE. Are these reports true, or anything like true? Has loyalty to the name, the traditions, and the principles of the Republican Party wholly died out in the West, has all pride in its achievements been effaced by the impact of the new doctrines? We do not believe it at all. Mr. CLEVELAND wrote of the difficulty Democrats had in following their banner after Mr. BRYAN had covered it all over with strange symbols. The Republican banner as Mr. ROOSEVELT flaunts it bears the Bryan symbols, and others that Mr. BRYAN has not had the time or the fertility to invent, notably the startling doctrine that the decisions of Judges should be reversible by a popular vote. This is not the mere dragging of a herring across the trail. Mr. ROOSEVELT quite blocks up the trail with wagonloads of curious and queer-smelling fish, at which Republicans who have any memory of that party's fifty years of achievement must hold their noses. Until the Republicans of the West have altogether abandoned the old faith, they cannot take up the new.

There is no evidence that they have abandoned the old faith. Five Republican Governors of States have declared that ROOSEVELT should be nominated, but they are radicals. Proof is lacking that they are authorized to speak for the party or that their words reflect its sentiment. A political committee or two have passed Roosevelt resolutions, although in Oklahoma, where, if there is moving Roosevelt sentiment anywhere, it ought to be manifest and uproarious, the Colonel's "boomers" were defeated. If we are asked to believe that the Republicans of the West want ROOSEVELT, we must ask in return whether they desire, also, the disruption of the Republican Party. It has been the immemorial custom for parties in their platforms to "point with pride" to the record of their party in administration. What could a Roosevelt platform say of the Taft Administration? Even the most hardened draftsman of insincere professions and hollow phrases would hesitate and draw back if set at the task of sounding the praises of TAFT in a platform upon which was to stand a candidate known to be bitterly hostile to the President, a candidate whose contemptuous allusions to his successor, whom he caused to be nominated, have been repeated in every ear. The disruption of the Democratic Party by Mr. BRYAN and Mr. BRYAN's doctrines was a mere passing episode of difference and dissent compared with the calamity that would befall the Republican Party through the brutal rejection of Mr. TAFT and the nomination of Mr. ROOSEVELT. For it must be remembered that there are Republicans in this country, hundreds of thousands of Republicans, who, distrusting Mr. ROOSEVELT, have confidence in Mr. TAFT and respect for him, who desire his renomination, and who would not patiently put up with such an affront to him, with such an assault upon the principles of their party, and such a hazard to its fortunes, as the eager workers for Mr. ROOSEVELT have in contemplation.

The Roosevelt intriguers, as we have said, have for some months been actively at work. If the Republicans of the country were in a mood to respond to their incitements the response would have been audible before this time, it would have been distinctly audible. Such response as they have elicited comes chiefly from individuals, from men known to be radicals, and not from very many of them. A candid survey of the field must lead to the opinion that the masses of the Republican Party have thus far been unresponsive. To date, the Roosevelt movement has failed.

MORE MOTOR CARS USED.

The use of automobiles in this State has within a year increased by more than one-third, according to Secretary LAZANSKY's report, the registration showing 83,961 cars in operation during 1911, as compared with 62,655 in 1910. The number of chauffeurs and dealers increased, respectively, from 27,416 to 35,807 and from 1,800 to 2,400.

The danger from motor cars has increased by one-third inevitably, and more than that actually, as figures published by the American Highways Protective Society show. Secretary LAZANSKY says no change in the Callan law is recommended, first, "because there is no demand for it," and second, "because the law is in its infancy, and it should be tried out."

We think the Secretary will find that several changes are demanded. For example, there has long been the demand that all drivers of heavy machines, not merely the chauffeurs, submit to examination as to their competency and take out a license in the interest of the public safety. That is required in European countries, why not here? Then, an important clause in this infant law designed to deter runaways after collisions has been declared unconstitutional. An amendment making the craven act a felony and penalizing it, as kidnapping is penalized, would be constitutional and proper. The runaways in this city have increased from 20 to 26 a month. That is too many.

THE RESULT IN GERMANY.

At the close of the first ballotings for the Reichstag it was plain that the Socialists would be decidedly stronger than in the present Parliament, but it looked as if the "Blue-Black bloc," the combined Conservatives and Centrists, would have a reduced but still a working majority. The elections are now complete, and that forecast is not sustained. The "bloc," made up of Conservatives, or Agrarians, and Centrists, or Catholics, will have but 159 votes, or 39 less than a majority. The new Reichstag is made up as follows:

Socialists	110
Radicals	44
National Liberals	47
Centrists	93
Conservatives	66
Poles	18
Others	19

This leaves the National Liberals in possession of the balance of power. The combination on which the Government has hitherto relied has but 159 votes. That of the Socialists and Radicals, which would most likely vote together, has but 154. The National Liberals, with their 47 votes, could make a majority with either.

The situation is not necessarily immediately significant as to imperial affairs of the larger sort, and especially not as to foreign relations or the naval programme. Upon questions of this class the National Liberals would doubtless join the bloc in support of the Government. But as to internal policy, and particularly as to the element of protectionism in taxation, the Government cannot by any means rely on a working majority. Protection in Germany is largely favorable to the Agrarians or land owners, who make up the bulk of the Conservative Party. It has been more and more opposed by the industrials and by the great shipping interests and merchants of the old Hanse towns. It is equally opposed by the Socialists, the working people being in nowise deluded by the American superstition that it is good for labor. It is, therefore, quite probable that a marked change may take place in this policy within the five-year term of the Reichstag just elected.

It is reported that the Kaiser is deeply offended by the recent vote, and especially by the fact that one of the "Kaiser districts"—that in which his castle is in Berlin—was saved from Socialists by seven votes only, while the one in Potsdam is lost to a Radical Socialist, just released from confinement on a sentence for anti-militarism. In the eyes of the Emperor anti-militarism is little short of treason, and it must be galling in the extreme that one of its champions is elected to the Parliament of the Empire from one of the Kaiser's homes. Herr LIEBKNECHT, the successful candidate, is reported to have received the news of his election with the remark, "This insures the peace of the world." It and other Socialist victories do insure a strenuous opposition to a bellicose policy. It may not be sufficient to keep the peace, but it will be enough to show that the people of Germany are not so warlike as the army party have made them out to be.

So far as the Kaiser is concerned, no one would count on his doing anything rash. With his exalted ideas of his mission and a Hohenzollern pride in his army, he is both a shrewd politician and ambitious for a peaceful reign. He is quite capable of estimating carefully and coolly the forces of public sentiment in his dominion, and though he has some disadvantages to contend with, he will try to estimate them accurately. He is also capable of adapting himself to the facts as he finds them, as he has done time and again during a stormy reign. He will not ignore and he will doubtless try not to misread the significance of the elections. It is by no means impossible that he may take Herr LIEBKNECHT's reported view.

STEEL PASSENGER COACHES.

Our attention has been called to descriptions in The Railway Age Gazette of two recent rear-end collisions, one at Odessa, Minn., the other near Fort Wayne, Ind., which resulted in the telescoping of steel cars of "very strong construction." From the two wrecks this inference is drawn:

> That in accidents of this kind none of the various types of steel passenger car construction of equal weight has any particular advantage over wooden equipment so far as resistance to impact is concerned, and there is not much difference in the cost of repairs of the heavier parts of the construction.

That is unfortunate, if true. In the collision this week at Kinmundy, Ill., the wooden private car in which the prominent railway officials were killed received the impact of a heavy train of steel cars running at high speed without telescoping the steel coach ahead, or more than shaking up its occupants. In another collision, mentioned in the report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, a steel coach withstood the impact, while in five collisions involving wooden cars there were wholesale killings and injuries.

Manifestly no general conclusions can be drawn condemning the use of steel cars. On the other hand, it is entirely reasonable to believe that the coaches of stiffer steel construction will be safer in most cases of accident. The railways should be equipped with them within a definite time.

PAYING THE PRICE.

Canada having rejected reciprocity, and finding to its amazement that the rejection was all in the day's work to the United States, is now counting the cost to itself. According to the ciphering in Winnipeg, that market alone has lost already $7,501,802 on the price of its grain by the inability to sell it in the United States. The three western provinces have lost over $25,000,000 on part of a single crop, and there is a long look ahead. The party which made such a success of demonstrating to Canadians that it is necessary to suffer to be loyal is doing its best to soften the blow. Although elected upon a platform of having "no trade or truck with the Yankees," they have humbly applied to our Inter-State Commerce Commission for rates permitting the carriage of grain to the Minneapolis mills. The Hon. GEORGE E. FOSTER glowingly announced to Parliament his success in making this "entangling alliance," whereby our Treasury will profit at the expense of our eaters of flour, and Canadian railways will lose the tolls which they might have collected if the electorate had allowed the farmers to sell in their best market the foodstuffs we are so eager to buy at an average of something over 10 cents a bushel more than the Dominion farmers are now receiving.

If there are any Canadians who think that this makes for loyalty they do not read their own newspapers. The Toronto Globe informs them that the facts above partially set forth are > part of the price Canadians now must pay for the success of the campaign of deception, prejudice, and race-hate organized and carried out by the privileged Big Interests. And this is only the beginning.

On the same day that these facts are published the Canadian newspapers contain the official canvass of the returns which caused the rejection of reciprocity, and the discussion of them by the Dominion Grange at its annual meeting. Ontario gave a Conservative majority of 62,852, which the Liberal majorities elsewhere reduced to a majority of 44,461 for the entire Dominion. Rural Canada, constituting the largest part of the Dominion, is demonstrably pro-reciprocity, but the policy which it needs and demands is frustrated by the vote of the cities. Thus Canada is divided against itself. The east is out of harmony with the west, and the cities are arrayed against the farmers. In its report to the Dominion Grange the Committee on Legislation said:

> We believe that the Dominion Grange should make it perfectly clear that reciprocity is not dead. The late Dominion election was in no sense a fair referendum upon the single issue of reciprocity with the United States. Numerous other issues were inevitably mingled with it, and the bitterness of the party fight led to such distortion and misrepresentation, such an extensive importation of alien questions, and such appeals to international prejudice that any fair submission of one question became impossible.

There can be no doubt that these are the opinions of a majority of Canadians outside the cities, and perhaps a majority of all on a vote uninfluenced by what some among ourselves call the "money power." Yet the Government which rests upon this unstable majority refuses to take the hint. On Wednesday it threw its majority against a proposal to take the duty off American lumber wanted for settlers' houses, as was the custom under the Laurier Government, although we are admitting Canadian products free under the paper and pulp clause of the rejected reciprocity compact.

The Right Hon. ROBERT BORDEN has so many troubles that he is hardly doing himself justice. He would have probably stayed in office longer if he had gained power otherwise than upon something like false pretenses of a loyalty which is blemished rather than strengthened by the course of events. If the fair opinion of Canada had been registered there would have been no inference whatever regarding loyalty. It would have been what all Americans regarded it, a mere matter of trade and truck with our cousins, without the reproach which they contrived to import into their phrase.

NIAGARA AGAIN.

The attacks upon Niagara by the water power interests are unending. They have persuaded Attorney General CARMODY of this State to appear before the committee at Washington which is considering a renewal of the provisions of the Burton bill that limits the power companies to a maximum of 15,600 cubic feet a second from the American side of the cataract, and the Attorney General urges that the United States yield its jurisdiction to New York.

The Legislature of this State has been used again and again to further the schemes of the power men. They are not content with 15,600 cubic feet a second, but seek the 4,400 feet additional allowed under the treaty with Great Britain. They oppose the restriction to 160,000 horse power that may be imported from the Canadian side of the waterfall. They prefer that this State supervise the issuance of permits to use it. Probably they rely upon the fact, admitted by the Corporation Counsel of Buffalo, that New York's Public Service Commission is powerless to regulate the companies using power from Niagara.

These companies care little for the scenic grandeur of Niagara. But the public cares. It is its business to see that the great waterfall is preserved in its sublimity and beauty.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A New Day Dawns for Commuters. No, wonders never will cease! In commenting, the other day, on the highly commendable arrangements made by the Long Island Railroad for supplying the newspapers with prompt, accurate information about accidents on its lines, we suggested that the company might well go further and let its minor employés, like conductors and station agents, when trains are not moving, tell passengers what the matter is and how long the delay will last. That was put in just on general principles, it being always well, on gaining one unexpected concession, to ask for another and bigger one. That anything so utterly against established railway policy would ever be done did not occur to us.

We now learn, however, on the unquestionable authority of the road's General Superintendent, that "curiously enough"—and indeed it is!—he has planned to do this very thing. It seems that hereafter, whenever traffic is interrupted, a man detailed for the service in the dispatcher's office at Long Island City will devote himself entirely to getting in touch with the situation by telegraph and telephone, and will notify the men coming in close contact with the public just what the prospects are. "I think," the General Superintendent adds, "that this arrangement will contribute materially to the comfort and satisfaction of those who use our railroad."

It will, it will! And spiritually, as well as materially, for nothing has done so much to spoil the tempers of travelers, especially of commuters, and to increase the unpopularity of railways as the implacable withholding of this very knowledge.

But General Supt. THORNTON must do more than make it possible for his conductors and station agents to tell if they will; he must train them to do so, and that will not be easy, for reticence on all such matters has been so long inculcated that it has become instinctive with the whole class. Not soon will they change their habits, or at all unless it be very patiently and forcibly impressed upon them that the passenger who wants to know why a train has stopped and when it will move on again is not showing a morbid and vicious curiosity about things which he couldn't understand and shouldn't. However, it will be no more strange for a conductor to explain a train delay than for a General Superintendent to let him, and, as the one miracle has been worked, perhaps the other will be, too.

A Queer Group of Books. There are certainly some good books among the sixteen credited by Mayor GAYNOR with having had most effect upon his life. Among them, of course, are several that have to appear on every such list—books that no man at all considerate of established and respectable opinion would dare to omit, especially if he were a man in public life. Innumerable people have read, and even more have commended, those books, however, without rising to the assorted eminences on which the Mayor stands, and therefore, in studying his list to see what books have produced the "effect" which his position and character constitute, one views with special attention the works which seem to be, more than those just cautiously referred to, indicative of personal selection and individual preference.

Holding second place in the list, and inferentially regarded by Mayor GAYNOR as the second best book in the world, or that has come to his attention, one finds, not without astonishment—Euclid! A noble work, no doubt; one of the few ever written that can be said to have met with general acceptance, and beyond question a well-reasoned production, even though the validity of some of its "self-evident truths" has been assailed by a few particularly pernickety mathematicians. But why give it such rank, for in demanding and granting an approximation to absolute proof it by no means stands alone!

And what, pray, did the Mayor learn from "Gil Blas," that he numbers it among the effectual sixteen, and what from the autobiography of that abler but less amiable rascal, CELLINI? Naturally, being an intelligent and appreciative man, the Mayor read both of those books with pleasure, and remembers them well, but a good many people would call them considerably more interesting than important.

Among historians the Mayor mentions HUME, PLUTARCH, and GIBBON. Great men all, surely, and yet—well, the Mayor was talking about books that affected him in his impressionable youth, and not about those that he would recommend to this generation of history students, so let them pass. For the same reason, no invidious comparisons need be excited by his listing of DE LOME.

The fact is that not a few of the Mayor's sixteen books are dead, and quite dead; not a few are merely literary monuments, and as such of value, but not otherwise; while not a few others, though they may have helped some of our fathers and grandfathers, would be poor guides for our sons and are too old to be half true.

Bad Manners, to Say the Least. Now that the House Committee on Expenditures has chivied Secretary KNOX into letting its members and the world in general know for just what the duly authorized celebrants of Champlain's discovery spent the $20,000 allotted to them by Congress, its members might well ask themselves if the achievement is one of which they can be particularly proud.

Of course, if these revelations as to cocktails and lilies of the valley are to serve as basis for a serious attempt to stop, once and for all, such uses of public money, that will be excuse, perhaps it will be reason, for what they have done, but that any such intention ever entered, or ever will enter, the minds of as many Congressmen as are required to form an investigating committee cannot be believed.

There always have been, and probably there always will be, "junkets," and they are not such bad things, after all. When kept within the limits of decency and moderation they are often even commendable, for they provide opportunities for giving information to men who need it as much as any men do, and if they have a good time while getting the information, that only impresses it the more deeply on their memories.

The Champlain junket seems to have been decent and moderate. Some of the expenditures were not, indeed, exactly those for which taxes are supposed to be collected, but none of them will either grieve or offend anybody except the teetotalers, and the money went just about as money would have gone had a private host of means been entertaining guests with generous courtesy.

Our very solvent Government, having undertaken that duty or privilege, could hardly have done less. It is not the best of taste, at this late date, to question the propriety of the favors granted or to publish itemized accounts of what the guests ate and drank.

BATTLE OVER "LOCH LOMOND."

Musical Director of "Little Boy Blue" Responds to Criticism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have made it a rule in the twenty-nine years that I have worked before the public never to answer a criticism of any kind. I wish to break this rule to-day in regard to the truly amazing letter you publish from an amateur critic, John Phin by name, regarding the rendition of "Loch Lomond" in our performance of "Little Boy Blue," a criticism which you headline, "A Pathetic Song Burlesqued," solely upon Mr. Phin's statement.

To begin with, I certainly resent Mr. Phin's statement that the song's history is unknown to "probably 95 per cent. of the average audience." He might as well tell your readers the story of "The Star-Spangled Banner" as to rehash the familiar legend of this famous Jacobite melody. I say "legend" because, as Mr. Phin should know, the "household" tale about this song has been vigorously disputed by many of the best-informed editors and anthologists of Scotch music, and indeed the original form of the refrain:

"But wae is my heart until we meet again,
On the bonnie, bonnie banks of Loch Lomond," certainly means something very different from the later form in common use—which we also use:

"But me and my true love will never meet again, and certainly points out ample basis for the theory that originally the song referred to a temporary separation of the two lovers rather than to the separation of death.
On the bonnie, bonnie banks of Loch Lomond,"

However, it is not so much of this part of Mr. Phin's letter that I crave your indulgence as of his totally misleading criticism of the manner in which we sing the song. I may say in this connection that I was born with the Scotch music, brought up with it, and have lived with it all my life, and I claim to know it as thoroughly as any one can, but with regard to this particular song I have enjoyed peculiar privileges. I have heard it sung by Sims Reeves, the world-renowned English tenor; by Charles Santley, the greatest English baritone, and many other English and Scotch artists, all of whom took it in the same tempo which I use, a tempo I may say that is as set with regard to this classic folk-song as are set any of the Beethoven tempi. But I wish to refer especially to the work of a famous Gaelic artist, whose singing electrified New York ten years ago, and whose "cheval de bataille" was this song. I speak of the splendid Scotch tenor, Mackenzie Gordon, the mere mention of whose name will recall a thrill of pleasure to all those privileged to hear him sing anything, and especially this song in which he excelled to a superlative degree. I had the honor of accompanying this song for Mr. Gordon at least a hundred times, both in public and private, and he sang it in identically the same tempo which I adopt in our production.

Moreover, to refer to this tempo—which is a typical "andante moderato," with a marked ritard at the end of each phrase—as a "quick, rollicking, rag-time measure," is, to quote Mr. Phin's own word, a "brutal" misstatement of fact, which wrongs every one concerned in the rendition of the song.

Dr. Ernst Richard Misunderstood.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your report of the meeting of the New York Peace Society in this morning's TIMES the following statement is made:

> Toward the close of the meeting Dr. Ernst Richard, a lecturer in German at Columbia University, evoked continuous outbursts of approval and disapproval by attacking the arbitration treaties between this country and England on the ground that thereby the United States was "playing into the hands of England." Only with great difficulty and much rapping could Chancellor MacCracken maintain order.

This is erroneous in every respect. On the contrary, I maintained that the view that the pending arbitration treaties with England and France contained a point against Germany—a view which causes what there is of German-American opposition against those treaties—is mistaken. Nor was there any manifestation of dissent or disorder, and the Chairman did not have to rap for order once during my remarks.

Since I am at present asking my German-American fellow-citizens to urge the Senate to ratify the treaties with Great Britain and France, having confidence in the official statement that a similar treaty with Germany is held in abeyance only to wait for the action of the Senate on the pending treaties, I would thank you to correct this report immediately, since a misunderstanding of my position at the present moment will counteract all possible effect of my undertaking.

DIVES ABOUT ARMY POSTS.

Mrs. Boole Admits Their Increase Since the Canteen Was Abolished.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the arguments and reasoning of Mrs. Ella A. Boole, as President of the W. C. T. U., in her letter to you to-day, are representative samples of female logic applied to strictly male problems, may the granting of women's suffrage in the United States, together with the millennium, both arrive coincidently. It seems inconceivable that such people, with their preposterous and fallacious arguments could have wrought on the United States Army, through Congress, the greatest injury and grievance under which it has ever labored, in practically abolishing the canteen.

I have it on the word of a former Chief of Staff of the United States Army, a man with nearly forty years' experience in army problems and with an intimate, expert, and first-hand knowledge of the subject, that drunkenness and depravity, vice and every sort of crime have increased enormously since the enlisted men have been led by conditions created by such reformers as the W. C. T. U. to the unspeakably vile and iniquitous dives that swarm around every United States Army Post.

These facts, however, are matters of common knowledge, and have never been refuted by the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Boole practically admits that such is the case in her lamentably weak utterance, "Some of these places were there before." Of course they were, but in quite insignificant numbers compared with what now exist.

All that the W. C. T. U. does through its President is to disclaim responsibility for the outrageous conditions that she admits exist, and to propose the most drastic and utterly impossible and ridiculous methods for eradicating them. Quite apart from the local police jurisdictions, within which, as you point out, Congress has no power, what would be the effect if Congress could enact the impossible and prohibit the sale of liquor within five miles of any army post or camp?

It would mean total prohibition in almost every part of every large city in the United States, including New York. It would mean the destruction of thousands of millions of property. To be consistent, it should also apply to the locality in which every United States warship chanced to be present.

If such impossible and ridiculous methods be seriously advocated as necessary by the W. C. T. U., through their President, to remedy and counteract the disastrous results of their former ill-advised activities in practically abolishing the canteen, what stronger argument than this can exist to repeal the law they brought into existence, which, like a moral cancer, is slowly but surely eating its way into every fibre of manhood in the United States Army.

A Farmer's Wife Writes on Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Good butter requires patience, cleanliness, and hard work, and the farmers' wives should receive more than 20 cents a pound at this time of year, when butter at retail is so high.

Poultry we cannot dispose of at any price, so we are desperate, as grain is high. Eggs, strictly fresh, we sell at 30 cents a dozen.

Apples, choice varieties, all sprayed fruit, we are feeding to our cattle. If we send them to a commission house they will return us a bill for cartage and commission. Apples failed to bring enough for expenses. Half my life I have spent in New York City, the other half on the farm, so I am in a position to know something regarding what the producer receives and how much the consumer pays.

Gallery's Scrappy Programmes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article marked "Theatre Programmes in the Gallery," in this morning's edition appealed to me. The second balcony or gallery audience are the most appreciative; they are the only ones that arrive on time to see a performance. Many a great artist owes his "following" to the gallery. I know that when I could not afford better than a gallery seat I found the scraps of printed paper an imposition to read, and, furthermore, very uninteresting.

HIGHPRICE BUTTER.

(A New "Danny Deever.")

"What are the women ravin' 'bout?" said Housewife-Just-A-Bride,
"To wake you up, to wake you up," the Hungry Husband cried.
"What makes you look so sick, so sick?" said Housewife-Just-A-Bride,
"I'm dreadin' what I've got to eat," the Hungry Husband cried.
For they're cuttin' Highprice Butter, and the ladies ain't in play,
The Housewives' League is rampant—butter has to go, they say,
In its smooth alluring oiliness they're takin' it away,
An' they're cuttin' Highprice Butter from the food list.

"What makes the men all look so glum?" said Housewife-Just-A-Bride,
"They breakfasted on oleo," the Hungry Husband cried.
"What makes the butcher beam and bow?" said Housewife-Just-A-Bride,
"He's sellin' lard, he's sellin' lard," the Hungry Husband cried.
They are cuttin' out the butter at the housewives' stern behest.
Buckwheat cakes have lost their flavor, baked potatoes lost their zest,
Trait'rous substitutes will hide them 'neath my agitated vest,
For they're cuttin' Highprice Butter from the food list.

"Who is that man with such a grouch?" said Housewife-Just-A-Bride,
"A Wholesale Butter Dealer, dear," the Hungry Husband cried.
"What is that murmurous mob-like noise?" said Housewife-Just-A-Bride,
"The housewives handing him their views," the Hungry Husband cried.
For they're done with Highprice Butter, it has had its little day,
When the housewives say it's going, it will have to go—and stay,
So let's join the procession, tho' it be no toothsome way,
Since they're cuttin' Highprice Butter from the food list.

ARCHITECTS SHOW THE LATEST DESIGNS

Treatment of American Country House Tends to Subordinate Home to the Grounds.

GAINING IN SIMPLICITY

A Notable Feature in League's Decoration Department Is Wm. L. Harris's Studies for Paulist Church.

The twenty-seventh annual exhibition of the Architectural League is marked by one striking characteristic which gives unity to its otherwise diverse interests. It is chiefly dedicated to the accomplished fact, to the illustration of buildings already erected, to decorations already carried out on the scale of the finished work, to gardens already laid out and planted, so that the public has little chance to wonder if any special design is going to turn out as it looks on paper.

The general aspect of the galleries is one of unusual gayety, color playing a prominent part in the drawings as well as in the decorations; but even to the most casual observation it is clear that the architects, and also the decorators, although to a less degree, are struggling seriously with one of the most complicated and important problems of modern art, the adaptation of inherited ideas to the necessities of an entirely new type of civilization, a civilization so complex and many-sided, moreover, that no one style of the past can be made over to fit it.

In this preliminary review we can only indicate a few of the suggestions conveyed by individual exhibits. For one thing, it is quite apparent that the treatment of the American country house, which is beginning to take such a prominent place in American life, tends increasingly to subordinate the house to the grounds, or at least to place it inconspicuously, and in a way to interrupt as little as possible the landscape effect. The buildings themselves are also gaining in simplicity. A group of Long Island houses by Aymar Embury shows an agreeable modification of the Colonial style in fuller curves and heavier columns. "Hoadley House" at Englewood, N. J., designed by Hays & Hoadley, touches the extreme of Colonial simplicity, erring on the side of too closely cropped eaves; an alteration of an old mill for a residence at Lake George has been accomplished with the utmost tact, the problem having almost overpowering difficulties.

We must leave special comment, however, until a more leisurely inspection has been achieved. Among the notable features in the department of decoration of the exhibition are C. Y. Turner's color study for his decoration in the Hudson County Court House, Jersey City, a decorative design by A. T. Schwartz, representing Francis I. and his hunting party, quarter sized studies for the Paulist Church by William Laurel Harris, color compositions by F. Louis Mora for the Orpheum Theatre at Los Angeles, a circular composition called "The Sirens," by Robert V. V. Sewall; drawings by E. H. Blashfield, J. Mortimer Lichtenauer, Frederick Wilson, and others.

In the Vanderbilt Gallery we see monkeys in the tropical landscape, painted by J. W. Gleason. The title of this composition is "The Evening Song of the Bandor-Log." To the right and left are scenes in the Saragossa Sea, a series for Castle Gould by William Mackay. Notable among the decorations in this room are the designs by Edward Deming for the frieze in the Harriman house at Arden, and the tapestry by Albert Hurter; but quite the most remarkable of all and notable among the pictures that have been seen in the Fine Arts Gallery is a series of forty-one designs of sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth century decorative schemes by French artists of those periods. In them we catch glimpses of the splendor, the grace, and the absurdity of the decadent monarch. The centres of the east and west walls in the Vanderbilt Gallery are occupied by large decorations. The one to the west, by Charles Hoffbauer, entitled "Triumph of a Condotiere, Florence, 1450," and the one to the east, by William Mackay, representing one of the Sargossa Sea series for Castle Gould.

Among the architectural exhibits are the Belmont Chapel by Hunt & Hunt, the Toledo Museum by Green & Wicks, Donn Barber's Y. M. C. A., the Chapel of the Intercession, by Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson; Kenneth M. Murchison's palace for the President of Cuba, and a house at Forest Hills by Grosvenor Atterbury.

HOW EDUCATION GREW UP.

Exhibition Showing the History of Text-Books at the Public Library.

An exhibition illustrating the history of education from the text-book standpoint will be opened in the New York Public Library at 9 o'clock this morning, and will be continued for two or three months. The hours will be from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. daily, except Sunday. The exhibition will be in the main room on the first floor, opposite the Fifth Avenue entrance. Posters describing the exhibition have been sent to 500 public schools and forty branch libraries in the three boroughs, Manhattan, the Bronx, and Richmond. The Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens are not included, as they have separate Public Libraries of their own.

The books in the exhibition are all from the library of George A. Plimpton, 61 Park Avenue, and will be of special interest to teachers and others interested in education.

"Reading" is illustrated by one of the largest collections of horn books in the world; by one of the earliest manuscripts in English at the time of Chaucer; by the earliest Latin manuscript of about the thirteenth century, and by the first printed primers.

"Penmanship" is shown by some of the illuminated manuscripts that were made by monks; by the first printed book on penmanship, 1514; by the first one printed in English, 1570, and by the first one printed in America.

The exhibit of "Arithmetic" comprises several manuscripts of Boethius; by the first printed arithmetic, 1478, and by the first printed in Germany, England, and America.

"Geometry" is illustrated by an Arabic manuscript of Euclid; by the earliest known Latin manuscript of Euclid, and by the first Euclid printed in English.

"Algebra" is shown by one of the earliest known Latin manuscripts by Mohammed Ben Musa of Bagdad; "Astronomy" by the first printed edition of Ptolemy's "Astronomy," 1482.

"Rhetoric" includes the first edition of the "Rhetoric" of Brunetti Latini, Dante's teacher; "Logic," the first printed book on the subject in English; "Latin," manuscripts of Donatus and Priscian and the first Latin grammar printed; "Greek," the first printed Greek grammar; "Geography," the first book printed about it in America; "Teaching," the first printed book on the subject, 1474, and the first edition of Roger Ascham's "Scholemaster," and "Theology," a rare manuscript of Peter Lombard's "Sentences" of the thirteenth century.

SUFFRAGE LIBRARY OPENED.

Equal Franchise Society Takes Possession of Old Peter Marie House.

A baker's dozen of books, the nucleus of the free library, with a reading room, which the Equal Franchise Society has opened at 8 East Thirty-eighth Street, in the ballroom of the old Peter Marié house, were on exhibition yesterday afternoon at the library's housewarming.

Mrs. Jessica C. Finch presided. She is soon to leave for Europe, and Mrs. Pearce Bailey, who will act as President in Mrs. Finch's absence, made a short address yesterday. Mrs. Frederick Nathan also spoke.

A perfectly lovely tea table was brought in after the addresses, and sandwiches, tea, and cakes were served.

DEBUTANTE DANCE FOR MISS HANNAH

Mrs. George B. Hopkins Entertains for Her Niece in Both Ballrooms at Sherry's.

GREEN AND WHITE EFFECTS

Three Hundred Guests Include Many of This Winter's Buds and Older Girls.

Mrs. George B. Hopkins of 25 West Forty-eighth Street gave a dance last night for her débutante niece, Miss Zoë Hannah, the daughter of Mrs. John Hannah.

Mrs. Albert Post Hinton, Mrs. Hobart Porter, and several others gave dinners before the dance.

Nearly 300 guests were asked and both ballrooms at Sherry's were taken for the entertainment, the small one being used for the seated supper. The decorations were green and white, and palms, vines, and baskets of white flowers, including white roses, were used.

Mrs. Hopkins and Miss Hannah, the latter in a white taffeta frock draped with white tulle and moonstones, received in the red reception room adjoining the large ballroom.

There was general dancing until 1 o'clock, when the seated supper was served. The guests were many of them this year's buds and older girls. Several of Mrs. Hopkins's friends were invited, including Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waters Taft and Mrs. Harry Kearsarge Knapp.

The girls included, among others, the Misses Agnes Claflin, Urling Sibley, Hazen Symington, Noel Johnston, Helen Gourd, Laura Livingston, Caramal Carroll, Betty Carson, Hope Warren, Sarah Manice, Josephine Nicoll, Justine Ingersoll, Cora Hennen Morris, Jean Morris, Harriet Ferry, Julia Dick, Sybil Davis, Ruth Moller, Rose Grosvenor, and Dorothy Hancock of Boston, Eleanor Prentice, Genevieve Sanford, Viola and Adeline Townsend, Helen Turnbull, Laura Webb, Marjorie Weeks, Constance Williams, Caro Brown, Emily Sherman, Polly Jacob, Frances and Rosamond Burr, Inez and Vida Milholland, Josephine Osborn, Eleanor and Mabel Hinton, Dorothy Porter, Katharine Sands, Natalie Slocum, the Misses Hazard, Amy Cruger, Rosette Ford, and Mary Myers.

Also Oliver Wagstaff, John Farr, Jr., William Dick, Alfred Ely, Jr., Frederick Godwin, David Ely, Francis Murray, Harold Stokes, Jefferson Newbold, Howard Major, Norish Thorne, Spencer, Turner, Henry and Walbridge Taft, Irving Pardee, August and Louis Noel, Brenton, Charles and Lindsay Welling, William Symington, Preston Fargo, Stuart Fargo, Percy Pyne, George Gilder, Noel Bassett, Leonard Wyeth, Percy Weeks, Johnston Redmond, Kingsland Macy, Morton Newhall of Philadelphia, Strother Jones, Charles Loring, Fritz Jennings, Charles Imbrie, Horton Ijams, Alfred Greenough, Paul and Noel Hammond, Harold Herrick, Henry Hooker, Marcel Gourd, and Seth Barton French.

Mrs. Curtis Burnley's Recital.

Mrs. Curtis Burnley, the Southern entertainer, whose engagement to C. E. Railing, assistant manager of the Plaza, was recently announced, gave a recital yesterday afternoon at the Republic Theatre. Mrs. Burnley was assisted by Grace Clark Kahler, soprano, who sang a new song by Mrs. Burnley. The programme embraced a group of character impersonations and songs, monologues, and special readings. Among the box-seat holders were Frederick Townsend Martin, Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, Mrs. Russell Harding, Mrs. Simon Baruch, Mrs. Edward Lauterbach, Mrs. Arthur E. Stillwell, Miss Lillian Hester, Mrs. Ira Barrows, Mrs. Marie Allen Battle, Mrs. Pierre C. Waring, Mrs. M. E. Harby, Mrs. C. H. Hilliard, Mrs. Arthur Elliott Fish, Mrs. F. I. Goodrich, Mrs. Edna N. Hodges, Mrs. Paul A. Sorg, Mrs. Maclyn Arbuckle, Dr. Holbrook Curtis, Mrs. Jessica Garretson Finch, and Charles E. Stickney.

Charity Ball at the Waldorf Feb. 6.

The annual Charity Ball will be given at the Waldorf-Astoria on Feb. 6, for the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital. The concert music will begin at 9:30 and the opening march at 10 o'clock, after which dancing will begin in the five ballrooms provided, the Grand Ballroom, the Astor Gallery, the Myrtle Room, the East Room, and the room south of the East Room. The music will be furnished by three orchestras. As 2,700 persons attended the ball last season, it is expected that this number will be considerably increased this year. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Charles F. Roe of 35 East Thirty-seventh Street.

Miss Thursby's Friday Musicale.

At the Friday afternoon musicale in Miss Emma Thursby's studio in Gramercy Park Louis Hintze of Berlin played two violin compositions of his own, "By the Brook" and "Serenato and Polonaise." Mr. Hintze was also at the piano while Miss Cramer sang Mme. Lehmann's "Lovers in the Lane" and "The Storm." Max Jacobs also played the violin, and Mrs. Benedict (Carrie Blydwell) sang Namer's "Slumber Song." Among the many guests were Mr. Amato of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Clara Louise Kellogg, Mrs. Chapman, Baroness von Gross, the Count and Countess Fabbri, and Mr. Mattfeld, also of the Metropolitan.

Samuel Wolff to Wed Miss Zetosch.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 26.—Announcement was made here to-day of the engagement of Samuel Wolff of Brooklyn to Miss Jeannette Zetosch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Zetosch. Mr. Zetosch is one of the richest wholesale wine merchants of Portland. No date has yet been set for the wedding, but it is believed it will be in the early Spring.

Proctor-Sterling Wedding To-day.

The wedding of Miss Beatrice M. Sterling, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Sterling, to Rodney Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley T. Proctor, will take place at Grace Church this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Sterling's only attendant will be Mrs. Duncan Sterling. Mr. Proctor will have as his best man his brother, William Proctor. The ushers will be Harold Imbrie, Edward B. Spaulding, Lawrence Swift, Fritz Hoeninghaus, Norris Ballou. Douglas R. Hartshorne. After the wedding a reception will be held at the home of the bride's brother, 313 West Seventy-seventh Street.

Miss Marguerite B. Booth to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Allen Booth of 44 Morningside Drive announce the engagement of their twin daughter, Marguerite B. Booth, to Wallace A. F. Fyle of Pittsburgh. Miss Booth's twin sister, Mrs. Melchin Thomson of Pittsburgh, is a bride of a year. No date has been set for the wedding. Their future home will be in Titusville, Fla.

Miss Steele Weds G. H. Wheeler.

The wedding of Miss Minnie Louise Steele, daughter of Mrs. Dudley S. Steele and the late Gen. Steele, to Grattan Henry Wheeler took place yesterday at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, 336 West Ninety-fifth Street. The Rev. Theodore M. Carlisle of Geneseo, N. Y., officiated.

ELLISBERG—POSER.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ellisberg announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Ellisberg, to Frank Poser. A reception will be held to-morrow at 970 Union Avenue, the Bronx.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Owing to illness, Mrs. Daniel Lamont was obliged to recall the invitations for a dance she was to give last night at Sherry's for Miss Frances Henry.

Mrs. Joel E. Fisher and Miss Viera Fisher are booked to sail Feb. 21 on the Adriatic, to be absent until next Fall. They will spend the Easter season in Rome.

The Yale Glee Club will give a concert on Feb. 16 at the Waldorf-Astoria in aid of the scholarship fund.

The Emma Willard Association will on Feb. 23 celebrate the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of Miss Willard's birth with an entertainment. The Rev. Thomas Reed Bridges will lecture on Japan, with stereopticon views, and there will be music and refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock entertained Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., at dinner last night at the Ritz-Carlton.

Mrs. Eugene Philbin gave a dinner last night at Sherry's, followed by informal dancing, after which most of the guests went to the dance for Miss Hannah. The guests included the Misses Eugenie Philbin, Justine Ingersoll, Frances Henry, Sybil Davis, and Josephine Nicoll.

Prince A. D. Mavrogordato of Florence, Italy, who is stopping at the Hotel Gotham this Winter, is visiting in Philadelphia.

The wedding of Miss Roda N. Roessle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood O. Roessle of Irvington-on-Hudson, to Paul W. Alexander will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Church of the Heavenly Rest. A reception will follow at the St. Regis.

Louis Mark of Budapest, the Hungarian portrait painter, who has just completed a portrait of Henry Clews, will give a tea on Jan. 31 from 3 to 6 at his studio, 130 West Fifty-seventh Street. About 200 society people have been asked.

MISS ANGLIN IN NEW ROLE.

Acts Superbly in Henry Arthur Jones's Play, "Lydia Gilmore."

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 26.—Fully recovered from her temporary indisposition, Margaret Anglin appeared to-night at the Academy of Music and produced for the first time on any stage the newest play by Henry Arthur Jones, "Lydia Gilmore." Literary friends of Mr. Jones from New York and Boston saw the performance. "Lydia Gilmore" has an interesting dramatic style.

The Gilmores are the centre of the social set in an English provincial community. In keeping a clandestine appointment with the wife of a neighbor Dr. Gilmore meets with the husband, whom he kills in a quarrel. Mrs. Gilmore, though disillusioned by the revelation of her husband's character, fights for his life and the future of their young son, whom she passionately adores. She shows herself as being ready to and does sacrifice honor and truth for him.

The play was written for Miss Anglin and gives her opportunity for some good acting. The supporting company includes John Blair, Lee Baker, John Miltern, Wilfred Draycott, Gertrude Hitz, and Winifred Arthur Jones. Gustav Von Seyffertitz produced the play for Miss Anglin. The star showed no trace of her recent illness and played superbly.

SAVAGE BEGINS WORLD TOUR.

T. Daniel Frawley Will Accompany Manager as Far as Naples.

Henry W. Savage, the theatrical manager, started on a tour of the world yesterday afternoon, with Chicago as his first objective point. He left in company with his general manager, Madison Corey, who is going only to Chicago.

Mr. Savage will spend one day in that city and will then go to Kansas City, where he will stop only long enough to see his Western "Excuse Me" company. From Kansas City he will go direct to Los Angeles and then to San Francisco, where he will arrive on Feb. 4. In San Francisco he will be joined by T. Daniel Frawley, his general stage director, and the two will sail on the steamship Cleveland on Feb. 6. They will visit Honolulu, the Philippines, and the principal points in Japan, China, India, and Egypt. They expect to reach Naples the latter part of May. Mr. Frawley will then return to New York and Mr. Savage will begin his annual tour of Europe.

During Mr. Savage's absence Mr. Corey will have charge of affairs here.

DETECTIVE BURNS IN A PLAY.

Drama Based on His Experiences to be Staged by Klaw & Erlanger.

Klaw & Erlanger have signed contracts with William J. Burns, the detective, for a detective play based on his personal experiences in the pursuit of criminals and his methods of detection. Harriet Ford, the playwright, and Harvey J. O'Higgins, the writer, will assist him in the work.

The story will be centred about a detective of the Burns type in the Secret Service, but no community or organization will be involved in either the plot or the characterizations.

Mrs. Elkins Operated Upon.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—Mrs. George W. Elkins, Jr., who was Miss Natalie C. Fox, is recovering at the University Hospital here from an operation for appendicitis performed last Wednesday. Mrs. Elkins was taken ill Tuesday evening at her home in Elkins Park, and was immediately removed to the hospital. It was said this afternoon that Mrs. Elkins probably will be about within two weeks.

MUSIC NOTES.

MUCH SUFFERING DUE TO COLD.

The public cannot afford to neglect these destitute homes—in many a mother is struggling courageously to keep the children together.

Such neglect invariably leads to chronic dependency, crime or disease, and lays fresh burdens upon society.

They appeal to you through us.

Your gift enables us to help you to help others help themselves.

Won't you help them now?

NAVY DOESN'T FAVOR MORGAN LUNCHROOM

Officers Against the Government's Taking Over the Navy Yard Restaurant.

MISS MORGAN AWAITS REPORT

Service and Prices Satisfactory to the Workmen, but Many Still Go Outside to Eat.

The plan of Miss Anne T. Morgan, daughter of J. P. Morgan, and the women's branch of the National Civic Federation, to provide through a restaurant inside the gates of the New York Navy Yard good and moderate-priced food for the yard workers has not been an unqualified success from the naval point of view, and it is practically certain, it was admitted at the navy yard yesterday, that the Board of Investigation, which has been looking into the subject, will report against the Government taking over the restaurant. Miss Morgan has been unceasing in her interest in the restaurant since it was established in June, 1909, and she has been anxiously awaiting the publication of the board's report. She visits the navy yard almost every week.

With Mrs. William Rand, Jr., and Mrs. Marshall Bacon she went to the navy yard on Wednesday. They inspected the restaurant and inquired of the men whether there was any complaint to make regarding either prices or service. There were no complaints, and the restaurant, it was said, was popular. After finishing her tour of inspection Miss Morgan visited the office of the navy yard. She is reported to have asked to see the board report regarding the restaurant, and to have been told that the report would come out from Washington. It is also said that she was informed that the unofficial opinion was that the board would not recommend the taking over of the restaurant.

Whatever was said, Miss Morgan was not in a pleasant state of mind apparently when she left the office. When she was asked for an interview she said with brusqueness, "Leave me alone."

The Board of Investigation is composed of Lieut. Commander B. B. McCormick, Past Assistant Paymaster T. P. Bollinger, and Lieut. Wilson Brown, Jr. The sentiment of the officers of the navy yard, as voiced by one of them yesterday, is against the Navy Department taking over the responsibility of operating an eating place there. There is no complaint about the prices, the service, or the food. It is simply a question as to whether it would pay.

There are 5,000 workers in the yard, and about 300 of them, it is said, eat in the restaurant. It provides good surroundings for the workmen at the noon hour, but it has to depend altogether for profit on the lunch trade. The enlisted men are provided for, but many of them eat outside the yard. The restaurant is a paying venture as far as average profits are concerned, but there have been times during its existence when there have been no profits, and if the Government takes it over there will be no fund out of which a deficit can be made up. One reason why many of the workers do not patronize the place, it is said, is that they prefer to go outside the gates where they can get beer with their noonday meal.

The Government never assumed responsibility, as was pointed out by Miss Morgan, when at its opening she said:

"When the Navy Department accepted Admiral Goodrich's suggestion as to the restaurant it did so on the express understanding that it was in no way responsible for its operation. It was taken up independently and enthusiastically because of the feeling that it would fill a great need. One thing is certain, if it fails to pay expenses it must be shut down."

It was also understood that if the place was a success the Government would take it over. To have the Government operate it it would be necessary to assign a commissioned officer to superintend it, and this expense would, the officers say, eat up all the profits.

The restaurant was opened by Miss Morgan on June 7, 1909. It is located within the limits near the Sand Street entrance in Building No. 14. It has a floor space of 100 feet by 65 feet, and can accommodate nearly a thousand diners.

"Charity is not the object," Miss Morgan said in 1909. "The restaurant is only one of the many things that should be introduced to improve the conditions surrounding Government workmen. What we hope to do in providing the restaurant is to prove to the Government authorities that such a plan can be carried out on a self-paying basis. It will then be up to the Government to take it off our hands and start branches in other departments of the service."

In addition to Miss Morgan, the Chairman, Mrs. Elbert H. Gary and Miss Elisabeth Marbury are members of the special committee having the restaurant in charge. Others interested in the project are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. Laura L. Ray, Mrs. J. Kemys West, Mrs. Francis Higginson Cabot, Mrs. J. Everit Macy, Mrs. Ernest Fabbri, Mrs. John W. Nichols, Mrs. Florence M. Rhett, and Mrs. Dona R. Easley.

TO AID THE WORTHY POOR.

Gifts Through The Times for Three Families in Want.

A renewed appeal is made by the Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, 192 Bowery, in behalf of a widow, whose health has been undermined this Winter so that she cannot provide for her four children. A machine is to be procured for her so that she can earn her living expenses by sewing. Contributions will be acknowledged by Mrs. Martin Beck, 135 Central Park West. The following additional contributions have been received by THE TIMES: $2 from E. C., $1 from A. S. M.

THE TIMES has also received $5 from "Philchar," 50 cents from "J. A. C.," and $2 from "A Friend" for Mrs. Carmelia Defino and her three children, who were found destitute in their home in Harlem. One dollar has been received from "H. E. J." for the New Rochelle family, which obtained relief through a message carried by a dog to the Commissioner of Charities, as told in THE TIMES of last Sunday.

$75,000 for Presbyterian Hospital.

A bequest of $75,000 to the Presbyterian Hospital in the will of Edward O. Kinberg, a retired merchant of Brooklyn, was upheld yesterday by the Apellate Division of the Supreme Court.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Charles J. Ross is the first player to be engaged by Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., for his permanent stock company that is to open the new Moulin Rouge next month.

Fifty young women, members of the Irene Club, attended the performance of Gertrude Elliott in "White Magic" at the Criterion Theatre, last night, as the guests of Mrs. James Speyer.

The company that is to support Stella Hammerstein in "The Tyranny of Fate," a three-scene dramatic sketch by Herbert Thomson, will include Ogden Crane, Earl Metcalfe, Ernest Chester, Ethel Valentine, Glen Anders, T. Morse Koupal, and Grace Benham.

"It Happened in Pottsdam," a new comedy drama in which Al H. Wilson is to star, will open in Meadville, Penn., Monday night.

Mrs. Fiske has volunteered to come from Philadelphia to be present at the performance in the interests of the National Alliance for the Protection of Stage Children at the Century Theatre on the afternoon of Feb. 9. She will deliver the opening address.

Paul Armstrong has decided to elaborate his sketch, "A Romance of the Underworld," that is being presented in vaudeville, into a three-act drama. Catherine Calvert is to have the leading role, and as many as possible of the vaudeville cast will be put into the drama.

Mme. Bertha Kalich has been requested to give a series of performances on the east side as soon as her present engagements will permit, and has consented to produce two plays at one of the Yiddish theatres in the Spring. She is now appearing in vaudeville in "The Light from St. Agnes."

The one hundredth performance of Raymond Hitchcock in "The Red Widow" took place at the Astor Theatre last night.

CROCKERS' ORIENTAL BALL.

Decorations Worth Half a Million in the St. Francis Ballroom.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26. — The Oriental ball given to-night by Templeton Crocker at the St. Francis Hotel was the most elaborate function ever held in the West. All the decorations and costumes were Oriental; that is, Egyptian, Persian, Turkish and East Indian, but Japan and China were not represented. While the Colonial ball room at the St. Francis formed the setting for the ball proper, the entire mezzanine floor was reserved for the use of guests, of whom there were only 200.

The ball had a setting worthy of the distinguished guests who came as impersonators of queens of antiquity, of rulers of Rome or legendary realms that have long since passed out of being.

The ceiling of the room was covered with rare Oriental embroideries, and almost forgotten Egyptian and Persian designs of tapestry. In the half curtained alcoves, heavy with incense, the guests lingered between dances or remained seated on fine tapestries and rugs brought from the land of luxury.

All the wealthy homes about Bay were stripped of decorations and costly rugs for the occasion and it is estimated that the decorations of the ball room alone were worth nearly half a million. The general effect in the ball room was that of an Oriental garden. Sod was transplanted from the Crocker estates to create a magnificent lawn and a real fountain was erected.

Mr. and Mrs. Templeton Crocker have been preparing for this ball for more than a year and results showed it. The guests made a display of jewels that surpassed anything ever seen here.

CARMANIA'S OFFICER HELD.

Charged with Allowing an English Crook to Escape from Ship.

Reginald Peel, chief officer of the Cunard liner Carmania, which sails to-day at 10 A. M. for Liverpool, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner Shields for not guarding against the escape of a notorious English crook from the Carmania on the night of Jan. 21 when she arrived at her pier.

It was charged that the Chief Officer knowingly, wilfully, and negligently failed to prevent the landing of an alien on the second cabin passenger list known as H. Kankel, alias Franz Beyrodt. The company had been served with a notice by Immigration Commissioner Williams to detain the passenger.

Peel, who denied the charge, was put under bond of $1,000 to appear for examination on the return of the Carmania from Liverpool on Feb. 20. A TIMES reporter who inquired on board the Carmania was informed that Kankel stole the landing card of an old man who was in the same cabin with him, and got ashore with it, leaving his baggage behind. He was in such a hurry that he left a copy of Whittier's poems in his cabin with 1,800 marks in notes ($450) folded in its leaves.

HARVARD CLUB DINNER.

Congratulations Sent to ex-President Eliot, Recovering in Ceylon.

The forty-seventh annual dinner of the Harvard Club was held last night at the clubrooms, 27 West Forty-fourth Street. Two hundred and fifty were in attendance. Informal talks were made by Rev. Minot Simmons, '91, of Cleveland, President of the Associated Harvard Clubs; Judge Francis J. Swayze, '79, of Newark; Henry E. Rogers, '62, of Boston; State Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt, '04, and President A. L. Lowell of Harvard University. The toastmaster was President Peter B. Olney of the Harvard Club of New York.

A cable message was sent to Ceylon congratulating ex-President Charles W. Eliot on his recovery from an attack of appendicitis. The Harvard cheer was given for the President of the Club, the speakers, and for ex-President Eliot, Joseph H. Choate, '52, and Robert Bacon, '80, Ambassador to France, recently elected a fellow of Harvard College.

ANDREW GILHOOLY DEAD.

New York Lawyer Expired in Hotel While Trying to Call Aid.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—Andrew Gilhooly, a New York attorney, was found dead in his room at a local hotel to-day. Representative R. O. Harris had waited all day in his office for Gilhooly, who was to consult with him about a civil case pending in the Massachusetts courts. Mr. Gilhooly's death was said to be due to natural causes. His body was found projected from his bed toward a telephone, and it is believed he attempted to summon aid.

Andrew Gilhooly was a lawyer at 5 Beekman Street. He formerly lived at the Hotel Broztell, 3 East Twenty-seventh Street, but moved from there some time ago.

William Watts Sherman Buried.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Jan. 26.—William Watts Sherman, who died in New York on last Monday, was buried here this morning in the Island Cemetery, his body having been brought here in a private car, accompanied by Mrs. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Norrie Sellar, and Mrs. Harold Brown. The Rev. Stanley C. Hughes of Trinity Church read the burial ritual. The service was largely attended by Mr. Sherman's friends here. Funeral wreaths, which were sent in great number, came from the Newport Historical Society, the Newport Reading Room, the Sherman employes, and many friends. Lord and Lady Camoys, (Miss Sherman,) who are now abroad, sent a beautiful wreath of orchids. The family returned to New York after the service.

NEW YORK

UNTERMYER SCORES MONEY OLIGARCHY

Though Legal and Not a "Trust," He Says It's a Danger Nevertheless.

BANKS THE REAL POWER

By Underwriting Industrial Bond Issues—But He Favors Only a Conservative Congressional Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A vivid portrayal of the trade and commerce of the country held in the clutch of a powerful money "oligarchy" was given by Samuel Untermyer of New York in his testimony to-day before the House Rules Committee in advocacy of the projected investigation of the so-called "Money Trust." But the testimony of the New Yorker, however interesting, was a distinct disappointment to those members of the committee who, after the advertising that had come to Mr. Untermyer's relation to the suggested inquiry, had indulged the hope that his testimony would deal with individual cases, specific instances upon which an investigation might be based. Mr. Untermyer specifically and particularly refrained from mentioning names. He swung clear of definite detail, and he wanted it clearly understood that he was not present for the purpose of offering "testimony" or being cross-examined, but only to make "suggestions."

Insisting that an investigation would uncover not a money trust but a financial "oligarchy," Mr. Untermyer cooled the enthusiasm of some more ardent members of the committee when he declared they would be sorely disappointed if the investigation were to be a "general fishing expedition into the private affairs of individuals."

"There is, of course, no such thing as a 'money trust' in the sense in which we understand the word 'trust,' as applied to unlawful combinations," said Mr. Untermyer. "There is no definite agreement, or understanding, between the few men who wield and control the vast money power of the country. There is, certainly, nothing illegal in the dangerous 'community of interest' under which they are exercising that power with constantly increasing effectiveness. They are acting, with rare exceptions, strictly within their legal rights, but the results are none the less oppressive and perilous to the country. In fact, they seem to me far more so for that reason."

While he refrained from citing instances, Mr. Untermyer insisted that a Congressional investigation would discover not only the instances, but a "general system of dealing that would be more valuable to know than mere individual instances."

Sugar Trust a Pigmy Now.

He had specific instances in mind, but did not care to "point to any particular banking house." When asked whether the American Sugar Refining Company was one of the biggest financial factors in the situation he responded, half derisively: "Not any more. It used to be a giant, now it's a pigmy. There were not more than four powerful financial groups."

Mr. Untermyer wanted it understood "from the outset" that he had only appeared before the committee in response to "the insistent and persistent demand of the committee." He said he had delivered an address some time ago on the question whether there is a Money Trust, and as a result had been importuned to express his views and make such arguments as might occur to him respecting the Lindbergh resolutions.

"I am very heartily in favor of this inquiry," said Mr. Untermyer, "and I believe that the welfare of the country demands that we know by careful, painstaking, conservative investigation the real situation of the money power that is rapidly being concentrated in very few hands.

"I do not believe it is going to be possible for Congress intelligently to consider or determine any of the great economic questions now before it, those relating to trusts and currency reforms, until it understands this power which underlies them all. I do not believe the subject is understood, or that the dangers of the existing system are sufficiently appreciated."

"Although I am a Democrat, I am not a believer in State sovereignty over matters which the State really cannot administer, and over which it has no real control. The growth of this power is largely accounted for by the differences between the methods in which our securities are given to the public and the methods adopted in England, France, and Germany. They have very wholesome, rigid corporation laws; they hold the Directors to very strict accountability, and have strict penal provisions.

Foreign Investors Protected.

"The result is that when a company has securities to offer there it offers not through a banking house, but offers them through a printed prospectus and an advertisement stating fully the merits and demerits of the enterprise. The public abroad has learned to rely on these advertisements. It buys securities directly in that fashion. It buys them because protected in buying, and if the public does not know everything concerning the corporations it's the public's own fault. As a result of that system there is wide distribution of securities to the public without any large and exorbitant prices.

"With us the system is entirely different. It is so because the laws cannot be relied upon, because the investor gets no protection; also different because we have so recently grown from a mere debtor country to a great financial power that our corporation laws have not kept pace with our financial growth. So we have no protection for the minority stockholders; none of the safeguards that in other countries protect the security holders. With us the systems have to be different because the public is not protected and does not trust these public announcements; does not trust them because it has no adequate remedy or the punishment of wrong. That is very largely due to this competition between the States in laxity of corporation laws.

"It is a matter of fact that there's hardly a section of the corporation law of New Jersey, and some other States which copied New Jersey, that has not been dictated and rewritten by some particular corporate interests.

"I have in mind in the New Jersey law a variety of things that have been written into it at the behest of several corporations for particular purposes.

"I remember that when the Amalgamated Copper Company was exploited by Lawson and the enormous profit in the promotion of that enterprise was disclosed, rendering the Directors liable for thirty or forty millions of dollars, action was stopped by a change in the law that practically took away from the stockholders any protection before they knew they had it.

Law Changed for Steel Trust.

"Later on when the Steel Corporation wanted to convert its preferred stock into a debt of the company—a thing that should never be permitted, making it a part of the capital debt—when they wanted to convert $250,000,000 of that stock into 5 per cent. bonds, the law was changed in order to accommodate them in that respect. When it became a question whether this inflation of capital did not subject the Directors to personal liability the New Jersey statute was changed in order to make it practically a liability upon stockholders for unpaid capital.

"And so," exclaimed Mr. Untermyer, "we might go down the list of sections of this New Jersey law. It is a sample of the laws of all the States that have been bidding for these corporations. They have had to follow the one that was most liberal in inviting the patronage of the corporations. So long as that goes on and you have no protection for the investor you cannot have a direct assimilation of the securities from the vendor to the public.

"We have had to adopt a different method, and it is our method that has built up these great financial groups that constitute the money power, a power, I believe, which has been concentrated more in the past ten years than in the preceding fifty, and that is concentrating with a rapidity that's simply appalling.

"Their system in this country is this: They are given an issue of bonds of a certain company. The company wants to make an issue and sell the bonds. A great banking house takes the issue of bonds, and often before or about the time it obligates itself to buy these bonds it underwrites them. Underwriting is a farming out of its obligations. Frequently it farms out the whole issue. If there are $50,000,000, for example, it sublets for a commission, to bankers—banking institutions in New York and elsewhere—the underwriting of the bonds.

"These people agree, for a given commission, that if the banking house does not itself dispose of bonds they will take them. They get a commission for making the guarantee. The distribution of this patronage among smaller institutions and banking houses has been a factor in building up a few great bank issuing houses. The issuing house has the ability and strength to take the bonds. The banking house, as a rule, sells the bonds almost before it underwrites them, and these obligations have been largely profitable for the smaller institutions and a prolific source of income.

"It ties the smaller institutions to the great issuing houses, makes them subservient to the will of the issuing houses, and makes it dangerous for them to go into any ventures that don't meet the approval of the issuing houses, and, as a practical result, they do not.

At Mercy of Financiers.

"In the City of New York to-day it would be a brave man who would dare go into any big financial enterprise that did not meet the approval of some of these groups of men. That situation is getting more acute daily."

Here Mr. Untermyer, who had been interrupted in his recital, displayed a circular letter which had been handed him just as he boarded the train for Washington yesterday. It was from J. A. Moore, President of the Western Steel Corporation, which tried to finance a plant for the Puget Sound region under date of last January to stockholders explaining why it had failed. The stockholders had authorized a bond issue of $20,000,000. Mr. Moore had negotiated with one of the trust companies of New York which did not finance the venture because it would be "considered an unfriendly act by certain interests in New York."

Unable to sell the bonds in New York, Pittsburgh, or Boston, France was visited, and when Mr. Moore returned to New York with assurances of France's financial support, he was told he could get the money in New York. Feeling that this offer came in good faith he declined to allow the French financiers sixty days to examine the property. But that was fatal, his loan of $600,000 from New York bankers was called, his collateral of $2,000,000 was sold, the trust company applied for receivers, and was forced into bankruptcy.

"I don't vouch for the accuracy of these statements," said Mr. Untermyer. "But it is nothing unusual. I am only surprised that the hand of the corporation did not reach out into France to block the deal.

Banks the Real Power.

"I say the protecting wing of these banking houses is the thing Congress has got to consider. It is vitally important in connection with the railroad question. If we are going to force the railroads into a single system this question will not be so serious. It all depends upon which side of the economic question Congress will align itself. As a decent citizen with fair public spirit I feel we should know where we are drifting. See how these things interlock. Two or three of these New York banking houses have taken under their wing a railroad system or industrial giant; they regulate, by that means, this vast sum of money under their control.

"The banks and trust companies are not controlled by the men who sit at the head of their tables, as Presidents, but by men who give them patronage. The daily balance of the Steel Trust alone is $75,000,000. On the amount of deposits depends the power to loan. The system has power not only to build up banks and trust companies into great deposit houses, but also the power to direct how that money shall be loaned, and that necessarily involves the power to say how it shall not be loaned. That's the way the big balances of the banks of New York have been built up in the past five years. It isn't an easy thing to dislodge.

"It's a vicious system. They dominate the Stock Exchange and dominate the Clearing House institutions. There is no law to regulate them. They are considered private clubs in the eye of the law. Membership in the Stock Exchange is limited. Nobody can go into the brokerage business unless they admit him. He can only be a curb broker. While it is a criminal offense to have agreement in prices in other businesses if he would not do it on the Stock Exchange a man would be thrown out. It has the power to put stocks on and off the list. If stocks are put on the list they become collateral in banks. Amalgamated Copper was on the list with a star. The star meant the Stock Exchange agreed to deal in that stock without examination of the books. It was conducted as a blind pool for inside gamblers. The Stock Exchange lent itself to that transaction. They have corrected that practice now. In its methods and morals of finance it has made many improvements in response to enlightened public sentiment."

Criticises the Clearing House.

Dealing with the Clearing House Mr. Untermyer declared:

"It is made up of tools and dummies of great financial powers," he said, but he he did not want to be understood as saying these were not representative men.

"The Clearing House," he continued, "ought to be under the Controller of the Currency as to the clearance of National banks and under the State authorities so far as clearing the State banks. It has closed banks over night. Closing a bank is one of the easiest ways I know to produce a panic. This money power has the power to bring on panics.

"I do not say that it did, but it can. If they want to make this investigation start a panic I suppose they can do so, but that's their affair. If every time Congress wants a basis for constructive legislation they can start a panic, Congress might as well adjourn before it meets. I know this investigation won't disclose what you would call a money trust. But it will give us valuable information for constructive legislation."

In a summary of certain conditions in the financial world, "which may be susceptible of proof," Mr. Untermyer said that "we are not in danger of the wealth of any one man, but of the billions held in fiduciary capacity," and that "this control is constantly widening and becoming more direct and pronounced, and the groups are constantly getting closer together and working in harmony, and are thus able to assist friends and punish enemies in the financial world."

"The banks and trust companies thus dominated," he said, "are used to supply these men and their associates with funds for the extension of enterprises they now control and for the new enterprises that are being gathered under their wing. Some of these enterprises are highly speculative in character and not such as financial institutions should be permitted to espouse."

By agreement members of the committee did not question Mr. Untermyer until he had finished his statement. Representative Lenroot asked whether the testimony relative to the control over railways was based on particular instances.

"It would include all systems except two," replied Mr. Untermyer.

Representative Hardwick asked whether the investigation would discover the instances. The answer was affirmative.

Representative Hardwick wanted to know how many groups were in this "banking power."

"Not more than four," replied Mr. Untermyer.

Asked as to his remedies, Mr. Untermyer suggested "that great corporations should not sell bonds except by competitive bidding."

When asked how he would regulate the New York Stock Exchange Mr. Untermyer said:

"It's an association with a special law of its own. It's power is so great you can't get legislation. I think it is a National agency."

He added that if the selling of a lottery ticket in Louisiana was declared by the Supreme Court to be Inter-State trade, even if that decision was based on grounds of morality, the Stock Exchange might be Nationally controlled the same way.

CRAM WANTS CITY TO RUN SUBWAYS

Conferences Are Laughable, He Says, and Operating Companies Seek Delay and Confusion.

MAKING TOO MUCH MONEY

The Mayor Also Proposed City Operation on a Small Scale—No Bid Yet from Interborough.

Commissioner J. Sergeant Cram injected a new question yesterday into the Subway discussion by bringing before the Public Service Commission the idea of city operation as well as construction of the new lines. A motion was passed without opposition, directing the counsel of the commission to give an opinion as to the necessity of further legislation in case of municipal operation. The suggestion of Mr. Cram was considered significant, coming as it did within a few days of Mayor Gaynor's suggestion that in case the new Broadway-Seventh Avenue line was found without an operator, the city should run it itself in connection with the Staten Island Municipal Ferry. It showed, it was pointed out, that the city is not absolutely helpless in the hands of the transportation companies.

When Mr. Cram asked if there were any legal obstacles to municipal operation, Chairman Willcox said that he was not aware of any, but that the matter had better be referred to the counsel of the commission.

"To my mind," said Commissioner Cram, "the ultimate solution of the transit problem will be municipal operation. The transit corporations are simply seeking delay and they are making too much money. If we are incapable of operating subways, we are unfit to hold office."

The Commissioner was apparently referring to Section 30 of the Rapid Transit law, which imposes on the commission, if the Board of Estimate considers it inexpedient, to grant a long term contract for operation to a corporation, the duty of either maintaining and operating the subway, or of leasing out the operation for not more than five years to a corporation.

Scores the Interborough.

"All these secret conferences on the Subway situation," continued Mr. Cram, "are illegal and none of them is binding. I'm satisfied these corporations are seeking nothing but delay and confusion. They are making twice as much money as they ever expected to, and are anxious to continue. There is no reason why public officers should not be as competent as private corporations. If the city bears all the burden, why shouldn't it run the Subways and reap the profits. Transit lines are municipally operated in the cities of Europe and Great Britain and Ireland and I know they are making a profit."

After the meeting Commissioner Cram declared that he had consulted his counsel and knew there was nothing in the law to forbid municipal operation. The Bridge Loop is practically finished and so will be the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, line in a few months, and he could see no reason why the city should not operate them itself without regard to the B. R. T. and its guarantees. In the same way the city could manage the Lexington Avenue and Broadway lines for itself.

One reason the Commissioner assigned for the delay by the Interborough was the present condition of the market. It was afraid, he maintained, that it is not now a propitious time to float bonds.

"What does the Interborough care for the people of the city from the highest to the lowest?" asked Commissioner Cram. "All they want is their nickels. Frank Hedley admitted to me in the last two weeks that the condition on both Subway and elevated roads is outrageous, indecent, and unmoral.

Significance in "Extensions."

"As for these little conferences, they are laughable. These little officials get together somewhere to meet the employes of Berwind, Hawley, and Morgan, and think they are actually settling the question. They may think they are, but everyone else knows they are not."

Col. Timothy S. Williams, President of the B. R. T., was with Borough President McAneny for some time yesterday afternoon, and talked over with him a number of matters concerning the situation. One thing that came up was the attitude of the city officials toward the suggestion that if any new lines are given to the Interborough they should be considered as "extensions" of the present Subway. This matter is important, as it is provided that when a rapid transit route is extended the contract for operation of the extension may be let without public bidding. The Interborough takes the position that there can be no question that the Lexington Avenue and the Seventh Avenue routes are merely extensions of its old line, and consequently it need not face any competitors in submitting terms to the city. The B. R. T., on the other hand, thinks that as the lines that, it is presumed, will be assigned to it will be advertised, so ought also the lines likely to fall to the Interborough.

This question is one of the details which have not yet been settled in the negotiations, and on which it is admitted the entire offer of the attempt to get the Interborough in again may fail. Even the city officials seem divided on it.

The B. R. T. is insistent that the tunnel it builds from the Battery under the East River shall end somewhere near Montague Street, in the heart of the shopping and business district. It has been proposed by some of the city officials that the tunnel should run to Atlantic Avenue. This the B. R. T. declares would ruin its plans, as it would prevent the working of the tunnel into a system of lines convenient for operation, and would deprive Brooklyn of direct connection from the business section with the Broadway line. So great is the importance that the B. R. T. puts on this point that it might hesitate to go on with its bargain with the city if it could not build its tunnel as it wishes.

With Controller Prendergast in Lakewood till to-morrow night, H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co. off in his yacht, and President McAneny about to go to Philadelphia to make an address, no further meetings between the city representatives and the intermediaries can take place before Monday. The Interborough is still standing aloof from the direct negotiations and is waiting for intermediaries to lay before it some plan which it can be urged to accept as a business proposition.

Even then, said one of the principal Interborough officials yesterday, the company will not consider it unless it receives the assurance that the Board of Estimate will accept it. The company takes the position that it has already made so many offers to the city and had them turned down that it will never again start negotiations without the practical certainty that the result will be satisfactory.

This attitude makes the situation much more difficult, especially as neither the Mayor nor President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, each of whom has three votes, has been taking part in the recent conferences. The Mayor has been kept fairly posted as to how things are going, but it was stated yesterday by Edward F. Boyle, Chief Examiner in Mr. Mitchel's office, that he is still too ill to discuss business matters, and that there is nothing in the present subway situation that can be taken as reflecting his views. In the Summer he was always opposed to the 9 per cent. preferential payment, and it is not thought at all certain that he will now be mollified by having it shaved down to 8.76.

Mr. Mitchel in the last day or two has suffered a relapse in his attack of typhoid, but the doctors at St. Luke's Hospital say he is getting over this nicely.

MAYOR FOR STEINWAY TUNNEL.

Won't Approve Routes to Enable Real Estate Speculators to Advertise.

Mayor Gaynor wrote yesterday to George V. Pople of Flushing, L. I., explaining his reasons for preferring the Steinway tunnel as the subway route which is most likely to aid the people of Queens. Here is his letter:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor,
Jan. 26, 1912.

Dear Mr. Pople: I was very glad to hear from you with regard to the sentiment of the thinking people of Queens Borough with regard to subways. You all know perfectly well that the Mayor will approve of any route in your borough that is to be built or is likely to be built or begun within any time in the future that we can reasonably foresee. But I shall not approve routes simply to enable real estate speculators to advertise them by maps and otherwise in order to deceive people into buying lots in the belief that a subway or railway is about to be built thereon. There has been enough of that done already.

We have even built subways which have been lying idle for several years. I suppose very few people know that the Brooklyn Subway has two additional tracks from the Borough Hall through Fulton Street and Flatbush Avenue which were laid five years ago at large expense to the city, and have been lying idle ever since. They were put down to be used by the west side route from Forty-second Street downtown in Manhattan, which is laid out to run under the river and over into Brooklyn.

Some of Them Worthless Now.

And every one knows that the so-called loop over in Manhattan was built several years ago at a cost of about ten millions of dollars, and has lain idle ever since, the taxpayers meanwhile paying the interest on the money invested in it. And, what is worse, according to new rapid transit plans, it may not have any use at all in the future. It is out of joint with everything.

I need not enumerate the number of routes that have been laid out and exploited for the sale of lots, and which are never to be used. May I say to you that what I have been bending my back to do for Queens ever since I have been here as Mayor is to get the Belmont tunnel opened, and the two great routes from its mouth through your borough built, namely, the routes to Woodside and Corona. There is no use in laying out routes which there is no immediate prospect of building, if, indeed, they are ever to be built.

A committee of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and of the Public Service Commission have now been one year and one month negotiating with the Interborough Company about the building of its extensions which run into all of the boroughs, including the Belmont tunnel and the Queens Borough routes which I have already mentioned. No result has been reached. Meanwhile I, like every one else, have to be as patient as I can. But when I think of the facts I cannot be too patient.

Cites Again the Old Offer.

The facts are these: In December, 1910, the Interborough Company offered to put up one-half of the money to build the extensions of its system, the city to put up the other half. This was extremely welcome, because the city lacked sufficient borrowing margin to build subways except by degrees. The company offered to have them all done within five years, and also to share the profits equally with the city. It exacted no guarantee, subsidy, or preference whatever. It did not even ask for an understanding that no other or rival subway should be built. You know how that offer has been frittered away and lost. We now begin to see that it will never come back. The committees I have mentioned have been trying to agree upon some terms with the company, but the best the company would do last July was to renew its offer, but only on the basis that it should be allowed a preferential guarantee or subsidy of 9 per cent. on the capital it already has invested, and also on the capital which it should in future put in, namely, $77,000,000, before the city should receive even the interest on its bonds to be sold to raise its one-half of the construction money.

Regrets It Was Frittered Away.

This was voted down in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, although the said committees reported in favor of it. The negotiation has continued ever since, and it is now said that the company will reduce the said demand of 9 per cent. to 8¾ per cent., and, it may be, make concessions in some other directions. If this report comes in from the committees we shall then have to face that situation and do what the intelligent people of the city think we ought to do. The thing that will always be regretted is that the said offer of the Interborough in December, 1910, was frittered away and rejected. To have to give the company better terms now would be a very unpleasant thing; and yet that is the situation we have to face. Sincerely yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

This explains the delay of the Mayor in acting on the Fifty-ninth Street route, which has been laid out by the Public Service Commission and approved by the Board of Estimate, but on which his Honor has taken no action for two months.

ANOTHER BUTTER SUBPOENA.

Mercantile Exchange Superintendent Must Appear Before Grand Jury.

District Attorney Whitman issued yesterday a subpoena to compel F. C. Henry, Superintendent of the Mercantile Exchange of New York, to appear with the other officers already summoned before the Grand Jury on Jan. 29 to testify in the investigation of the charge that the price of butter in this city is illegally fixed. The others subpoenaed are E. E. Martin, President; S. M. Knopp, Secretary, and W. G. French, Secretary of the Exchange, together with Patrick Quinn Foy and L. Frank Barry.

Assistant District Attorney William A. De Ford, who will conduct the investigation, said yesterday that he could not furnish the names of other men who are to be summoned. He explained that it will be necessary to examine the Exchange's books before he could tell whom he wanted. A subpoena was, however, made out yesterday for a member of the Butter and Egg Committee of the Exchange.

There are no charges against those subpoenaed, it was said, the purpose of the Grand Jury hearing being to ascertain whether there is anything to charge.

The feeling among men in the butter trade is that the Grand Jury will be wasting its time "looking for a combination which does not exist." They declare that the prices are controlled entirely by the law of supply and demand. Every day the prices of butter and eggs are posted on the bulletin of the Mercantile Exchange. Up to a few years ago these posted rates were labeled "official," but a suit for an injunction against the use of the word "official" was brought and won by certain independent interests, so that the term had to be abandoned.

CANADA SEEKS MORE TRADE.

She Will Confer with Representatives of the West Indies and Australia.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 26.—George E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, announced in the House of Commons today that representatives of most of the British West Indies would arrive in Ottawa on March 27 to confer with the Canadian Government on closer trade relations between the Dominion and the islands.

Mr. Foster also announced that he had made a written proposal to the Minister of Customs and Trade of Australia, which he hoped would result in a conference between members of the two Governments or special Commissioners appointed by them.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the course of a brief debate on the subject, said that all the efforts of his Government in fifteen years had failed to bring about improved trade relations with these parts of the British Empire. He added that with a small preference over the United States Canada would in a few years increase her trade with Australia from $1,000,000 or less to about $10,000,000. He promised that no opposition would be offered to a good trade treaty.

Bankrupt Jeweler Arrested.

Samuel Elroff, a jeweler of 71 Nassau Street, was arrested yesterday on a writ of ne exeat issued by Judge Holt. He is a bankrupt, and Horace M. Peck, the receiver, reported to the court that he had removed and concealed the greater part of his stock and was preparing to leave the jurisdiction of the court. Marshal Henkel arrested Elroff at his home, 1,767 Fulton Avenue, the Bronx, and he was placed under a $10,000 bond for examination in bankruptcy proceedings.

May Settle Harriman Line Strike.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Jan. 26.—Presidents, operating, and traffic officials of all the Harriman lines closed a two-days conference here last night. While a reorganization of the operating departments was given as the principal object of the conference, it was said that the strike of shopmen, which has been in force on the system three months, was taken up, and that there was a probability of a settlement in the near future.

TARBELL PREFERS THE OLD OIL TRUST

Pure Oil Man Tells Inter-State Commission Standard Oil Dissolution Was a Mistake.

HIS COMPANY INDEPENDENT

Combination Cheapens Production, He Declares, and He Solves Some Trust Problems Offhand.

W. W. Tarbell, Treasurer of the Pure Oil Company, the Standard Oil's largest competitor, and brother of Ida M. Tarbell, whose history of Standard Oil and character sketch of John D. Rockefeller did much to arouse public criticism of the old Oil Trust, astonished the lawyers assembled in the Custom House yesterday at the Inter-State Commerce Commission's investigation of the pipe lines by declaring that the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company was a mistake.

Early in the session he had complained bitterly of the loss his business had suffered through the circulation of false reports during the dissolution suit, that the Standard Oil interests owned stock in his company. He had been asked by Attorney Gutheim for the commission:

"Do the so called Standad Oil interests, own any stock in your refineries?"

"No, Sir, and I want that emphasized. It was misquoted in the dissolution case that the Standard Oil owned, two-thirds, or a half, or a third, of the Pure Oil Company, and it practically ruined our business here in New York."

He admitted under questioning by Commissioner Lane that the misquotation had not been in the official reports, but in the press. He explained that the damage to his business had occurred in "a certain class of trade built up on the fact that we are an independent concern."

It was while he was being questioned as to the present status of the oil business that Mr. Tarbell expressed himself on the application of the Sherman law to the Standard Oil Company, and his views so interested Commissioner Lane that he digressed from the oil industry for a brief excursion into the independent oil man's ideas about the trust problem in other industries.

Mr. Tarbell said he believed in consolidation properly handled.

"Irrespective of the Sherman Act," he said, "I believe that the salvation of the small refineries is consolidation. I think that the Sherman Act as applied to the Standard Oil Company was a big mistake and that if the Standard Oil could be placed back in the position it was in before the dissolution, I think you would see a general improvement in the oil industry all over the country.

"The demands on a refinery are such that it takes a big capital to run it. Take, for instance, the Pure Oil Company. With its millions of investment it will fight harder for its supply than a $100,000 refinery. If the Standard Oil Company had remained as one company it could have been watched."

"Well, do you think your opinion could be applied to the Steel Trust?" asked Commissioner Lane.

"If the Government would put forth the appeal to dissolve the Steel Corporation into combining small companies it would create a competition, which would result in fairness to all interests concerned. It would also be in a position to regulate the competitors."

"Well how about the coal industry?" prompted the Commissioner when Mr. Tarbell stopped.

"The same thing applies. You have to have competition before you can get at a basis for regulation. The only big corporations which the Government can regulate at the present time with any success are the railroads, because you have competition or a comparison on which regulation can be based.

For instance, you go into our refinery and see, perhaps, 5,000 barrels of oil going through a day and then you take out a cost sheet and go to one of the Standard Oil refineries and see it refine 50,000 barrels for about the same cost as our 5,000."

"Well, then, you think that combination cheapens production?" asked Commissioner Lane.

"You are right there, and as soon as the Government fixes it so as the people can get the benefit of that fact, it will have solved the troubles from trusts."

"Well, suppose that monopoly was permitted, how would the Government know that competition was going on?" asked the Commissioner.

"How do you know that the New York Central and the Pennsylvania Railroads are competing?" is the way Mr. Tarbell answered.

"We don't know that they are competing," returned the Commissioner.

"Well, you have been able to learn enough about them to have an idea of the lowest rates that they should be paid," returned the witness.

The object of the present hearings is to determine to what degree pipe lines should be controlled by the Inter-State Commerce Commission as common carriers, and most of the testimony yesterday was along lines calculated to show the relations of the pipe lines to the producers.

Commissioner Lane announced that he could frame one or two questions in the light of testimony already given which would raise the point of law as to whether or not the pipe lines in New Jersey and Maryland and probably those in Oklahoma and Louisiana are common carriers, but first "an opportunity must be given," he said, "for arguments on these questions of law, and when it is decided what lines are common carriers, then we can commence the work for which the inquiry was instituted—the creation of a reasonable transportation rate and rules for the operation of pipe lines."

ENTERTAIN MILK COMMISSION

Committee on Women's Organizations Give a Reception.

A reception was held last night at the Hotel Astor by the Committee on Women's Organizations of the New York Milk Committee to the Commission on National Milk Standards, appointed last year to study the milk situation throughout the country and report uniform standards of milk for the health officers in the various cities. The commission will make its report at noon to-day at its final meeting at the Academy of Medicine.

The commission, which consists of twenty men chosen from the departments of bacteriology, chemistry, and biology of various universities, State and city officials throughout the country, large dairymen and milk dealers, spent Thursday at Cortland, N. Y., studying the model dairy of the New York Dairy Demonstration Company, and conferring with the farmers concerning sanitary methods employed in their stables and dairies since the agitation for pure milk began. The commission's report will be printed and published by the United States Government Health Service as an official bulletin on milk.

Mrs. A. M. Palmer, Chairman of the Committee on Women's Organizations, presided at the meeting last night. Stephen G. Williams, Chairman of the New York Milk Committee, told of the appointment of the commission; Dr. W. A. Evans, former Commissioner of Health of Chicago, described its work and scope; Prof. M. J. Rosenau of the Harvard Medical School spoke on "Bacteria in Milk"; Prof. W. H. Conn of the Department of Biology of Wesleyan University spoke on "The Relation of Milk Consumers to the Milk Problem," and Dr. William H. Park, Director of the Research Laboratory, on "The Relation of Milk to Health." The general trend of the speeches was a demand for clean milk of the best grade for all, adults and children alike, and the need of pasteurization as a safeguard for all milk supplied to children.

New Boat for Bermuda Run.

The Royal Mail steam packet Tagus sailed for Bermuda at 10 o'clock last night instead of 10 o'clock this morning, her usual sailing hour, and will leave Bermuda Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in order to insure being here early on Thursday morning, as she is to sail for Southampton via the West Indies on Saturday, Feb. 3. Her place on the Bermuda run will be taken by the cruising yacht Arcadian, which arrives on Wednesday from Southampton, via the West Indies, and has Gen. Sir Robert Baden Powell and Robert Lindsay Forbes, General Manager of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, among her passengers.

GOES WITH GUN FOR LOAN.

When Refused, Italian Shoots at President of Realty Company.

An Italian whose name the police say they have, and whose arrest is expected soon, went to the office of the Knepper Realty Company, on the fifth floor of the Bennett Building at 99 Nassau Street yesterday afternoon, and when Herman Knepper, the President of the company, ignored his demand for $3,000, began shooting. Fortunately for those in the office, he was about the poorest shot the police have had to trail in a long time, and although he fired three times he managed to hit only the ceiling and a glass partition that is in the office.

The Italian, who owns some real estate in Harlem, but lives on the lower east side, recently obtained a loan of $3,000 on his property, and yesterday he went to the office to get a second loan. He was received by Mr. Knepper in his private office. Mr. Knepper told him that it was impossible to advance any more money on the property.

Thereupon the Italian jumped up, and, drawing a revolver, pointed it at Mr. Knepper and repeated his demand. Despite the fact that he was looking into the barrel of a loaded pistol, Mr. Knepper shook his head, and as the Italian fired ducked. The bullet whizzed over his head, going through the glass partition and landing in the wall of the outside vestibule.

As the Italian was between him and the door, Mr. Knepper ran to a window overlooking a court in the centre of the building, climbed out on the ledge, and by means of a large drain pipe let himself down to the fourth floor, where he climbed through the window of another office.

While Mr. Knepper was making his escape the Italian fired two more shots, both of them as wild as the first. One of the shots went through the glass inclosure over the cashier's desk. Miss Sarah Cohen, the cashier, was in the room at the time, and heavy glass splinters fell all about her, one piece striking her on the chin and making a bad gash.

A man in an office across the court from Mr. Knepper's office saw the latter as he climbed down the pipe. A moment later he heard two shots, and realizing that something was wrong hurried downstairs and into the street, where he found Policeman Hammershak of the Oak Street Station. Hammershak lost no time in getting to the Knepper office, but the shooting Italian had gone.

Dr. Nelson of the Astor House was called in and dressed the cut on Miss Cohen's chin. He also patched up a few cuts that Mr. Knepper received from falling glass while he was making his escape.

Capt. O'Toole of the Oak Street Station took personal charge of the case. Mr. Knepper told him the name of the man who had fired the shots.

NO RIGHT TO DRAW CHECKS.

Appellate Division Decides Parks Was No Longer Treasurer of Paper Pool.

A suit brought by John H. Parks, organizer of the "Barks' paper board pool" to recover $115,000 deposited with the Second National Bank for the Paper Board Association was dismissed yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Parks contended this money was his property and that after the Government started its prosecution of the paper board pool he drew checks on the deposits in favor of his attorney, Herbert L. Goldsmith.

According to the bank's defense, this was part of the money of a general deposit account of the Paper Board Association opened in 1907, and Parks, as Treasurer of the association, was authorized to draw checks upon the account and to make deposits. The bank subsequently was notified by the association that Parks was no longer Treasurer and that the deposits would be subject only to checks drawn by the Finance Committee of the association. This notice was sent after Parks went to Europe following the starting of the Government inquiry. He returned and testified against the members of the association, resulting in fines, but immunity was granted to Parks.

The court decides the money belongs to the association and that Parks had no right to draw checks on the account after he had been removed as Treasurer.

PHILIPPINE RICE CROP FAILS.

Assembly to be Appealed To in Effort to Avert Famine.

MANILA, Jan. 26.—The report of the joint legislative committee shows that half the rice crop in the Philippines has been a failure. Recommendations intended to avert a serious crisis are to be presented both to the Assembly and to the commission, whose sessions close on Feb. 5.

Army manoeuvres are to begin in the Department of Luzon on Feb. 12. The plans drawn up for the operations divide the vailable troops into two forces consisting of 2,500 men each. One of these armies will have its base at Stetsenburg Camp, Panpanga, to the north of Manila, and will probably carry out an attack on the City of Manila, in which the other army will have its base and will act on the defensive.

Sues Fire Surgeon for $10,000.

A suit against Dr. Harry M. Archer, a Fire Department surgeon, for $10,000 damages, was started yesterday by Mortimer W. Solomon, as attorney for Aristides Carnelles. According to the complaint, Dr. Archer was driving his automobile rapidly along Eighth Avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Streets, on Jan. 1, when he ran into Carnelles and his pushcart. Carnelles and the pushcart were both tossed in the air and came down badly damaged. Mr. Solomon said yesterday that his client was still in the hospital. No answer to the suit was filed yesterday.

HAITIAN TRADE IN PERIL.

Exclusion of Syrians Will Give Business to Europe, Merchants Say.

The Syrian-American Club, which recently took up with the State Department at Washington the case of Syrian merchants in Haiti, who are being prohibited from doing business by the new Haitian Government, received a letter yesterday from Secretary of State Knox which it believes raises the same issue of equal rights of American citizenship that resulted in the abrogation of the treaty with Russia.

Many of the Syrians in Haiti are American citizens, and they practically control the merchandise trade there. Whether American citizens or not, they buy most of their goods in this country. The annual American exports to Haiti have grown in a few years from a few hundred thousand dollars to nearly $5,000,000, almost entirely as a result of the connections of the merchants in the Caribbean republic with this country. The Syrian merchants here say that the enforcement of the exclusion law by Haiti will turn most of this trade over to European traders. In his letter Secretary Knox takes the same attitude toward the rights of American citizens of Syrian birth or descent in Haiti as was originally held by the State Department in the Russian passport question. The letter in part says:

> After giving this question its most serious consideration, in view of the applicable principles of international law, and in view especially of our own regulations in regard to Oriental immigration, persons of the prohibited race being excluded from our territory irrespective of their adopted allegiance at the time they seek admission, the department has instructed the American Minister at Port au Prince that it did not consider it advisable for this Government to enforce such a law as the one in question. However, he was further instructed that if, upon investigation, he was convinced that the time allowed the Syrian firms of American nationality to liquidate their business is insufficient and that it would be impossible for them to effect liquidation within the time allowed without a great money loss to these firms and their American creditors, he might, as a matter of right, require that an adequate and reasonable time be allowed. He was also informed that he might ask for a similar privilege for the Syrian firms of other nationalities who are agents of or debtors of American exporting firms.

Khalil Khayat, who has been conducting the correspondence with the State Department, said last night that he did not think the department appreciated the parallel between the exclusion of American citizens from the same rights as other races or nationalities in Haiti enjoy and the refusal by Russia of equal privileges to American citizens who were Jews. He will make an appeal to Congress, he said.

The Syrian-American Club will also ask the Chamber of Commerce to aid.

PACKERS LOSE MARGIN POINT

Documents Called "Red-Handed Things" Admitted as Evidence.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Thirty-five original margin sheets of the National Packing Company for shipments, made to Eastern cities between January and August, 1910, were read to the jury to-day in the packers' trial as important links in the prosecution's chain of evidence.

The defense sought to exclude them on the ground that they were immaterial.

"You call these original margin sheets vague and immaterial?" shouted Mr. Butler. "Why, they are the red-handed things in this case."

Judge Carpenter overruled the objections of the defense and allowed the sheets to be read.

Steiner G. Langher, margin clerk of the National Company, was cross-examined by John Barton Payne, who read entries from the corporation's books to show the differences in the prices obtained for lots of meat shipped from the same plant to different cities. Instances were cited where the difference was a cent a pound on the same meat, sold the same day, in cities hundreds of miles apart. The defense held that this shows that the price received is not determined by the margin.

Mr. Payne sought to show that the price was fixed solely by the law of supply and demand, and by the ability of the branch house managers.

The Government contends that the test cost and margin were the means used by the alleged combination to fix the price, and that the system was uniform, although the figures might differ on separate lots of cattle.

The cross-examination of Langher had not been concluded when court adjourned to-day.

FIVE HELD FOR STOCK FRAUD.

Thomas Murray Accused of Helping to Rob W. E. Shinks of $15,000.

There was another arrest yesterday in connection with the bogus stock swindle in which William E. Shinks of Springfield, Mass., lost $15,000. Donald Persch, Charles Mitchell, Henry Ingram, and William J. Pollock were arrested on Thursday, charged with larceny. Thomas Murray of 118 West Fifty-seventh Street was arrested yesterday and arraigned before Judge Malone on a bench warrant.

Murray was held in $10,000 bail. Pollock yesterday obtained a bond for $10,000 from a surety company, and was released. He was indicted yesterday and again brought before Judge Malone, who once more held him under $10,000 bail. Pollock again got his bond.

Murray is declared to be the "bank clerk" who was introduced to Mr. Shinks as authority for the statement that the bogus Chenal Copper stock was being bought by New York bankers. The "clerk" had said he had inside information from various great financial powers that the Chenal stock was in demand. Murray protested his innocence.

Bench warrants have been issued for two others. Detectives are looking for the men.

Persch was indicted two years ago in connection with the disappearance of stock from the Windsor Trust Company. He was acquitted after turning State's evidence against Charles Katz, who was convicted.

LOANS IN GERMANY RENEWED AT 31-2

Estimates Put Amount American Bankers Have Out There Since Jan. 1 at $125,000,000.

MONEY RATES LOWER HERE

Downward Tendency Likely to Continue Until Gold Begins to Flow Automatically to Europe.

A large part of the loans to clients in Germany made before the close of the year, and which are now becoming due are being renewed by our bankers on the basis of about 3½ per cent. for thirty to sixty day loans. Negotiations for the renewal were first undertaken on the basis of offers to extend them at 4 and in some cases at 3¾ per cent., but so comfortable has been the position of the Germany money market, since it overcame the stringency which led to heavy borrowing abroad, that Germany bankers were unwilling to pay these rates for renewals.

They have now obtained an extension of many of the loans on a 3½ per cent. basis, and even at this rate American money is being more profitably employed abroad than it can be here at home. For these short periods the best rate which can be obtained in New York is about 2½ per cent., while at 3½ per cent. merchants have been able to obtain money here on paper running as long as nine months. So great, indeed, is the difficulty which bankers here are meeting in profitably using the money at their disposal that many expect that the downward tendency in money rates will continue until the point has been reached at which gold will automatically flow from this country to Europe because of the growing redundancy here and the better demand which still prevails abroad.

Not all of the institutions and bankers which were lenders to Germany in December and earlier last year are leaving their money on the other side, but it is believed that for every loan which has been recalled a new one has been made in some other quarter. Foreign exchange circles were discussing yesterday the withdrawal from Germany by one of the large banks here of $2,500,000 which was loaned at the higher rates obtaining in Berlin in November and December, but this case is regarded as exceptional. Estimates of the amount of money which American bankers are still employing abroad vary greatly. The lowest amount suggested by the interested bankers themselves is $40,000,000, and some of the estimates run as high as $125,000,000. Such figures are necessarily more or less guesswork, however, for there is no definite exchange of information regarding such transactions.

The possibility that the New York market may take some share of the new Government loans abroad, including the Austrian loan, for which subscriptions will be received at the beginning of the coming week, was under discussion yesterday. Austria is borrowing $40,000,000 and Prussia and the German Empire together $125,000,000. The French National Treasury has also recently issued short time notes. All of these operations have been contributing factors to the foreign demand for money which has offered opportunities for investment abroad, which have attracted American bankers during a period of abnormal money market ease.

This situation does not directly bear on the relations between this market and those of Europe in respect to the payments which we have annually to make for interest on foreign capital invested in this country. The mere fact that we are lending largely abroad does not necessarily mean that the foreign capital invested in this country has decreased in recent years, although banking opinion differs on this point. We have undoubtedly repurchased from abroad a very large amount of our securities, but, on the other hand, many new foreign investments have been made here. Many of these have been undertaken in a quiet way which has escaped attntion, but in the aggregate, according to the views expressed by some bankers yesterday, they have fully replaced such amounts of our securities as have been brought back from Europe in the last few years.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Duty Lower on Mother-of-Pearl Rosaries—Other Tariff Decisions.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that rosaries in chief value of mother-of-pearl are entitled to enter this country at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures of pearl" rather than "beads of all kinds" as assessed by Collector Loeb. The Collector returned the rosaries under the act of 1897 at 60 per cent. Judge Sharretts holds that this was an error and reverses the Collector.

Judge Chamberlain took favorable action on protests made by Albert Lorsch & Co., regarding the classification of pieces of shell that have been cut in cameo designed for use in the manufacture of jewelry. The Collector exacted duty at the rate of 35 per cent. on the value under the Dingley act as "manufactures of shell." The importers alleged a rate of 10 per cent. under the provision for precious stones advanced in value but not set. This claim is sustained.

A. A. Vantine & Co., succeeded in having the duty cut on importations of so-called bone charms, which were assessed at 60 per cent. under the present Tariff act as "jewelry." It was the contention of the importers that the articles fall properly within the provision for "manufactures of bone." This claim is sustained and the Collector reversed.

The board affirmed the assessment of a 60 per cent. duty on gauge glasses imported by the Ashcroft Manufacturing Company, while the same duty imposed on strips of glass is reversed, and a rate of 45 per cent. given.

HAT TRADE MOVING UPTOWN.

Joins the March of Wholesale Business to Points Above 14th Street.

The wholesale hat business is beginning to respond to the uptown movement, as several other trades have done already. Says The American Hatter in its current issue:

"In recent years the wholesale district in New York has shifted steadily uptown, and whereas Fourteenth Street had been the northern limit, it has now become the southern border of the new section—and it would appear that Twenty-third Street will ultimately prove to be the southern boundary line for wholesale business.

"Until very recently the hat trade has been a striking exception to the general movement uptown of the various wholesale lines, and with the exception of two or three pioneers, the trade centre has been maintained in the section in which it had been situated for so many years.

"Now, however, with current removals of half a dozen or more New York salesrooms of prominent hat manufacturers to the Madison Square section of the city, a new trade centre is in embryo, with strong promise of rapid development, as a result of the attention which the present uptown movement has awakened."

436 Business Failures for the Week.

Bradstreet's reports 436 business failures in the United States during the week, against 361 for the previous week and 345, 295, 311, and 359 for the corresponding weeks of 1911 to 1908. The Middle States had 139, New England 39, Southern 106, Western 89, Northwestern 24, and Far Western 39. Canada had 37, against 40 for the preceding week. About 89 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 8 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

NO FEAR OF ICE FAMINE.

Remarkable Growth in Number and Business of Artificial Ice Factories.

A kind of National insurance against a failure of the National ice crop is afforded by the steady growth of artificial ice factories. The Cold Storage and Ice Trade Journal says that in the United States there were 1,320 manufacturing establishments in 1904, and 2,004 in 1909, an increase of 52 per cent.

The capital invested as reported in 1909 was $118,642,000, a gain of $52,050,000, or 78 per cent., over $66,592,000 in 1904. The average capital per establishment was approximately $59,000 in 1909 and $50,000 in 1904.

The value of products was $42,953,000 in 1909, as compared with $23,790,000 in 1904, an increase of $19,163,000, or 81 per cent. The average per establishment was approximately $21,000 in 1909 and $18,000 in 1904. The number of tons of ice produced was 12,647,949 in 1909, as compared with 7,199,448 in 1904, an increase of 5,448,501 tons, or 76 per cent.

The Baker's Weekly reports that there are 2,004 ice making factories in this country. The number of factories increased 684 in five years, or 52 per cent.

GUARANTEE WITH YOUR CIGAR

Suggestion That Makers of Havanas Combine on a Stamp of Merit.

Many a smoker hesitates to buy what is offered as a clear Havana cigar, because he doubts its genuineness. The Tobacco World, in its current issue, contains a suggestion for bettering this state of affairs. It says:

"If at least twenty of the old-time Tampa houses would join forces for the purpose of creating a publicity fund and levy a pro rata tax on each thousand cigars manufactured by members of this combine, said fund to be used in a National advertising campaign, they would in this way be in a position to expend several hundred thousand dollars each year to place permanently before the public eye a guarantee stamp, which would be found on the products turned out by members of the combination. This would entail a pledge on the part of those who joined the combination to produce nothing but clear Havana cigars, and they would submit themselves to a thorough investigation on the part of a designated committee, which would then be in a position to absolutely guarantee the products for which they were responsible, and which they would permit to bear the stamp. The value and effect of such a move on the part of the Tampa manufacturers cannot be over-estimated."

Metal Workers Object to Regulating Law Which Favors Use of Asbestos.

The sheet metal trade in this city is keenly interested in a hearing which is scheduled to be given by the Board of Aldermen to-day upon the so-called Foss resolutions, embodying changes in the laws regulating moving-picture shows. Chapter 756 of the Laws of 1911 was considered something of a hardship by the metal workers when it was passed, but it is now proposed to make the burden heavier than ever. That chapter prohibited the use of any moving-picture apparatus unless set up in a booth constructed of iron framework covered or lined with asbestos board or "with some equally strong and fireproof material." The Foss resolutions would add these words: "Provided, however, that no booth or inclosure constructed wholly of iron shall be permitted." These words, the sheet metal men declare, would bar them entirely from this lucrative branch of the business and throw it wholly into the hands of the asbestos board people.

An interesting sidelight is thrown, they declare, upon the proposed new law by the fact that asbestos-lined booths for moving-picture shows, which have until recently been selling at $125, have taken a sudden jump to $150.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,992. OILS, &C.—The Prussian State Railways invite tenders for the supply of 39,330 kilos of linseed oil, 175,000 kilos of linseed oil varnish, 144,500 kilos of turpentine, 43,400 kilos of siccative, 34,800 kilos of terebine, and 1,000 kilos of waterproof varnish.

7,993. LOCOMOTIVES.—The Roumanian State Railways are prepared to accept tenders for the supply of thirty-five six-cylinder Atlantic locomotives and forty large locomotives for heavy freight trains.

7,994. ENGINE SHOPS.—Tenders are invited for the installation of metal frame buildings for engine shops at Talcahuano, military port, Santiago, Chile. Conditions of contract, specifications, and other particulars may be obtained at the Chilean Legation, 48 Grosvenor Square, S. W., London, England.

7,995. QUAY.—The municipality of Nantes, France, is prepared to accept tenders for the construction of Ernest Renan Quay. A provisional deposit of $1,265 will be required. Application should be made by June 10, 1912, to M. Kauffmann, Ponts et Chaussees, Nantes, France.

7,996. STEAMER.—The Colony Nueva Germania invites tenders for the supply of a steamer of a draft not to exceed fifty centimeters, capacity of seven-tenths persons and 2,000 pieces of wood, and able to tow a thirty-ton barge against a four-kilometer-per-hour current at ten-twelfths-kilometers-per-hour speed.

7,997. HARBOR WORKS AND INSTALLATIONS.—The Servian Government will receive tenders for the formation of a new port on the River Danube near Pratowa, comprising quays, thirty-eight bridges, electrical installations, hydraulic and other cranes, wagons, pontoons, locomotives, docks, refrigerating chambers, &c.

7,998. AUTOMOBILE TRUCKS.—A foreign journal published an advertisement stating that the biscuit and chocolate factories of Beukelaer, Societe Anonyme, Antwerp, Belgium, need four open automobile trucks. The platforms should be the same height as the platforms of railway cars, and tenderers should send specifications.

7,999. THEATRE AND SKATING RINK EQUIPMENT.—An American Consul in a Mediterranean country reports that an American is going to open a vaudeville house in his district. Dealers in scenery, theatre chairs, and goods used in places of amusement should send catalogues and price lists direct to the Consulate submitting the report. He also plans to have a roller skating rink and a moving picture show attached to the theatre.

8,000. ADVERTISING NOVELTIES.—An American Consul officer in Canada reports that an advertising company in that country desires to communicate with American manufacturers of advertising novelties.

8,001. COTTON HARVESTING MACHINERY.—American manufacturers of cotton harvesters are invited to send literature pertaining to their machines to a foreign business man who has several thousand acres of land on which he proposes to grow cotton, provided he can secure suitable picking machinery. Labor in this region is scarce and modern machinery is required. The inquirer states that if a satisfactory machine can be found he will go to the United States to see it at work.

8,002. NEW ARSENAL FOR PORTUGAL.—A foreign dispatch states that the Minister of Marine, Lisbon, Portugal, will present to Parliament a plan for the construction of a new arsenal on the banks of the Tagus, opposite Lisbon. The arsenal will have dry docks able to berth the large dreadnoughts, and will be fitted with the latest improvements.

8,003. RIBBONS AND SHOES.—An American Consul in a Latin-American country reports that a large purchasing firm in his city desires samples and prices of ribbons. Owing to the size of this firm's business its purchases is large, and it desires to secure these ribbons from the United States if possible. The firm also wants catalogues and prices on shoes for wholesaling.

8,004. VESSELS AND EQUIPMENT FOR NAVY.—A report from an American Minister contains particulars regarding a proposition for the enlargement of the navy of a foreign Government and the acquisition of additional naval material. Among the items appearing in the proposal are the following: Three armored cruisers of 20,000 tons each, three of 500 tons each, twelve torpedo destroyers of 830 tons each, six submarines of 360 tons each, wireless telegraph stations, &c.

8,005. JEWELRY, SILVERWARE, AND CUTLERY.—A business firm in the Far East writes that a good trade can be built up in certain lines in that region, and the firm would be glad to hear from American manufacturers of all kinds of watches to retail at not over $10 each, watch chains, charms, fobs, rings, jewelry of cheap varieties, silverplated butter dishes, casters, cruets, trays, cheap quality forks, knives, spoons, &c.

BALTIMORE SPENDING MILLIONS FOR TRADE

Witness Says Differential Rate Led City to Make Costly Improvements.

END OF FREIGHT HEARING

New York Complainants Must File Briefs in March—No Decision Until August.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Baltimore commercial and railroad interests, testifying that the elimination of the differential would work incalculable harm to that port and concentrate export business in New York, closed the differential hearing to-day, which has been in progress before the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

April was fixed for argument, and it is said that the decision of the commission in this important freight dispute will be handed down about next August.

The progress made by Baltimore in building up its port since the fire was told by Oscar F. Lackey, President of the Baltimore Harbor Board. He said that depending upon the continuance of the inland freight differential, Baltimore had expended $7,000,000 in increasing the facilities of the harbor, since the fire, and within ten years the expenditure will reach $13,000,000. He cited this to show what had been accomplished since Baltimore was placed in a position where it could compete with New York and Boston.

A. E. Beck of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association dealt entirely with the justness of the present differential granted Baltimore by the railroads because of Baltimore's geographical position. Figures offered by him showed that Baltimore is 395 miles from Buffalo, Philadelphia, 416 miles; New York, 411 miles, and Boston, 481 miles.

The distances of the respective cities from Chicago are: Baltimore, 782 miles; Philadelphia, 817 miles; New York, 977 miles, and Boston, 1,006 miles.

Baltimore is also nearer St. Louis, the distance being 927 miles, as compared with 962 miles to Philadelphia; 1,052 miles to New York, and 1,221 miles to Boston.

Joseph W. Watkins, auditor of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, testified that the differential had not caused much change in the business of the ports of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. He showed this by these figures:

In 1905 the percentage of flour exports was: Baltimore, 2.5; Boston, 11.6; Philadelphia, 7.0; New York, 60.8.

In 1910 it was Baltimore, 2.5; Boston, 10.9; Philadelphia, 7.5; New York, 60.1.

The average exportations on flour from these ports for different periods was:

	1890-1900.	1900-10.
Baltimore	2.2	2.9
Boston	10.8	10.9
Philadelphia	8.1	7.3
New York	64.0	61.0

George D. Jackson and John M. Dennis, grain exporters, both declared that without the differential Baltimore could not survive as an export centre. The latter said that if the freight rate were made the same to all four cities there would be only one outlet, and that would be New York.

S. C. Wight, Freight Traffic Manager for the Baltimore & Ohio, defended the differential as now in existence. He said that his railroad lost money on the terminal allowance in New York. The railroads make a terminal allowance of 3 cents to the shipper. In 1909 the allowance allowed by his road amounted to $502,925, while the cost of the work performed by the railroad was $896,498, making a direct loss of $393,513. In 1910 the loss to the road from this source was $431,692, and last year it reached $464,630, he said.

The New York complainants were instructed to present briefs by March 5, and the defendants and interveners have until March 20.

Boston at the start was one of the complainants, but deserted New York, and Mr. Patterson asked Commissioner Clarke whether Boston and New York were on the same basis as to the time for filing briefs.

"I would not like to decide that point," retorted the Commissioner, smiling at the Boston lawyer.

CENTRAL TAKING WATERTOWN

Another Advance in Railroad's Plan of Taking Over Leased Lines.

Another advance in the New York Central's purpose of acquiring physical possession of the roads in its system was reported in Wall Street yesterday, although official confirmation was not obtainable. In the same manner as the Central has gone about acquiring the stocks of the Lake Shore, the New York & Harlem, and others of the larger roads still in the hands of the public, it was said that negotiations were about to be opened with the minority stockholders of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg, which the Central now operates under a lease at an annual rental of 5 per cent. on the stock. The road's capital is $10,000,000, and very little of the stock is in the hands of the general public. It is said that the price to be offered will be between 115 and 130.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Wheat Firm, Coarse Grains and Cotton React—Coffee Stronger.

Wheat was quiet, but firm, on better cables and very steady cash markets. Corn and oats were active and higher early, reacting on realizing and liberal receipts. Provisions were quiet and easier influenced by lower live hog prices. Cotton showed considerable strength early on short covering induced by relatively light Southern offerings and bullish foreign news, closing with small net losses, however, on the increase in the visible and pressure from important sources. Coffee was firm during the day, with offerings lighter, the supposition being that support for the time being would be rendered by valorization interests.

WHEAT.

Wheat showed steadiness, closing with very slight changes. Selling was small all the session with offering readily taken. Considerable confidence is being placed in the claims of small farm reserves due to the smaller crop and larger receipts this year. The Western receipts were a little less than last year, but have this week gained 800,000 bushels, compared with last week, and there was disposition to expect a more moderate decrease in the visible supply than seen last week. The weather conditions were generally seasonable. There has been a good deal of snow covering melted off during the week, and reports are somewhat conflicting as to the appearance of the crop. Exports for the week were 8,043,000 bushels from America. Argentine exports were small, only 160,000 bushels, Australian shipments, 1,584,000 bushels, and Indian, 824,000 bushels. The indications for the world's exports were for a total of about 8,000,000 bushels less than last year. The foreign markets were comparatively firm and generally closed at an advance for the day. There were further unfavorable Argentine reports on account of the delay in harvest, and the strike. An estimate of the export surplus was cabled at 102,000,000 to 112,000,000 bushels. The firmness abroad failed to bring any aggressive export demand, and no business was reported even in Manitoba wheat. Cash wheat was firm, with No. 2 red quoted at $1.03⅞ free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.21¼; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.12¼; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.15¾.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN—Corn was active and firm at the opening, but the advance brought rather liberal selling by commission houses, and under the pressure of speculative realizing and in part selling on account of the heavy receipts, the market sold off ⅛ to ⅜c, but closed steady at the decline. Western receipts were 330,000 bushels more than last week, and exceeded last year. In five days the interior total has increased 1,400,000 bushels, offset in part by an increase of 800,000 bushels in the interior shipments. Exports for the week were large, amounting to 1,741,000 bushels. Cash corn was firm, but no export business was reported. No. 3 was quoted at 73c, elevator, export; steamer, 72½c; No. 2 corn, 72½c, free on board.

OATS—Prices were firm at the opening with considerable overnight buying, but the advance brought a good deal of realizing, and prices reacted slightly, but at no time during the session was there any decided pressure on the contract market. Receipts have gained considerably this week, increasing 700,000 bushels in five days, but cash oats have continued firm. Standard and No. 3 white were quoted at 56¼c; No. 2 white, 56¾c.

PROVISIONS.

Trading was quiet with an easier tone due to a little recession in live hog prices at Western points. The day's receipts were not heavy, amounting to 118,000 head, but demand from packing interests was less aggressive.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The price level is well maintained. Prime crude offerings are reported extremely light and local futures have not advanced proportionately the last few days, with oil at the South so that the hedging basis is less attractive than for several weeks. Refiners sold the distant deliveries and seemed to be buying the near months, while the West was thought to be operating on both sides. Belated short covering in January advanced that month to 5.60, just after the official close. Most authorities report consuming inquiry fair, with demand for compound lard also satisfactory, it being noteworthy that the reactionary tendency in the pure lard market recently induced comparatively little liquidation of oil. Crude quoted at 4.40 in the Southeast and Texas, and 4.47 to 4.54 in the Valley.

COTTON.

After the market had registered advances of more than 10 points in the active deliveries, with the undertone seemingly one of latent steadiness, prices gave way readily near the close. Early gains were obliterated, with the weakness at the finals attributed to selling by recent buyers and also to interests very conspicuous in the bear campaign during the fore part of the season. Week-end statistics were thought to have exerted a great deal of influence, but at several quarters the showing was not unexpected.

Southern and uptown shorts bought considerable cotton during the morning session, according to general opinions. The tenor of foreign advices seemed to stimulate the demand, as spot business at Liverpool was again large and the future market relatively firm. Furthermore, many private cables were received giving stress to the large business transpiring at Manchester, the official cable from that centre stating that yarns were strong and that cloths were in good demand. Interests which sold during the beginning of the week on the materialization of better weather conditions were among the buyers, presumably being disconcerted as a result of the failure of hedge pressure to increase materially. The advices from Southern spot quarters again varied in tenor, but the liberal inquiry noted recently has not entirely subsided, and there are some intimations that even though the demand largely originates from the completion of January commitments February engagements have also been heavy.

Dispatches dwelling on the preparation of the next crop were read with interest. A report received by a prominent local concern, claiming that the acreage in Lousiana and Mississippi would be augmented probably to the extent of 50 per cent., was not without comment. It was assumed that the basis for this prediction was in conformity with the views expressed by Dr. Hunter of the Government service, claiming that the freeze during the early part of January would effectively destroy the progress of the boll weevil in many sections. Confident claims are made on the other hand of a reduction in the South Atlantic States, which indeed would not be surprising, as sales of fertilizer have not been near as good as last season, and the eagerness to commence planting operations, so noticeable last season, is not in evidence. The amount of crop diversification is a matter of opinion, with some assertions that conditions have not been suitable for important sowing of various grain.

Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week were 388,000 bales, against 361,000 last week and 311,000 a year ago. Intosight was 419,000, against 352,000 and 251,000 respectively; since Sept. 1 11,313,000, comparing with 9,687,000 a year ago. The visible of American cotton increased 31,000 bales, following a decrease of 9,000 last week and comparing with a decrease last year of 60,000 bales, totaling at present 4,893,000, against 4,145,000 one year ago. Southern spot markets were unchanged in the main; local spot cotton, 5c advance; middling uplands, 9.70c.

COFFEE.

Coffee closed 16 to 20 points up on sales of 71,000 bags. The better feeling appeared to be the result of more settled conditions since the announcement of the sales of valorization coffee as well as an improved demand for spot coffee from the country. Cost and freight offers from Brazil met more ready demand at prices firm; Santos 4s ranging from 14.15 to 14.50, according to description, while 4s and 5s were quoted at 14.40, and 6s at 14.70. Havre was firm, 1 to 1¼ francs net higher, while Hamburg was ¼ to ⅜ pfennig lower. Rio was unchanged, while Santos was firm at an advance of 50 reis.

GAETANO ZINGALES.—Judge Hough has appointed William Blau receiver for Gaetano Zingales, private banker at 319 East 107th Street; bond $2,000.

MINNIE LAZAR.—Judge Hough has appointed M. A. Henkel receiver for Minnie Lazar, wholesale confectioner, 157 Forsythe Street; bond $300.

I. BERNARD EDELSTEIN.—Schedules of I. Bernard Edelstein, dealer in men's furnishing goods at 1 Church Street, show liabilities of $7,333 and assets $5,335.

JOSEPH SCULL & CO.—Schedules of Joseph Scull & Co., manufacturers of cloaks at 10 West Thirteenth Street, show liabilities of $5,870 and assets $1,762.

HERMAN HESSING.—Schedules of Herman Hessing, jeweler of 14 Avenue D. show liabilities of $5,064 and assets of $1,402.

MANNING'S YACHT AGENCY.—Schedules in the assignment of Manning's Yacht Agency, 17 Battery Place, show liabilities of $8,512, nominal assets of $2,915, and actual assets of $1,438.

GOLDMAN CLOAK COMPANY.—Schedules in the assignment of Max Goldman, trading as the Goldman Cloak Company at 37 West Nineteenth Street, show liabilities of $1,746, nominal assets of $700, and actual assets of $243.

FINKEL & SEITLES.—Deputy Sheriff Porges received an execution yesterday for $3,988 against the firm of Finkel & Seitles, dealers in human hair goods at 89 East Tenth Street, in favor of the Importers and Manufacturers' Human Hair Company.

ARONSON BROTHERS.—Schedules of Aronson Brothers, clothing manufacturers at 102 Bleecker Street, show liabilities $28,945 and assets $7,266. Among the creditors are the American Woolen Company, $4,727; Stevens, Sanford, Cushman & Jordan, $1,792, and S. Slater & Sons, $1,169. Morris Aronson has individual liabilities of $3,500 to L. Satenstein for loans.

FAMOUS CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY.—A petition has been filed against the Famous Cloak and Suit Company, retail dealer in cloaks and suits at 2,140 Third Avenue, near 117th Street, by these creditors: Wolfers & Berger, $146; Solomon A. Unger & Co., $212, and Samuel Feldman, $212. The liabilities are $6,500 and assets $2,000. Judge Hough appointed Harry Osterman receiver, with authority to continue business five days.

HERMAN LEVY & SONS.—Schedules of Herman Levy & Sons, importers of diamonds at 65 Nassau Street, show liabilities $355,867 and assets $91,443. Among the New York creditors are Moses H. Levy, $5,000; Nathan D. Stern, $500; Bagg & Co., $7,853, and Charles L. Seale, Inc., $1,008. Gronheim, $12,707.

DAIRY PRODUCTS COMPANY.—Matthew C. Fleming, receiver for the Dairy Products Company of 406 West Forty-fifth Street, which operates many creameries in Sullivan County, has made an investigation of the financial condition of the company, and reports the liabilities to be $206,681 and actual assets as a going concern, $213,500. Judge Hough yesterday heard arguments on an application for an additional receiver, a practical man who understands this kind of business. Creditors desired to have the Chairman of the committee as such receiver, but the Judge denied this. The matter went over for three weeks to give the receiver time to receive bids for the assets.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

St. Paul and Other Transcontinentals but Little Affected by the Reduction in Dividend.

SHARP RISE IN CENTRAL

Tobacco Shares Move Violently—Cash Inflow on Large Scale Continues—Moving Toward Gold Exports.

At the opening of the market yesterday St. Paul sold at a sharp concession from the previous day's closing prices, but subsequently all but a fraction was recovered. The other transcontinentals were but slightly affected by the news of the reduction in the St. Paul dividend to 5 per cent., for while they closed at net losses these were in all cases very light. The movement in these shares, contrasting with advances in some other parts of the market, gave the list a general aspect of irregularity, but the elements of strength outweighed those of opposite influence, for most of the wide changes of the day in relatively inactive issues were on the side of advances.

One of the interesting features of the trading was the 2 point net advance in New York Central, accompanied by an unusual degree of activity in that stock. The earnings of the system have been making a favorable showing and this had something to do with yesterday's strength, though a more potent factor in stimulating trading interest in the stock was doubtless found in the news of further steps by the road's management in the direction of the scheme of consolidation upon which the New York Central has been working for some time. Much financial advantage is expected from the carrying out of this plan, which necessarily must be developed gradually, but upon which work is steadily under way. The prospect of a further issue of Delaware, Lackawanna & Western stock, with valuable rights to shareholders in that property, was instrumental in bringing about the 10 point advance accorded in that issue. Further rapid rise in some of the Tobacco issues, while American Snuff was quoted on a new basis at a decline of over 40 points, helped to emphasize the fact that this group of stocks is still subject to violent fluctuations, which put them in a class somewhat apart from the market as a whole.

Though smaller than in previous recent weeks, the inflow of cash this week, estimated at over $12,000,000, has been sufficient further to accentuate the ease in money here. Funds which cannot be profitably employed in the time money market at home are still seeking investment on the other side, and, going beyond both of these uses, bank funds are flowing into bonds, not only of the savings banks grade, but to some extent into bonds yielding higher interest return. Some of our maturing German loans are being renewed at 3½ per cent., some for thirty, some for sixty days, which is a much better rate than can be had for any similar period in this market. So great, indeed, has been the pressure of idle money that commercial paper running nine months has been discounted at 3½ per cent., and year loans have been made under 4 per cent. Gold exports, although not as yet a certainty, are daily becoming more of a probability by reason of continued advances in sterling exchange rates, in which is being reflected the normal outward pressure of money in a market which is greatly oversupplied.

METAL MARKETS REPORT.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday trading continued quiet. Copper was down ⅛c in the bid for all deliveries to May. Tin declined ¼c in the bid and ½c in the asked price. Spelter was down 10 points.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.	Thursday. Bid.	Thursday. Asked.
Stand. Copper—
Spot	13.75	14.00	13.90	14.00
January	13.75	14.00	13.90	14.00
February	13.75	14.00	13.90	14.00

Spelter	6.35	6.55	6.45	6.55
Tin	43.25	44.00	43.50	44.50

The following table of prices obtained yesterday on the Metal Exchange in London for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These final prices compare with Thursday's last prices:

	Friday. £	s.	d.	Thursday. £	s.	d.
Copper, spot	61	18	9	62	2	6
Copper, futures	62	15	6	62	18	9
Pig tin, futures	191	0	0	192	0	0

Spanish pig lead was unchanged, £15 12s 6d. Spelter was down 5s, at £26 7s 6d. Cleveland warrants were a shade lower, at 48s 10½d.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Building Up Passenger Traffic.

When the December report of the Ann Arbor Railroad reached the New York office of the company yesterday officials were at a loss to account at first for a remarkable increase in passenger traffic reported. The number of passengers carried in December increased by more than 50 per cent., and the revenue from that business by more than 30 per cent. The Ann Arbor has inaugurated a motor train service which has proved popular in Michigan, and this feature is credited with the increase in passenger travel.

St. Paul and the Market.

The comparative indifference with which the market viewed the reduction in St. Paul's dividend, as measured by the net price change at the close of trading yesterday, recalled the days when St. Paul's weekly earning statement was a prominent factor in fixing prices. It was not many years ago that this statement was given out each week at the company's office, to be rushed over the wires for the information of traders. An improvement in earnings for the week was likely to be reflected by an advance in the entire list, while a contraction of any consequence meant a general decline. In those days it was often said that "as St. Paul goes, so goes the market." It has to be a startling earnings report now to attract much attention, although publication of the Harriman and Atchison figures are awaited with considerable interest each month.

London Prices Off.

The stagnation which characterized price movements of stocks in London in December has apparently been continued this month, and what movement appeared was toward lower levels. In the period from Dec. 20 to the same date this month the 387 securities, including bonds and stocks which are included in the statistics of The Bankers' Magazine, show a decrease in aggregate market value of $40,470,000, equal to 0.2 per cent. In December the decline was 0.4 per cent. The reaction from the political disturbances last Fall is indicated, however, in a gain of 0.3 per cent. in British and India funds, which advanced $10,820,000, or 0.3 per cent., thereby saving the average figures from a correspondingly larger decline. The largest losses were 1 per cent. in British rails, and 1.3 per cent. in American Railways.

Bank Clearings Better.

Bank clearings at the principal centres of the country as compiled by Dun's Review make a favorable showing as compared with 1911, a condition which is emphasized by the fact that the stock market activity just now is considerably less than it was a year ago. The aggregate bank exchanges of $2,955,795,496 represent an increase of 2.8 per cent. in New York over 1911, and of 3.4 per cent. outside of New York. Compared with 1910, when the upturn was still strong, there are, of course, losses. In New York this week's figures are 0.4 per cent. less than 1910's, and outside cities show a decline of 24.5 per cent. The improvement over last year is especially marked in the East, where Boston, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh all show gains. Every city in the West shows more or less loss, and in the South losses are common as a result of low-priced cotton, though New Orleans shows a gain.

Wide Range in Tobaccos.

Practically all of the Tobacco issues lately listed on the Stock Exchange made big gains yesterday, but the lack of real standards by which to judge values under the new arrangement of the tobacco business was illustrated in the wide differences between bid and asked prices. G. W. Helme was quoted at the close 168 bid, 190 offered, and Weyman-Bruton 172-196.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Decided irregularity marked the course of the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The firm tone which appeared at the opening invited large selling for the account of commission house customers and floor operators under which prices for a time gave way smartly. The late afternoon witnessed a recovery, with exceptional strength developing in New York Central. The volume of business in that stock was the heaviest in many months.

CHICAGO ISSUES IRREGULAR

Diverse Influences Sway Prices in Either Direction in That Centre—Less Activity in Philadelphia.

Demand for Houston Oil dividend obligations helped the bond market in Baltimore to maintain its position. The high mark of 87½ was 1¾ up over yesterday's price. The preferred certificates and preferred trust certificates also sold well at a fractional gain. The tone of the market was fairly steady and changes were of no importance.

Mayflower was once more the feature in Boston. It was very active and advanced to 9. Old Colony was not far behind. Union Copper Land and Mining suddenly became active and strong. The other coppers did not change much. East Boston Land was active and went up to 15⅝. Telephone was rather dull.

Chicago stocks showed contrasted influences, and the local list was swayed by the action of pools. Diamond Match felt the influence of the competition expected from a foreign company and declined to 108, and Hart, Schaffner & Marx preferred lost half a point, selling at 100½. Meanwhile there was a moderate gain in Booth Fisheries, and Sears Brick and Tool was steadily maintained. In the bond department there was an excellent demand.

Some Telephone stockholders have transferred their investment to Commonwealth Edison on account of the frequent disputes between the Telephone people and the city authorities. Electric-light rates will be revised by the city after the gas and telephone rates have been fixed, but the Edison management has secured favor by voluntary reductions in price at intervals.

Sears-Roebuck was strong on a report that its sales so far this month were 20 per cent. larger than a year ago. Chicago Elevated 5 per cent. notes sold at 98⅞ to 99, Commonwealth 5s at 103¼, Match debentures at 108⅝, and Armour 4½s at 92.

There was a manifest disposition in Philadelphia to await more definite information concerning the much-talked-of merger between the Philadelphia Electric and United Gas Improvement Company, and the result was a decided falling off in the volume of transactions in both issues compared with recent sessions. The arbitrage group was weak. Union Traction was still wanted at 52 and Philadelphia Rapid Transit at 24. The Tonapahs, too, were firm, while Lehigh Valley Transit preferred, as well as York Railways preferred, moved fractionally to higher levels. Pennsylvania Salt was another strong spot, crossing 116; but Electric Storage Battery and Philadelphia Company eased off.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

The situation in business is of a mixed and varied character. As against the slight recession in iron and steel, there is a notable growth in the activity of the dry goods market in most of its branches, cotton goods being in increased demand, wool doing well in spite of the strike situation in New England, and silks being in better request. The cold weather, while retarding operations in some sections, has greatly benefited certain trades, and on the whole has helped retail distribution. Leather is irregular in demand. Hides are firm. Raw cotton has displayed increasing firmness, owing to large buying by European and domestic mills. Wheat is very irregular, the Argentine crop outlook appears better, and the Winter wheat prospects in the United States are encouraging. The security markets are quiet. Funds continue to accumulate at the important reserve centres, and loaning rates are easy. Foreign exchange is at the highest point in two years, a natural consequence of cheap money. A recent advance in bar silver is an incident that is attracting attention. Bank clearings this week gained 2.8 per cent. in New York and 3.4 per cent. outside over a year ago, but declined 0.4 and 24.5 per cent., respectively, as compared with the preceding year. Railroad earnings during two weeks of January declined 7.1 per cent. The movement of foreign commerce continues favorable to this country; during the latest week it aggregated $28,124,998, as compared with $28,065,605 a year ago, and $26,857,318 in 1910. Exports were $15,202,831, a large increase over the two preceding years, and $2,280,664 in excess of imports.

Bradstreet's says:

Favorable weather has facilitated business operations, especially in jobbing and retail lines, which report more or less improvement. But on the whole trading is characterized by small lot buying, and conservatism is very conspicuous, particularly in the farming sections, where merchants are not disposed to carry any more goods than are necessary. Staple lines are in most marked demand, groceries, provisions, and footwear presenting the best appearance. At the same time orders for dry goods the country over are coming in only fairly, and buyers seem to be disposed to make purchases on a so-called hand-to-mouth basis. In the country's leading markets domestic cotton goods show more life, while worsted yarns are firmer and more active. Retail trade has been aided by better weather, which combined with clearance sales have enabled these purveyors to work off stocks. Especially poor reports come from the cotton-growing sections of the South, where the holding of low-priced cotton has made for a scarcity of money, which in turn prevents farmers from settling their last season's debts, and consequently requests for extensions are numerous. Incidentally sales to this section are light, and in fact it is reported that the clothing trade has received some cancellations on orders heretofore placed. Commodity prices show irregularity, with staples that are commanding high prices indicating some recessions. Thus butter is lower, owing chiefly to decreased consumption, while eggs, potatoes, veal, cattle, hogs, and sheep are likewise cheaper, receipts of all, save sheep, having increased. On the other hand, cereals and cotton are higher. Collections are slow to fair, with the majority of the reports indicating tardiness.

American Express Gets New Field.

Reports were current yesterday of negotiations between the American Express Company and the Western Maryland Railway Company for express privileges. The business is now handled by the Adams Express Company, whose contract may be terminated May 1. The Western Maryland has connected with the New York Central system's subsidiary, the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, at Connellsville, Penn., by means of a branch road from Cumberland, Md. The American Express handles the New York Central business.

Money in Strong Demand in London—Copper Shares Weak—Chinese Bonds Harden.

ST. PAUL SHARES DECLINE

Others Drop on New York Offerings—Prices on Paris Bourse Irregular—Firmer on Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 27.—The London Times in its City article to-day will say:

"There was not so much pressure on the money market yesterday, the supply being rather less restricted, although the India Council called a small amount from the market. The few loans that fell due at the Bank were liquidated by the sale of short paper to the Bank.

"Very few bills were offering in the market, and as there was an increasing desire to fill up the bill case in view of the expected increase in the monetary rate next week, discount rates were easier for all dates. The Bank was, it is understood, offered some German gold coin on the basis of the last transaction in it, but declined the operation except at a reduction of ½d. per ounce.

"The appearance of a batch of dividend statements imparted some life to the home railway market, and prices moved freely in both directions. Consols fell ¼ on the prospect of a new Indian loan.

"Foreign stocks closed dull as a rule."

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Money was in strong demand and discount rates were quiet today.

The stock market continued dull and undecided, with the chief attention centred on the mining carry-over. Liquidation caused a loss of a quarter of a point in consols, and home rails were generally lower on dividend rumors. Copper shares, especially Rio Tintos, were weak. Chinese bonds hardened.

American securities opened quiet and about unchanged. During the first hour Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul shares declined 2 points on the dividend reduction, and the rest of the list eased off in sympathy. Later, St. Paul improved a point, but the other shares declined on New York offerings. The closing was easy.

Money, 3½@3¾ per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3¾@3 13-16 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3 11-16 per cent.

ANOTHER LACKAWANNA MELON

This One a Surprise as Shareholders Got a Big Slice a Few Weeks Ago.

Accompanying a request for their proxies to be voted by the management at the annual meeting on Feb. 20, Lackawanna stockholders received their first notice yesterday of what promises to be another "mellon cutting" in the form of extra dividends. The notice proved a general surprise, for the shareholders received an unexpected distribution of 35 per cent. in new Lackawanna Company of New Jersey 4 per cent. guaranteed stock only a few weeks ago, and few of them had begun to hope for any further special dividends so soon.

The proxy notice stated that at the annual meeting approval would be asked for a proposed increase of $12,000,000 in the Lackawanna's capitalization. The company now has but $30,277,000 of stock outstanding. It is proposed to increase this to $42,277,000 for the purpose of raising funds for the carrying out of further cut-off work on the Lackawanna's main line in Pennslyvania, between Scranton and Binghamton.

It was rumored in banking circles that the Lackawanna planned to issue $10,000,000 of the new stock to its shareholders on the basis of one share of the new stock for each three of the old, at its par value of $50 a share. An attempt to get this report confirmed or denied by President Truesdale was frustrated by his secretary, who said that the President did not know what disposition the board planned to make of the new stock.

As usual, the first intimation of another melon for Lackawanna came in the action of the stock on the Exchange. In an irregular market yesterday D. L. & W. advanced 10 points, closing at 555. At this price, it was figured, a distribution of $10,000,000 of the new stock to holders of the old shares on the terms outlined would mean a gift in the form of rights worth $114 for each share of the old stock. It is quite possible, however, that the Lackawanna board will decide that the company ought to get more than the par value for its shares. An offer of the opportunity to subscribe at even $400 per share would give valuable rights to the stockholders.

Last year the D., L. & W. shareholders received dividends amounting to 55 per cent. on the stock, figuring the new Lackawanna Company of New Jersey shares which were distributed in November at 35 per cent. Two years earlier they fared better, with a total of 85 per cent. on the shares. The regular dividend is but 10 per cent. per annum, with another 10 per cent. as an extra dividend at Christmas.

At the annual meeting the stockholders will also be asked to approve a lease of the Syracuse, Binghamton & New York to the D., L. & W. This lease has already been authorized by the Directors of both companies.

MODIFY LADING BILL PLAN.

English Representative Hopes to Have Views of Shippers Adopted.

H. Kern, who came to this country with James H. Simpson last week to look into the operation of the Central Bureau for certifying cotton bills, and to learn why the bureau was not being used by more banks, leaves for home to-day. Efforts to get his views on the success or failure of the bill of lading plan, which has been condemned by some of the leading bankers, though approved by the special committee of the American Bankers' Association, which was appointed to collaborate with the Liverpool conference in devising greater methods of safeguarding drafts, have not been successful, but he broke silence last night in giving out a signed statement.

Mr. Kern quoted a resolution adopted at the Chamber of Commerce meeting which held that a return to the old methods of dealing with cotton drafts is impossible, and that some method of safeguarding the validity of through export bills is essential. The resolution stated further that the bureau as now organized is effective, and the best means yet offered.

"In view of the somewhat contradictory reports which have appeared in the press regarding the results of the conferences which Mr. Simpson and myself have been holding with the American Cotton Exchange, buying bankers, and the representatives of the Southern Cotton Exchanges," says Mr. Kern, "I am happy to say definitely that our conferences with the New York bankers and the delegates of the Southern shippers have been extremely pleasant, and of great value, as tending to adjust differences that have previously existed in connection with the present movement for safeguarding export cotton bills of lading.

"On Jan. 20 we attended a general meeting of the representatives of various Southern Cotton Exchanges, at Memphis, which meeting adopted a resolution disapproving the plan as at present in operation, but appointed a committee to confer with us as to the making of certain modifications which, it was believed, would render the plan more acceptable to the South in general. We met this committee on Monday, Jan. 22, and have agreed to place before the American bankers, the European bankers, and Cotton Exchanges, and the American railroads, the modifications which were then suggested.

"I take pleasure in stating that the attitude of the Liverpool committee and the European Bankers' Conference has, throughout, been characterized by a desire to co-operate with cotton shippers in every way possible, and that every endeavor will be made to modify the plan before the opening of the next season, so as to meet the views of the Southern shippers."

Brown to Operate the Rio Grande.

Following the policy now in effect on the Gould roads of putting operating Vice Presidents in charge of the several properties, of which B. F. Bush is the operating head, E. L. Brown, General Superintendent of the Great Northern's Western lines, has been elected to the Vice Presidency of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company.

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

At the beginning of business to-day the condition of the United States Treasury was: Working balance in Treasury offices, $59,610,231; in banks and Philippine Treasury, $34,732,923.

The total of the general fund was $119,133,485.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Heavy Trading in Baltimore & Ohio Equipment Notes.

The bond list of the Curb market had its busiest day in months yesterday when activity developed in the new 4½ per cent. equipment notes of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Transactions of $450,000 were reported, the price rising from the opening at 100⅞ to 101 1-16 at the close. The rest of the bond list was strong, several gains of ⅛ appearing. British-American Tobacco reported transactions of 11,800 between 17⅛ and 17⅞. The close was at 17⅞.

CHANGES IN BANKS.

Francis L. Hine in Astor Trust—A. R. Adams in Citizens' Central.

These additions to the Directorates of banking institutions were made yesterday:

Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank, has been elected a Director of the Astor Trust Company. Henry J. Cochran was elected a Vice President.

The Directors of the Citizens' Central National Bank elected Ambrose R. Adams of the firm of Shreve & Adams to the board.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Directors of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, Incorporated, yesterday elected James B. Brady Vice President in place of W. O. Jacquette.

N. W. Halsey & Co. have bought $1,250,000 Tri-City Railway and Light Company first and refunding 5 per cent. bonds.

State Superintendent of Banks Van Tuyl has approved the increase of capital of the German-American Bank of Buffalo from $300,000 to $500,000.

The Cotton Exchange membership of E. C. Andres of Boston has been purchased by W. E. Caldwell for $14,800. This is the price paid at the previous sale.

Charles M. McGuire of McGuire & Co. of Syracuse is to become a Vice President of the Empire State Surety Company, and will have charge of the production of business.

Subscription books to the unsold balance of the $20,000,000 Rock Island 5s, to which advance subscriptions are now being received by Speyer & Co., open and close Monday.

Stockholders of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad and of the Iowa Central have subscribed for $900,000 to $950,000 of the new $2,500,000 5 per cent. extension and refunding bonds of the first-named road. A bonus of five shares of the preferred went with each bond. J. S. Bache & Co., head of the underwriting syndicate, have taken over the unsubscribed-for balance.

The Pay-as-You-Enter Car Corporation announces that the London Board of Trade has approved the plans for the P. A. Y. E. cars for the Gateshead and District Tramways Companies. The Metropolitan police authorities have requested the submission of a 'bus in its finished state before approving P. A. Y. E. 'buses for the London General Omnibus Company, intimating that if this type does not congest traffic more than the existing 'buses, there will be no difficulty in getting the license.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday the purchase of $20,000,000 general and refunding 5 per cent. bonds of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company of California. They have sold the entire amount to N. W. Halsey & Co. and Harris, Forbes & Co., who expect to make a public offering of the bonds in the near future.

The Franklin Trust Company has compiled a complete "Tax Timetable," showing the respective dates upon which the various taxes are payable, the penalty imposed for non-payment, and other interesting information bearing on this subject. Copies may be had at the office of the company, 166 Montague Street, Brooklyn.

$20,000,000

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company

Twenty-Year Five Per Cent. Gold Debentures.

Dated January 15, 1912. Due January 15, 1932.

Interest payable January 15th and July 15th.

Principal and interest payable in New York, in U. S. Gold Coin; or, at the Holder's Option, in Foreign Currencies as stated in the Debenture.

Redeemable, at the option of the Company, at any time at 105 and interest, on sixty days' previous notice.

Coupon Debentures in denomination of $1,000 each, with privilege of registration as to principal, and exchangeable for Debentures registered as to both principal and interest; Coupon and Registered Debentures are interchangeable.

Application will be made to list these Debentures on the New York Stock Exhange.

Total authorized issue limited to $20,000,000.

From a letter of Mr. Roberts Walker, Chairman of the Executive Committee of The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, we quote as follows:

"The $20,000,000 Debentures which you have bought from us are the direct obligation of The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company (the old Company), which was formed in the year 1880, from which time it has uninterruptedly paid dividends on its capital stock, and since 1899 at not less than 5 per cent. per annum.

The average annual surplus of The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company for the five fiscal years 1907 to 1911, after providing for all fixed charges, taxes, rentals, etc., amounted to $5,965,089, equal to nearly six times the interest charges upon the above $20,000,000 Debentures had same been outstanding.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, the surplus of The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, after providing for all fixed charges, taxes, rentals, etc., amounted to $5,442,714, equal to nearly five and one-half times the interest charges on the above $20,000,000 Debentures had same been outstanding.

The sale of the above $20,000,000 Debentures will, it is expected, provide the Company with funds for the next two years for the purchase of additional terminals, and for second track, sidings and general betterment of the lines of the System. Therefore the Railway Company will not create or sell any additional Debentures prior to January 15, 1914, nor will it sell any First and Refunding Mortgage Four Per Cent. Bonds or other Direct or Guaranteed Bonds during this period, but all such Bonds as may become available will be retained as Treasury Assets of the Railway Company.

One of the terms of the Trust Indenture to the Bankers Trust Co., New York, as Trustee, securing the above Debentures, is that the Railway Company, as long as any of the Debentures are outstanding and unpaid, agrees not to make any new mortgage upon its railroad without also thereby including therein every Debenture issued thereunder equally and ratably with every bond issued under and secured by any such mortgage, such covenant, however, not to prevent the renewal, extension or refunding of any existing mortgage."

HAVING PLACED PRIVATELY THE LARGER PART OF THE ABOVE ISSUE, WE OFFER THE UNSOLD BALANCE AT 97½% AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DELIVERY, YIELDING 5.20% PER ANNUM.

The subscription books will open at 10 A. M. on Monday, January 29, and close at 3 P. M., or earlier, on the same day.

Temporary Receipts will be issued pending the delivery of the Definitive Debentures.

The right is reserved to reject any application and to allot a smaller amount than applied for.

Payment in full is to be made on February 1, 1912.

New York, January 24, 1912.

NEW PACIFIC RAIL OUTLETS.

Northwestern to Build Into Oregon Within the Year.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 26.—The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company is to hurry to completion extensive construction work on a roadbed affording two outlets on the Pacific Coast, according to The Oregonian to-day. William A. Gardner, President of the road, is in the Pacific Northwest making arrangements for construction work which will lead into Oregon within the present year.

The Northwestern, it is said, through trackage arrangements will use the Northern Pacific from St. Paul, Minn., to Alder, Mon. From Alder to a point east of Lewiston, Idaho, it will follow the Pittsburgh & Gilmore Road, which is owned by the Chicago & Northwestern. At a point east of Lewiston the road will branch, with the purpose of giving two outlets to the coast.

One of these will be down the Columbia River via the Northern Pacific and Spokane, Portland & Seattle Roads to Portland, and the other by way of the new Harriman line, the Oregon & Eastern Railroad, to Eugene, Ore., where over the track of the Pacific Great Western Railroad it will terminate at Coos Bay.

NO MERGER OF COLONIAL BANK

Negotiations with the Royal Bank of Canada Ended.

Stockholders of the Royal Bank of Canada, who have received copies of the proceedings of the annual meeting, learned yesterday that the deal reported by cable some months ago from London, for the purchase of the Colonial Bank, has been abandoned. The Colonial Bank, which is one of the oldest institutions operating in the West Indies, has in recent years been closely pressed by the Royal Bank of Canada, which now covers practically the whole Caribbean field. President H. S. Holt gave no information of the reasons for abandoning the merger idea beyond the brief statement that the negotiations had been discontinued by mutual consent, "as we were unable to agree on all questions."

To the Boxholders of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company:

Subject to the approval of the Court, which it is hoped will be obtained by Monday, January 29th, we have purchased the safe deposit vaults located in the United States Realty Building, 115 Broadway, which are undoubtedly among the most modern in the world. We have also made a provisional contract to purchase the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, retaining its official staff, and propose to move the business of that Company to the new quarters in the United States Realty Building (immediately opposite the Equitable property).

It is our purpose to afford facilities to the present boxholders of the Mercantile Company for the unexpired terms of their respective leases without additional charge.

PUBLIC'S HOSTILITY SADDENS SHONTS

Regrets That the People Think Transportation Companies' Profits Are Too Large.

SEES A BRIGHT TIME COMING

And the Public Service Commission, He Declares, Will Be a Welcome Coadjutor in Bettering Conditions.

Sadness because the farepayers in the Subway and on surface street cars have developed a confirmed habit of hating them and joy in the prospect of some day holding hands in mutual understanding all around were the dominant notes in the speeches at the dinner of the American Electric Railway Manufacturers' Association, which brought 700 diners to the Hotel Astor last evening.

Speaking for himself, as well as for the Interborough Company, President Theodore P. Shonts lamented that the hostility of the public should have become so pronouynced even that it was sometimes directed through certain public officials "at the very individuals engaged in the conduct of the business as well as against the corporations themselves."

One speaker, President Thomas N. McCarter of the American Electric Railway Association, declared that the time had come when "the voter was either going to smash business or business was going to win, throught frank co-operation, the voter's sympathy and support, which is now so intensely alienated."

It was estimated that the invested capital represented at the dinner amounted to $3,000,000,000. At one table were the managers of New York's three largest transportation companies, sitting with a Public Service Commission engineer. At the table were General Manager Frank Hedley of the Interborough, General Manager Calderwood of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and General Manager Munger of the Hudson Tunnels. It was said to be the first time the three general managers had ever sat together at table.

President W. L. Conwell of the American Electric Manufacturers' Association, presided. When he called upon Mr. Shonts several voices spoke up to congratulate the Interborough's President on his arrival in a Subway train so free from a jam that he could get out at his station, instead of being carried past it. Others inquired whether he hadn't come in an automobile. President Shonts, ignoring the questions, proceeded to discuss "Popularity and Prosperity."

Mr. Shonts's Speech.

"In the public announcement of the change in ownership of the Metropolitan system," he said, "It set forth that the public can best be served by a prosperous and popular company. Everybody here to-night knows that the public has not seemed to appreciate hom interdependent are good service and the company's prosperity. Nor, on the other hand, have the railroad people always conducted their affairs with an appreciation of the importance of popularity as a factor essential to prosperity. I believe that the moment the attention of the public is directed to the matter there will be found almost unanimous agreement that unless street railroads prosper the community cannot prosper. Self interest requires that the people permit the public service corporations to be prosperous.

"I do not propose to talk about sympathy for the widows and orphans who hold street railroad stocks, but I do call attention to the fact that the day has passed when railroad securities are closely held. An adequate return on railroad property certainly should be greater than can be secured by a loan on real estate at 6 per cent. The earthquake in San Francisco, the great conflagration in Chicago, the flood in Galveston, all left the security of real estate mortgages unimpaired, but they largely destroyed the street railroads.

"There are no such risks to real estate mortgages, so I say that railroads should not be put on the income basis of real estate mortgages. No merchant or manufacturer regards his business as posperous unless it nets at least 10 per cent.

Get Much Less Than 5 Cents a Ride.

The average patron of a street railroad would say, if asked, that the company gets 5 cents a ride. In 1907, just before the Metropolitan System went into a receivership, the average return per passenger ride was exactly 3.2 cents. This was brought about by the extension of the transfers, and, in spite of the separation of the Third Avenue Road from the Metropolitan System, so many transfers continued to be used that the average fare per ride remained below 3.5 cents on the lines recently acquired by the New York Railways Company.

"The apprehension that some one might make a profit has been a serious obstacle so far to the solution of the subway situation in New York.

"I look for better times, locally and throughout the Nation, and the means of our salvation and redemption are at hand. It may sound strange to some, but I expect the new dispensation to come through the Public Service Commissions of the several States.

"I am a sincere believer in the policy of public regulation and control of public service companies. It may be news to some, but it is a fact that the street railroad companies in New York City never made the slightest effort to oppose the passage of the Public Service Commission law of 1907. On the contrary, we welcomed it as the way to greater prosperity and popularity, greater popularity because we expected that a fair-minded commission, after examining the facts, would not hesitate to advise the public of the truth, and thus protect the property from the unjust attacks of misinformed newspapers and misguided public men.

"During the whole existence of our commission most of the properties here have been staggering under a heavy load of insolvency. But the receiverships are now being lifted and the properties are emerging with financial obligations less than the intrinsic value of the physical property devoted to the public use. There is the dawning of a better day for the public, because no longer will securities be permitted to be based on hopes never to be realized."

Vice President Hinsdill Parsons of the General Electric Company said that he believed the influence of business men on voters, if they really approached them intimately, would excel either the influence of priests or lawyers, and that business men had made a great mistake in "letting the muckrakers do all the explaining about business." "We should go into politics," he said.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Trade Negotiation Rumors for Levi P. Morton's Fifth Avenue Residence—Deal in Midtown Loft Zone—An Active Bronx and Suburban Market.

Rumors which have been current for some time that the residence of ex-Gov. Levi P. Morton, at 681 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth Streets, had been obtained on a long lease by a large rug firm for business improvement were reported yesterday to be without foundation. Negotiations have been pending for utilizing the Morton house for trade, and the plan was to erect on the site an eight or twelve story loft. This deal is now said to be off.

Mr. Morton a short time ago leased a large apartment for his future home in the new apartment house on Fifth Avenue and Eighty-first Street from Pease & Elliman. At that time Mr. Morton placed his house in the market for sale or lease for trade. It is the first house in that block which has been offered for trade. Adjoining it to the south is the home of Cornelius Vanderbilt, and the Criterion Club adjoins the Morton house to the north.

Midtown Loft Zone Deal.

Another fine old brownstone dwelling in the midtown loft zone was disposed of yesterday and will probably be torn down at once and a loft erected on its site.

The dwelling sold is known as 8 West Twenty-first Street and stands on a lot 25 by 92, about 200 feet west of Fifth Avenue. It was sold by Robert F. Bloodgood to a client of Horace S. Ely & Co. S. Osgood Pell & Co. negotiated the sale.

E. H. Van Ingen owns 6 and 10 on either side of the parcel just sold, as well as 7 West Twentieth Street abutting. He is also the owner of the Mohawk Building, at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, separated from the above holding by one parcel at 4 West Twenty-first Street, owned by the Mount estate.

Buyer for East 78th Street Dwelling.

John Byrnes has sold through Davis & Robinson his residence, at 125 East Seventy-eighth Street. The building is a three-story brownstone structure on a lot 18.9 by 102.

Quick Resale of Tenement.

The demand for medium price apartment house property on the upper west side was shown in the resale by Charles N. Wright of 114 and 116 West Ninety-ninth Street. The property consists of a new-law tenement five stories high on a plot 42 by 100.11.

Mr. Wright took title to the parcel Thursday from Joseph W. Row. The buyer is the Brown Realty Company. Another sale of a similar house in the same block is reported pending.

Recent Buyers.

C. Ives is the buyer of the three-story business building at 115 Park Row, held for years by the Hoffman estate. J. H. Stryker was the broker.

Mrs. Gustavia A. Senff, widow of Charles H. Senff, the wealthy sugar man, who died last Summer, is the buyer of the large private house at 16 East Seventy-ninth Street, built for Mrs. Sidney Dillon Ripley, daughter of Henry H. Hyde, founder of the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Bronx.

Benjamin Englander has sold for Francis Allan the two-story and basement building 696 East 133d Street, on a lot 25 by 100.

W. E. & W. I. Brown, Incorporated, in conjunction with John Goergen, sold for the estate of Augusta M. De Peyster a plot of two lots at the southeast corner of Nereid & Richardson Avenues, size 55 by 105.

The Henry Morgenthau Company has sold 982 Whitlock Avenue, a three-story brick, semi-detached, two-family house. The purchaser is Dr. Maurice Magid.

William G. O'Gorman has sold to Eugenia Tropp 437 West 139th Street, a three-story brick dwelling, on a lot 16.8 by 100. S. H. Frankenheim negotiated the sale.

Staten Island Factory Sale.

An important sale on the water front of Staten Island, which will result in the erection of a factory, has been made by H. T. Metcalfe & Sons, who have sold the Loeb property, consisting of seven lots, on which is a three-story brick factory. It has a frontage of about 50 feet on the bay. The buyer is Hugo Jaburg of the firm of Jaburg Brothers. The property is on the corner of Canal and Front Streets, adjoining the Municipal Pier. A new factory will be built for the manufacture of bakers' utensils.

Brooklyn.

The McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company has sold for Henry W. Munroe the property known as 46 to 56 Irving Street, Brooklyn, three five-story brick factory buildings, on a combined plot of 143.6 by 100. The buyer is the Hills Brothers Company, large importers, who will occupy after extensive alterations.

Wood, Harmon & Co. have sold at Rugby one lot on Linden Avenue, near East Fortieth Street, to R. B. McHale; two lots at the southeast corner of Linden Avenue and East Forty-fifth Street to J. L. Morganthaler, one lot on Utica Avenue, near Tulip Street, to Jacob Schlarsky; one lot on Utica Avenue, near Tulip Street, to Moses Boff, and one lot on East Fifty-seventh Street, near Snyder Avenue, to Mrs. W. B. Boyce.

E. Sharum has sold 758 Bergen Street, a frame dwelling, on a plot 20 by 64.1 by irregular. Fifteen lots at Eastport, L. I., were given as part payment.

Frank A. Seaver has sold a plot 50 by 100 on the westerly side of Third Avenue, 25 feet south from Ninety-fifth Street, for Robert Hyman to an investor.

Long Island.

The Queens-Nassau Realty Company has sold to Gustave Zimmerman of the Bronx, and he reconveys to B. J. Tyson of Flushing, four lots at Broadway, having a frontage of 61 feet on Sanford Avenue and 100 feet on Twentieth Street, Flushing.

Martha Fuller has sold to Augustine F. Ward of Manhattan a parcel 67 by 200 on the side of the road from Little Neck station to Little Neck landing.

The Auburndale Realty Company has sold to William E. McGee of Elmhurst five lots on Broadway-on-the-Hill.

The Shore Acres Realty Company has sold at Beechhurst, Whitestone Landing, to Mrs. Evan M. Homes a plot 80 by 100 on the north side of Thirty-first Street, and 260 feet from Sixteenth Avenue; to Severance Johnson a plot 80 by 100 on the north side of Thirtieth Street, 260 feet east of Sixteenth Avenue; to William H. Reddy a plot 80 by 100 on the north side of Twenty-ninth Street, 100 feet east of Sixteenth Avenue; to Paul Seffan a plot 100 by 100 on the southeast corner of Twenty-ninth Street and Sixteenth Avenue.

Cumberson Estate Sells L. I. City Plot.

The Cumberson estate has sold to clients of L'Ecluse, Washburn & Co. two parcels of land in Long Island City, consisting of about forty-three lots, fronting on both sides of Thompson Avenue and on Betts Avenue. This property has been in the Cumberson family since 1761. It was conveyed to Thomas Cumberson on Feb. 20 of that year, and there has been no conveyance outside of the family until this sale.

In 1851 the property was conveyed to a number of the heirs for a consideration of $1,555. Property in this vicinity is now worth nearly that amount per twenty-foot lot. Jacob Weiss and John Hammond represented the estate in this sale.

Buys Short Hills Estate.

Louis G. Kaufman, President of the Chatham and Phenix Bank, has purchased from William C. De Lanoy his property at Short Hills, N. J. On the property, which consists of about seven acres of parked lands, is a large reinforced concrete house with garage and outhouses. Edward P. Hamilton & Co. were the brokers.

New Jersey.

Henry W. Post of New York City has purchased from the Mountain Lakes Company a small estate on the Boulevard facing Mountain Lake, N. J. On the property stands a large double dwelling, outhouses, &c.

New Mortgage Corporation.

The Mortgage Corporation of America has been incorporated at Albany with a capital of $1,000,000. The papers were filed by Thomas P. McKenna of 41 Wall Street, and there are seven incorporators, all from the same address.

Notes.

The East Tremont Taxpayers' Association will hold its annual banquet at the Bronx Park Boat House, 182d Street and Boston Road, Bronx, on the 6th day of February.

Plans are now in preparation by George and Edward Blum, architects, for the Graf-Pincus Construction Company, for a twelve-story loft building to be constructed at 119 to 125 West Twenty-fourth Street. The lofts will be 100 by 115, and be ready for occupancy Oct. 1, 1912.

William L. Fox has decided not to purchase the Loyal L. Smith property, 161st Street, from Broadway to Fort Washington Avenue, where it was planned to erect a theatre. Fox recently bought the block facing American League Park, where he will build instead.

Edward Margolies has taken a lease of the property 17 East Thirty-third Street from William Waldorf Astor for a term of years.

Ames & Co. have leased 2 and 4 West Thirty-third Street for John Jacob Astor to the Terminal Realty Company.

THIS CALIFORNIA BUNGALOW AT NEPONSIT

is a fair sample of a number of new moderate-priced 5 to 7 room bungalows, some ready for occupancy, others being prepared for early Spring use, built in 1911, at New York's finest ocean front residence section, on the West Rockaway Beach, only 40 minutes from the Pennsylvania Terminal by Long Island Railroad.

Construction of cement stucco on hollow tile, warm in Winter, cool in Summer. Artistic, convenient, comfortable and built to last. All improvements. NEPOSIT is essentially a home place. The conditions are ideal in every particular.

Many attractive plans and exterior views on file in this office—also specifications. Call and look them over. NEPONSIT is a wonderful place. It's worth looking into. If not interested, you surely will not be annoyed by being "followed up." If it seems to meet your requirements, then our Office and Building Department is at your service to help you get located, with as little time and trouble as possible on your part. Information by mail or telephone always available. Send for descriptive literature.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Complainant, against METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY AND OTHERS, Defendants, In Equity, No. 2,149.—Pursuant to an order of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York made in the above-entitled cause January 19, 1912, notice is hereby given to the parties to said cause and to all other persons interested in the trusts existing under the mortgage dated February 1st, 1897, made by Metropolitan Street Railway Company to Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, including the holders of the bonds secured by said mortgage, that a petition has this day been filed by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York praying for the ratification and confirmation of certain of its acts and proceedings as Trustee under said mortgage and for a decree judicially settling its accounts as such Trustee and directing the disposition of the moneys pertaining to said trusts remaining in the hands of the petitioner, and also for a decree fixing the compensation of the petitioner for its services as Trustee and fixing the amounts to be paid to its solicitors and counsel for their services, and determining the source or sources from which such amounts are to be paid, and giving all necessary directions as to payment; and that by the above-mentioned order the matters embraced in said petition have been referred to William L. Turner, Esq., as Special Master, to take testimony thereon and to report the same to the Court with his conclusions, and that said Special Master has fixed his office in the Cotton Exchange Building, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 5th day of February, 1912, at 2 o'clock P. M., as the time and place of the first hearing pursuant to said order.

Dated January 19, 1912.

"A different kind of school." The reputation of this school has been built, not only upon its unusual ability to put boys in college, but also upon their general success while in college. All the benefits of individual instruction and personal influence of the private tutor, and also the advantages of school life, athletics, laboratories and gymnasium; also, where desired, the stimulus and competition of small classes of three or four students. Not being confined to a single tutor, but having individual instruction in each branch from a specialist and master of that branch, the student learns both rapidly and thoroughly. Willing Workers.

It greatly enhances the value of an employe when he adds willingness to trained ability.

The best class of workers are reached through the Help Wanted columns of The New York Times.

To be in the best class a worker must be willing; willing to do as much as possible, instead of as little as possible for the salary received.

Workers of the willing class read The New York Times because it is the surest way to reach employers who appreciate and reward ability plus willingness.

ALWAYS OPEN CAPACITY, 1,100
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

This house, which would be one of their notable attractions if located in New York, London or Paris, has aided materially in creating Atlantic City's great all year season. The mild climate, southern exposure and bracing dry sea air combine with the open plaza and solarium overlooking the ocean to insure the comfort and enjoyment of the guests.

THE EXQUISITE MUSIC
always a feature, seems to be more than ever appreciated. Only solo artists of note appear.

THE WHITE SERVICE
used exclusively in all four dining rooms (both American and European plans) is most satisfactory.

THE HOT AND COLD SEA WATER BATHS
in all private bathrooms, (of which there are over 400,) besides being most delightful and invigorating, have great therapeutic value. The water is pumped directly out of the ocean and contains all the curative agents for rheumatic and other troubles.

THE PURE CRYSTAL WATER from our private artesian wells, 850 feet deep and flowing 200 gallons per minute, (pure and free from possibility of contamination,) is used throughout the house for drinking and ice making and all other purposes.

THE ROLLING CHAIRS
and Atlantic City's famous seven mile Boardwalk along the Ocean's brink afford an outdoor recreation for old and young, sick and strong, in both clear and stormy weather, unequaled elsewhere in the world. Fine streets and good roads make good motoring and horseback riding, and the finest all year links in America makes golf a pleasure at all times. The Theatres and Piers are in full operation.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court for the Southern District of New York, held in the Post Office Building in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 17th day of January, 1912. Present: Honorable Charles M. Hough, U. S. D. J.—In the matter of PARAGON FLOWER & FEATHER COMPANY, Bankrupt.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the petition of Walbridge S. Tait, verified the 19th day of January, 1912, that a petition was filed in this court on the 29th day of June, 1911, praying that the above-named Paragon Flower & Feather Company be adjudged a bankrupt, and that a subpoena directed to said alleged bankrupt was duly issued out of this court to the U. S. Marshal of this district, and that the said Marshal has been unable to serve same, and that the officers and others upon whom process might be served are not now within this district so that personal service may be made, and that diligent efforts have been made to ascertain their whereabouts, that they are not now within the jurisdiction of this court, now on motion of Carell & Henkel, attorneys for the receiver in this proceeding, it is Ordered that the above-named alleged bankrupt plead, answer, or demur on or about the 6th day of February, 1912, to the petition herein filed in the office of the Clerk of this court upon the 29th day of June, 1911, and in case of its failure to plead, answer, or demur thereto, adjudication shall be made according to the prayer of said petition, and it is further Ordered that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two successive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 20th day of January, 1912, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt to its last known place of business, No. 34 West 22d Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the date of the first publication.

NO. 15,887.—IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF the United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of SAMUEL and MAX THALER, individually, and trading as THALER BROS., Bankrupts.

To the creditors of Samuel and Max Thaler, individually, and trading as Thaler Bros., of the City and County of New York and district aforesaid, bankrupts:

Notice is hereby given that on the 29th day of December, A. D. 1911, the said Samuel and Max Thaler, individually, and trading as Thaler Bros., were duly adjudicated bankrupts, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Nathaniel A. Prentiss, Referee in Bankruptcy, No. 2 Rector Street, City and County of New York, on the 6th day of February, A. D. 1912, at 12 o'clock noon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupts, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Pressure is high over the valley of the Red River of the North, but elsewhere it is generally low, with a pronounced depression over the North Pacific Coast, and a series of minor ones extending over the central portion of the country to North Carolina.

This distribution has resulted in general snow from the lake region and upper Ohio Valley eastward.

It is decidedly colder in the Northwest, and low temperatures continue in the lake regions, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England. Over the remainder of the country temperatures are higher, especially in the Gulf States, where they are from 10 to 25 degrees above seasonal.

Owing to disturbed pressure conditions there is little prospect for settled weather over the north and west portions of the country during the next two days.

Temperatures will remain comparatively low in the Northeast and high in the South and Southwest.

Winds along the New England Coast will be north and northeast, probably brisk over south portion; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate, mostly northeast and north; South Atlantic Coast, moderate southwest.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate to brisk northeast and north winds with snow to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Local snows and slightly warmer Saturday; moderate to brisk northeast and north winds; Sunday local snow.

New Jersey—Snow and slightly warmer Saturday; moderate to brisk northeast and north winds; Sunday unsettled, probably local snows or rains.

New England—Snow Saturday in south and by night in north portion, slightly warmer, with moderate to brisk northeast and north winds; Sunday unsettled, probably snow.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Snow, slightly warmer Saturday; Sunday unsettled, probably local snows; moderate northeast and north winds.

	1911.	1912.		1911.	1912.
3 A. M.	37	20	4 P. M.	42	20
6 A. M.	36	17	6 P. M.	42	22
9 A. M.	41	14	9 P. M.	39	22
12 M.	41	18	12 P. M.	37	22

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 18; for the corresponding date last year it was 40; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 14, at 8 P. M. it was 21. Maximum temperature 23 degrees at 3:15 P. M., minimum 13 degrees at 7:50 A. M. Humidity 66 per cent. at 8 A. M., 71 per cent. at 8 P. M.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Associate City Supt. Thomas S. O'Brien said yesterday that the Board of Superintendents had received a large number of communications from teachers who failed to receive approval under the new equal pay law. They offer various reasons why the board should reconsider its action in their cases. Their claims for change in the rating are chiefly these: That their inferior ratings were due to personal illness or to bias; that the absences from school which led to disapproval were because of medical operations they had to undergo or injuries which compelled their removal to hospitals, and that their latenesses were so trivial that these ought not to be counted against them. Supt. O'Brien said that all the complaints would be fully and fairly considered by the Board of Superintendents.

Although no successor to District Supt. John L. N. Hunt, who will be retired on Feb. 1, has yet been nominated by the Board of Superintendents, there are no less than twenty aggressive candidates in the field for the office. Mr. Hunt has been too ill for some time past to attend to his duties, so his retirement has been fully expected, and candidates presented themselves even before the Board of Education acted in the matter at its meeting on Wednesday. In addition to these twenty aggressive candidates, it is said that there are fully 100 more who, like Barkis, "are willin'" to step into Mr. Hunt's official shoes.

The By-Law Committee of the Board of Education has decided not to appoint any more junior teachers in the high schools. Those now filling these positions will be advanced to the positions of assistant teacher as soon as possible.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The following requests for restoration to the eligible lists specified are approved by the Municipal Civil Service Commission:

George L. McGovern, 116 West Sixty-fourth Street, patrolman; Bernard Roth, 686 Evergreen Avenue, Brooklyn, clerk, first grade, for appointment in Manhattan; Kathryn Giblin, 135 Bay 28th Street, Brooklyn, stenographer and typewriter, for appointment in Manhattan; Joseph E. Brown, 387 Enfield Street, Brooklyn, police doorman and prison keeper.

The commission has adopted the recommendation of Examiner Murray that the salary of $1,350 a year be given to William W. Porter, clerk in the office of the City Paymaster.

The commission has approved the request of the Secretary of the Department of Public Charities for the emergency appointment of Dr. Rosslyn M. Fergusson as Deputy Medical Superintendent, at the New York City farm colony, Staten Island, with a salary of $1,500 a year.

The Superintendent of the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys requested the Municipal Civil Service for authority to employ Frank Martin as brass band instructor during 1912 at $2.50 an hour. His request is approved.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination, at the New York Custom House on Feb. 24, to fill a vacancy in the position of horticulturist in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at a salary ranging from $2,250 to $2,500 a year. Recently the commission has obtained an appropriation whereby it is now able to have, as examiners on various scientific, technical, and professional subjects, men who are not otherwise connected with the Government service, and who are recognized authorities in such subjects. In passing upon the qualifications of candidates in this examination the commission will have the assistance of an expert examiner, who has thus been obtained in the person of the professor in charge of the horticultural department of one of the leading agricultural colleges of the country. An educational training equivalent to that required for the Master's degree from an institution of recognized standing, and, in addition, at least two years' special experience in the study and investigation of horticultural crops, are prerequisites for consideration in this position. Experience in conducting or supervising horticultural work at agricultural colleges or experimental stations would be particularly desirable. The age limit is 25 years or over on the date of the examination.

WAITERS WEAKEN ON NO-TIP CRUSADE

Gratuities Must Cease, of Course, but Not Until Wages Are Raised.

THEY WERE MISUNDERSTOOD

The Union's Membership Failed to Increase When Too Radical Propaganda Was Started.

When the word went abroad some weeks ago that the process of unionizing was astir among the hotel workers of this city, it was noted that the bellboys, cooks, helpers, and waiters were asked to join hands in the organization called the International Hotel Workers' Union, with headquarters at 77 West Forty-fourth Street. The great army of restaurant patrons was mildly interested at all this, but deeply so in the particular matter of the waiters. They thought of it as a waiters' union.

The literature and platform statements of the organizing spirits dealt with the oppressions of the hotel workers, letting it be known that they were fighting against the insanitary conditions, the long hours, the improper food, the tipping evil, and so on through a long list of acute grievances, but the thing that caught and fixed the public attention was the crusade against the tip. Here, said the general public, are the waiters themselves rising against a system which hitherto we alone have vainly denounced.

Yesterday a reporter dropped into the headquarters at 77 West Forty-fourth Street, and begged permission to inquire of the various secretarial people there how the cause was progressing.

"How about the tips?" was the question put to a cordial mannered man whose card proclaimed him as J. Elster, business representative.

Mr. Elster averted his gaze, grew perceptibly less cordial, and began to talk hurriedly of the need of organization, of cruel tendencies in hotel proprietors, and other things of kindred nature.

The reporter recalled that in the circulars scattered at a mass meeting only three weeks ago, the platform of the organizers had been set forth under nine heads, and that the fourth plank was "Higher wages and no necessity of depending upon tips." He glanced at the circular proffered at the beginning of his call yesterday, and observed everything unaltered with the exception of that fourth plank, which now reads: "Higher wages," and stops there.

Tips Began to Disappear.

"We do not want to talk about the tipping evil now," explained Mr. Elster, to the accompaniment of vehement nods from everybody in the room. "There has been too much said about that already."

"You mean, then, that when you tried to make it clear that you wanted the wages to go up, and the tips to vanish, you succeeded only in making it clear that you wanted the tips to vanish?" suggested the reporter.

"Yes, that was it, there was too much talking about the tips," said Mr. Elster, and waved an explanatory hand toward a notice on the wall. Inspection of the notice was rewarded with the information that Joseph Vehling, Secretary, and Paul Vehling, President, had been unanimously parted with on the night of Jan. 22.

"Mismanaging union affairs" was the reason assigned, and it was explained that while there had been a number of objections to the activities of the brothers Vehling, one of the chief ones was that they had caused no end of trouble by emphasizing the union's dislike of the tip.

Point to Hotel Abuses.

This much reference to the tip still appears in the literature being circulated: "Everybody knows how degrading, humiliating is the necessity of depending on tips. But only the workers in this trade know what consequences are connected with the tips. Managers go and see guests in their apartments and solicit tips to relieve the guests of the trouble of dividing them among employes.

"They are 'properly taken care of,' but they never reach the workers. Head housekeepers get checks of big amounts to be divided among the maids, bathgirls, seamstresses who have worked for that generous customer. The workers in such a case never see anything of the check. Good-natured, ignorant, unsuspecting guests leave tips in the office for the workers. The workers never get them in that case. Many houses have a system of pooling tips that is a veritable training school for criminals."

Even so long ago as the mass meeting held in Lyric Hall on Jan. 5 the speakers were backpedaling on the tip feature of the crusade against the hotel workers' unhappy lot.

"The tipping system is probably the root of it all," ran the platform oratory, "but if the wealthy classes were to stop tipping before we get a good living wage established by means of organization, it would be the end of us. After the wage is established, we don't care. The tip makes of you a malicious, envious, hateful creature, but we cannot do away with it just yet."

The Vehlings Went Further.

Such was the tenor of the speaking, but the brothers Vehling went stronger than that. In the second issue of their magazine, International Hotel Work, (and that it was their magazine and not the union's caused much of the disagreement with their associates, it was said,) the front page was devoted to an article on the "Price of the Tip," with an incendiary foreword that read:

"This startling address and its horrible figures reveal the price that is paid to the Moloch Tip and its corruption. This sacrifice of young lives, this destruction of young souls, this carnage is not necessary. It is preventable. It is due to the ignorance and niggardliness of those men who keep hotels, &c."

Permanent officers, it was said, have not yet been elected. Membership has risen in two months and a half to more than 2,000 of many nationalities, from every sort of hotel and restaurant. Organization is proceeding more or less sub rosa, said Mr. Elster, and the instances of men who have lost their jobs simultaneously with their having gone into the union are few.

OPERATE ON SENATOR GRADY.

He Rallies and Is Expected to be About Again in Ten Days.

Senator Thomas F. Grady, who was taken to a private sanitarium on Wednesday, underwent a slight operation on Thursday, from which he rallied and is now progressing rapidly toward recovery. "The operation was only a small matter," his sister said, last night, "the chief trouble being a threatened breakdown from overwork. We think he will be able to be about again in ten days."

NEW LAWS FOR ALASKA.

Taft Favors a Government Railroad—For Half-Elective Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—To a delegation representing Chambers of Commerce in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, and Everett, Wash., President Taft promised to-day to send a message to Congress calling attention to the need of Alaska legislation. The President said that he favored having Alaska governed by a commission, half the members to be elected by the territorial voters and half appointed by the President.

The delegation learned that the President would suggest new homestead laws, the Government construction of a railroad to be operated by private capital, the building of more roads, lighthouses, and fish hatcheries, and a new leasing system for coal lands.

McNAMARA CHECKS FOR JURY.

Counsel Will Aid in Showing How He Spent His Monthly Allowance.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 26.—Facts about J. J. McNamara's expense in paying his dynamiting crew and in buying explosives to blow up "open shop" structures for more than two years before his arrest were made available to-day for the Federal Grand Jury through Leo M. Rappaport, formerly an attorney for McNamara.

Rappaport told the Grand Jury the names of those to whom he had intrusted all the check book stubs and canceled checks, which show McNamara's financial dealings from December, 1909, and what disposal he made of the $1,000 a month allowed him as Secretary-Treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

Rappaport at first refused to testify, pleading privilege, but after Federal Judge Anderson said he would be compelled to produce the books, Rappaport consented to answer the questions.

JADE BRUSH HOLDER, $6,100.

Imperial Gift Brings Highest Price at the Tamanaka Sale.

There was a crowd of well-known New York women at the closing afternoon of the sale of Yamanaka jades, crystals, &c., at the American Art Galleries yesterday. Mrs. Henry Clews paid $325 for a water receptacle of emerald green and white jadite in an unusual design, the carving in the form of two gourds with an emblematical bat, butterfly, and dragonfly. Mrs. Robert Goelet paid $180 for a simple but charming white jade incense burner with a gold cover, and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., bought a pretty little European white jadite sparrow in a natural standing position with bronze feet and rose diamond eyes for $75. Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Mrs. William Earl Dodge, and Mrs. Harrison Williams were other buyers.

A very beautiful and interesting white jade brush holder was bought by Otto Bernet for Mr. Dane of Boston for $6,100. This was a wonderful example of Chinese lapidary art, and was an imperial gift.

The total for the afternoon was $66,702, and for the two afternoons $70,767. A Yamanaka sale of Chinese pottery, porcelains, and bronzes will be held to-day at the American Art Galleries.

AUTO HITS MAN AND ESCAPES

Red Car Had Been Seen Going Down Broadway at Top Speed.

H. A. McGrath of 127 Hamilton Avenue, Yonkers, stopped his automobile at 196th Street in Broadway yesterday afternoon and told Policeman Horn of the West 152d Street Station, who stood there, that he had an unconscious man in the tonneau.

McGrath said that he had been going up Broadway when at 195th Street he had seen a red limousine tearing down Broadway at high speed. Three blocks further on he had found the man unconscious in the street, a broken auto headlight beside him, and the remains of a pushcart in which had been a lot of plumber's tools scattered over the pavement.

Horn called Dr. Meyers from the Washington Heights Hospital, and the man was taken there. His skull was fractured and the physician said he probably would die. He regained consciousness long enough to say that he was John Fenton of 302 West 152d Street, a plumber, and that he didn't know what had hit him.

McGrath gave a description of the red car to the police, but he said he hadn't been able to see its license number.

DIED AT SCHOOL EXERCISES.

Went to See Her Granddaughter, Who Was Singing as She Passed Away.

Mrs. Mary Cornwell of 507 West 142d Street accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Mary Kroener, last night to the graduation exercises in Public School 186 at 521 West 145th Street, where fourteen-year-old Thelma Kroener received her diploma. As they entered the school house Mrs. Cornwell complained of feeling ill.

DIX KEEPS TO HIS BED.

Illness Due to Overwork and Friends Insist on Rest.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.—The condition of Gov. Dix, who is confined to his bed by illness, was slightly improved to-night, but his physician has ordered him to stay at the Executive Mansion for several days at least. The Governor's condition, according to Dr. Spencer L. Dawes, is due to overwork. Both his physician and his friends have advised the Governor to lay aside the cares of office and go away for a week or ten days for a rest.

The Governor's friends hope to persuade him to leave Albany as soon as he makes his appointments next week, and go to his camp at McKeever in the Adirondacks for a rest.

Lawyer Apologizes to Judge.

Adolph Freyer, a young lawyer whom City Court Judge La Fetra sentenced to pay a $250 fine and spend ten days in the Tombs for contempt of court, and who fought the sentence in the Supreme Court, came into court yesterday to apologize. He was accompanied by Max D. Steuer, his attorney. Judge La Fetra reduced the fine to $100, which Freyer paid, and remitted the sentence of imprisonment.

HAMMERS SIX MEN, GETS BACK HIS $28

Ironworker, Robbed of His Wages on Elevated, Throws a Few Youths Downstairs.

THEY THOUGHT HE'D BE EASY

But McGlade Enjoyed Himself So, Flooring Them, That He Almost Forgot His Loss.

Arthur McGlade, an ironworker of 615 East 178th Street, had $28.65, his week's wages, in his pocket when he started for home, via the Third Avenue Elevated, at 6 o'clock last night. He entered a train at the Fifty-ninth Street station and, finding it crowded, had to stand.

He noticed that near him were six young men who, McGlade thought, were jostling other passengers unnecessarily. As they didn't bother him the big ironworker paid no further attention to them, though he frequently felt in his pocket to be sure the $28 was all right.

Between the Eighty-ninth and Ninety-ninth Street stations the train was held up for a few moments to allow an express to pull in ahead of it, and McGlade suddenly discovered that his $28 was gone. He noticed one of the six young men putting his hand in his pocket. McGlade grabbed him, shouting that he had is money.

Instantly there was an uproar in the car, women screaming and men rising from their seats to see what was the trouble. In the excitement the six youths gathered around McGlade and hustled him onto the platform. An instant later the train pulled into the station and they rushed him out there.

In the crowd McGlade had been at a disadvantage, but in the open he began to act immediately. He grabbed the youth he had first accosted and tossed him down the elevated steps, where the young man lay stunned at the bottom. Then he turned on the five remaining. He knocked down the first one he struck and passed from him to the next. The five at first had set out to do up McGlade. In an instant they were busy defending themselves.

"Take my $28, will you?" exclaimed the ironworker, as he dealt blows right and left.

Other men passengers watched and women scurried from the platform to avoid the fight, but McGlade kept right on. With five blows he knocked down the five men, and as the first one rose to his feet the ironworker was ready for him again. Each time his huge fist whistled through the air there was a thud as it struck one of the five, and a second thud as the young man who was struck hit the platform flooring. Presently two of the men lay on the platform where McGlade had knocked them, afraid to get up.

One of the others rose and tried to run away. McGlade caught him and threw him down the stairs after the first man. He seemed to like this idea, for before they could move he caught two of the others and tossed them down also. The two remaining jumped to their feet and took the steps at a couple of bounds to escape the enraged ironworker.

McGlade stormed, shouting, about the platform, looking for more foes. It was several minutes before he recalled that his $28 had disappeared with the man. Then he jumped downstairs as fast as he could. At the bottom he met Fireman Harry Bulger of Engine 23 in West Fifty-eighth Street, who had been ascending the stairs when the first man flew down. Bulger had seen McGlade hurl him down, so he grabbed the man when he regained his wits and would have made off.

The motorman of the train had been whistling for the police meantime, and Policeman Gunshiman of the East 104th Street Station came running up. Bulger delivered his prisoner to him. On the way to the station the young man handed McGlade his $28. At the station he said he was Herbert Rogers of 283 East Eighteenth Street. He pleaded not to be held, and McGlade suggested that Lieut. Lasky let him go.

"I've got my $28 and all I want is a few minutes with him on the sidewalk," he said.

The Lieutenant said he could not release the man, and Rogers breathed more easily, offering no objection at all to going to a cell. The ironworker was about to leave when the Lieutenant interrupted him.

"You'll have to leave your $28 with me as evidence," he advised McGlade.

McGlade's eye gleamed and he stuck his hand into the pocket where his money was.

"Not much," said he.

Lieut. Lasky pleaded, but the ironworker was obdurate. It was clear that there would be another fight before McGlade parted with his wages, when Lasky had an idea

"I'll lend you $10 to get along on until this case goes to trial. Then you'll get your $28 back and you can repay me," he suggested.

McGlade thought the matter over for several moments, and then surrendered his wages. Lieut. Lasky gave him $10 from his own pocket and McGlade started for home.

RABBIS PREPARE HYMN BOOK.

Complete Editing of Book on Modern Lines.

A committee of ten rabbis appointed by the Central Conference of American Rabbis has been meeting this week in the West End Synagogue, and has completed, it was announced yesterday morning, the preparation of a new hymnbook along modern lines, for Jewish congregations.

The New York members of the committee are Dr. Samuel Schulman of Temple Beth-El, Dr. M. H. Harris of Temple Israel, and Dr. De Sola Mendes of West End Synagogue. The Chairman is Dr. H. H. Mayer of Kansas City, Mo.

EARLY DECISION ON BRANDT.

Whitman's Report to Go to Gov. Dix on Monday.

The result of District Attorney Whitman's investigation into the facts attending the arrest of Foulke Engle Brandt for assaulting and robbing Mortimer L. Schiff in March, 1907, and his sentence to thirty years' imprisonment will be forwarded to Gov. Dix on Monday. Mr. Whitman will go to Albany and discuss the matter with the Governor, who is expected to dispose of the case on that day or shortly thereafter. Carl Fischer Hansen, who was Brandt's counsel, said last night that he had an appointment to meet the Governor to-day, and that he would put in a good word for the prisoner.

"Mr. Schiff," said Mr. Hansen, "has engaged Alton B. Parker, senior partner of the law firm of Parker, Hatch & Sheehan, to represent him. I understand that Mr. Parker will oppose favorable action on Brandt's application to be set at liberty."

Mr. Whitman had long talks yesterday with Howard S. Gans, counsel for Mr. Schiff; Mr. Hansen, Mr. Bayles, who acted for Brandt previous to the latter's final arraignment in court, and Judge Rosalsky, who imposed the sentence. Mr. Whitman has obtained from Mr. Schiff an affidavit of the facts attending the crime, which will accompany the papers to be sent to the Governor. Mr. Whitman declined to discuss the matter for publication because it is in the hands of the Governor.

RABIES ON STATEN ISLAND.

Health Commissioner Lederle's Men Killing All Stray Dogs.

Fear of an epidemic of rabies, which already has a fair start on Staten Island, is the reason assigned by Health Commissioner Lederle for a general crusade under Health Department leadership against stray and homeless dogs.

If the killing of the stray dogs does not prove effective Dr. Lederle announces his intention to adopt, in the near future, a more drastic policy. Under this new policy all dogs would be required to wear muzzles while at large and to be leashed. Dr. Lederle, under the special police powers granted to him in case of an epidemic large enough to be considered a menace, would be authorized to issue orders that all dogs not in leash and muzzled be exterminated by the first policeman encountering them.

At present Dr. Lederle hopes the killing of unlicensed dogs will solve the problem by materially lessening the number of cases of rabies, by giving the department a hold upon the disease, which it admittedly has lost during the last few weeks.

ROB WELLS FARGO OF $8,000.

Stolen from Pouch Between Pittsburgh and Butler, Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Jan. 26.—Through the payment of $8,000 by Hitchcock, local agent of the Wells-Fargo Express Company, to the Mellon National Bank today an express robbery of the same amount, which had been kept secret since Wednesday night, was revealed.

The cash, it was admitted by Wells-Fargo Company officials, was stolen while en route from this city to Butler, Penn., from a pouch of other valuables. It had been receipted for by the messenger, H. W. Wylie, but a search of pouches at the Butler end of the line showed it was missng.

VANDEROEF PLEADS GUILTY.

Court Suspends Sentence Until Feb. 7—Robbed Firm of $140,000.

Percy S. Vanderoef, who cheated the Van Keuren & Thornton Company, dry goods dealers at 18 Thomas Street, out of more than $140,000 while he was Treasurer of the concern, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions. Judge Rosalsky suspended sentence until Feb. 7.

Vanderoef was in the habit of spending large amounts of money on orchids, and it was an exorbitant bill from a florist's, left lying on his table, that aroused the suspicion of the members of the firm. On examination, the books showed that the Treasurer, whose salary was $4,000 a year, had been taking on an average $15,000 annually from the firm for the last ten years.

URCHIN BETRAYED BY HIS TIP.

Two Cents Tossed to a Clerk Discloses Ill-Gotten Wealth.

Three very small boys bought a 38-cent watch in the Hegeman Drug Store, in the Times building last night. Receiving change for a small bill the purchaser tossed two cents to the clerk, remarking, "here's something for yourself."

This generosity aroused the suspicion of the clerk for tips in a drug store are so rare as to betoken great wealth, and so he called two officers in plain clothes and told them what had happened.

Fire in Paul Sorg's Apartment.

The apartment of Paul A. Sorg, one of the Directors of the American Tobacco Company, in the house at 10 to 14 East Eigthy-seventh Street was badly damaged by fire and water early yesterday morning. The fire, which is supposed to have been due to defective insulation, started in the living room, and the police estimate the damage at about $5,000.

Whiskey

They took the three lads to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station. There the boy who bought the watch described himself as Mathetos Agraplanotis, 12 years old of 327 West Forty-first Street. His companions said they were Harry Schlossberg, 815 First Avenue, and Abraham Tekulsky of 124 Suffolk Street, each ten years old.

The Greek boy had a pig skin purse containing $61.17. He said he was a newsboy and had found the pocketbook earlier in the evening in front of the Hippodrome. The boys were turned over to the Children's Society.

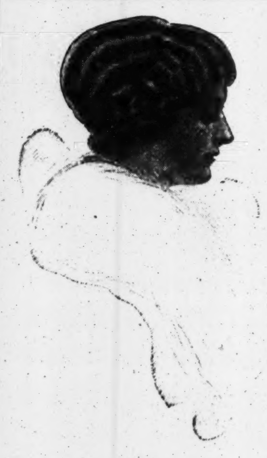
Fifth Avenue at 46th Street



Mme. THOMPSON'S Greatest Specialty

is for gray haired women who must not grow old, and who are really younger than their hair will admit. The greatest testimony of satisfaction is to be found in the numerous letters received from pleased patrons.

A letter extract:

> "Mother's trouble has been to dress her thin hair becomingly, impossible until now. Since wearing one of your fluffys she looks ten years younger and takes solid comfort and pleasure in looking so well."

Distinction in Coiffures

FLUFFY RUFFERS

are the most perfect article for the hair and are a great aid in making up a perfect coiffure.

OUR WONDERFUL HAIR DYE, for both ladies and gentlemen, will produce any shade desired from one package. It will not rub off or stain the scalp. It has been known to last four months without retouching.

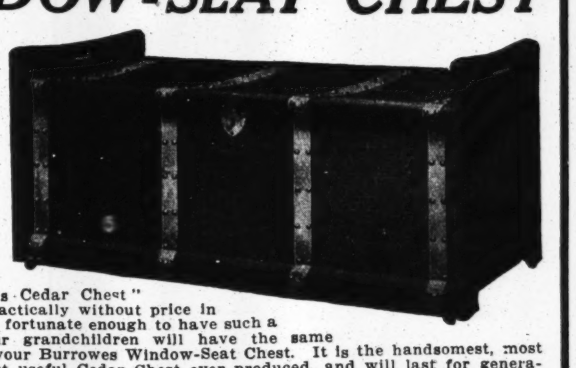
The BURROWES Red Cedar WINDOW-SEAT CHEST



A beautiful, massive, solid Chest, large and commodious.
21-in. wide
21-in. deep

(On Easy Payments)

"Grandfather's Cedar Chest" is a treasure practically without price in every household fortunate enough to have such a possession. Your grandchildren will have the same feeling toward your Burrowes Window-Seat Chest. It is the handsomest, most substantial, most useful Cedar Chest ever produced, and will last for generations. It is a striking piece of furniture—massive and solid—made of mountain-grown aromatic Tennessee Red Cedar (the only moth-proof kind), retaining all the wonderful natural graining of the wood, and tastefully decorated with strong, studded bands of oxidized bronze.

But even its great beauty and the sentimental value attached to it are small considerations compared with its constant usefulness. It provides absolute protection for furs, clothing, blankets, etc., against moths, mice, dust or dampness, and saves all storage charges on perishable articles. No home should be without its Burrowes Red Cedar Chest. The constant satisfaction it affords in so many ways is worth far more than its moderate price. The Burrowes Chests cost less—are better value—than any other Chests sold.

A Burrowes Chest for Every Taste

	Length	Width	Height
Utility Chest	44 in.	21 in.	18 in.	$20.

Patent No. 746037

This very unique model shows a hip confiner, built high enough to protect the waist line. In this way the very fashionable effect of being uncorseted is obtained, while the flesh below the waist line is held in a firm but supple casement.

Our goods are universally admitted to be of superior style, fit, finish, and workmanship. Booklet B mailed on request.
